Cybersecurity Report Offers Mixed Bag For Businesses

Businesses may see much to like in a presidential commission's sprawling new cybersecurity report that backs enhanced cyberthreat information-sharing and a lighter touch on regulation, but other suggestions, such as its call for a more aggressive approach on the internet of things and a cybersecurity "nutrition label," could have them eyeing potential liability risks.

Congress Passes Health Care Access Data Bill

As part of a series of health care access and research bills passed by the House of Representatives on Tuesday, the House voted through a bill meant to give the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services a better picture of health care access in rural, tribal and other underserved areas.

Commerce Head Urges Backing Of Cybersecurity Report

The United States has reached a "moment of reckoning" in its cybersecurity crisis, requiring stronger collaboration between the public and private sectors, a greater cybersecurity workforce and heightened security in emerging technologies, U.S. Secretary of Commerce Penny Pritzker told telecommunications industry leaders Tuesday.

IRS Updating Foreign Credit Guidance For Asset Acquisitions

The IRS is looking to walk taxpayers through two-year-old regulations blocking tax credits on assets dressed up as highly taxed overseas transactions when repatriating the money to the U.S., with a proposed rule-making Tuesday and a temporary rule applied retroactively showing how to identify and treat the relevant transactions.

Trump Adviser Says He's Not Privatizing Tribal Land

An Oklahoma Republican lawmaker who was tapped to lead President-elect Donald Trump's so-called Native American Coalition issued a statement on Monday to "alleviate any concern that Indian country should fear the federal government privatizing their land," saying recent news coverage has distorted his goals under the incoming administration.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

AT&T, Dish Say Broadcasters Should Carry Next-Gen TV Costs

Pay-TV providers should not be saddled with costs associated with new over-the-air broadcasting standards known as next-gen TV, representatives for Dish Network and AT&T Services Inc. told the Federal Communications Commission in a recent conference call.

Wireless Bids For Broadcast Spectrum Again Fall Short

Bids to convert 108 MHz of spectrum from broadcast to mobile broadband use failed to meet a $42 billion clearing target by a wide margin, triggering a soon-to-be-announced fourth stage of bidding under lowered targets, the FCC announced Monday.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Anti-Money Laundering Enforcement In 2017: What To Expect

Over the past two years, financial regulatory bodies in the United States and Europe have increasingly emphasized consumer due diligence by financial institutions as a means to combat money laundering and terrorist financing, especially with respect to "high-risk" products. This trend is expected to continue in 2017, say attorneys with K&L Gates LLP.

Big-Time Litigation Funding Vs. Consumer Legal Funding

Some have attacked consumer legal funding through over-regulation and obscured any differences between big-time litigation funding — like the Gawker case — and consumer legal funding. But mixing these two together is a recipe for bad public policy, says Jeremy Kidd, associate professor at Mercer University's Walter F. George School of Law.

Fallout From DOD Stance On Waste, Fraud And Abuse Tips

The U.S. Department of Defense recently issued a class deviation to the Federal Acquisition Regulation that bars the awarding of contracts to contractors that prohibit their employees from reporting waste, fraud and abuse to federal officials. The new rule could increase contractor liability and create tricky situations with respect to business-sensitive or trade secret information, say Dismas Locaria and Melanie Jones Totman of Venable LLP.

New Form I-9 Means More Immigration-Related Change In 2017

U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services' revised Form I-9 offers new features and imposes some different requirements. Some modifications enhance the form, while some may result in more technical violations, particularly for employers who continue to use paper versions of the form, say Christine Samsel and Hannah Caplan of Brownstein Hyatt Farber Schreck LLP.

Confirming PURPA Protections For Renewable Producers

The Public Utilities Regulatory Policy Act was enacted to encourage the development of cogeneration and small power production facilities. FERC's declarations on PURPA issued in response to the petition for enforcement filed by Windham Solar may reinvigorate the development of qualifying facilities in states located within organized markets, says Heather Curlee of Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati.

Subject: PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL FOR REVIEW BY MAYOR GOODMAN RE: TERRORISM THREAT

The Honorable Mayor Carolyn Goodman:

I am contacting you concerning the information on terrorism below. Due to 2 incidents in Las Vegas and my familiarity with terrorism, I sent the email below to a Las Vegas commander, and have since contacted other commanders, corporate, and a Las Vegas politician with my concerns. Unfortunately, the response was as inadequate as the response the FBI agents, civilians, and well known individuals experienced when warning top DC officials about 9/11. This is why I and others are so reluctant to contact authorities concerning the issue, and specifically why I hesitated to contact the Las Vegas commander with my original warning (due to what I witnessed in Las Vegas). If it were not for the fact so many EU, Australian, Chinese, and Indian friends/kids that I know visit Las Vegas I would just ignore the situation and let it happen and then say I told you so to the media. (I am also covering myself by having proof that I did warn every authority responsible for public safety in Las Vegas, the US, and abroad.) I assure the situation is far worse than you know, and I would not underestimate it or the ruthlessness of the enemy. They have already picked out their targets and made their decision to carry out their missions no matter what. They will have to be physically stopped by and aggressive and competent campaign led by competent and aggressive law enforcement/intelligence officers.

Due to the seriousness of the situation, my ties to the EU, Australia, and other countries, I have warned Ministers that I have had previous contact with and others this week concerning issuing a travel warning to their citizens. I have not mentioned the city of concern, however as of next week I may have to. I do not want to get involved in the situation at all, I like 3 other top terrorist experts are fed up with the incompetence and politicizing of terrorism that has led to the disastrous attacks from 9/11, Paris, San Bernardino, and now Brussels. (The experts are former Clinton & Bush terrorism expert Richard Clark, former CIA agent/CNN consultant Bob Baer, and former Bin Laden desk Chief Michael Scheuer.) We have all reached this point due our being completely correct in our forecasts and strategies for addressing terrorist threats, and the individuals and entities that were listened to being dead wrong each and every time. An audit of my record on forecasting terrorist trends and events to be irrefutably accurate, and an audit of the "experts" to be irrefutably inaccurate.

The individuals that are sought after to address terrorism in the US by the government and media are not actually experts-are you aware of that? If you are counting on US or local counter terrorism officials to save Las Vegas-I would stock up on body bags, you're going to need them.

Those responsible for anti-terrorism measures in Las Vegas and the US as a whole have no idea what they are up against, nor do they have a clue as to how to negate the threat-hence why ISIS/Al Qaeda continue to beat them to the punch.

EXAMPLES:

-The only people that did not know that Ms. Prouty a terrorist mole were the Directors of the FBI and CIA (literally) that fought over her and gave her the highest awards the agencies has https://www.justice.gov/archive/opa/pr/2007/November/07_nsd_910.html http://www.cbsnews.com/news/the-case-against-nada-prouty-26-03-2010/. There are a lot more Nada Prouty's in the US committing the same act. Ms. Prouty proves a Middle Easterner cannot be vetted, there are many just like her in the US that have US passports, driver's licenses, and they are in no way who the government thinks they are right down to the names on those documents.

-This terrorist pioneer lived 2 miles down the road from me http://articles.chicagotribune.com/1985-06-19/news/8502090070_1_lebanon-david-berry-nabih-berri

I grew up here and know or have met all of the people connected to this issue and I assure you the situation is far worse than is suspected by authorities. I have met and talked to many of the individuals responsible for stopping these terrorists, and trust me-the terrorists are far ahead of the opposition.

https://www.google.com/webhp?sourceid=chrome-instant&ion=1&espv=2&ie=UTF-8#q=plane+terrorism+dearborn+

LAS VEGAS CONNECTION

http://www.wxyz.com/news/local-news/investigations/happys-pizza-headquarters-raided-by-irs-criminal-division-dea (Las Vegas has a franchise and a lot more connections to Detroit/Dearborn than you likely are aware of. It is a case of this https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JcZHSGyos6g)

I have talked with the founders of this business several times and this case was strictly about terrorist funding as in this case http://www.mlive.com/lansing-news/index.ssf/2011/12/report_several_southeast_michi.html.

In closing, my original warning should have been ran to ground, the fact that it wasn't is proof of just how off and far behind Las Vegas is in addressing Paris and Brussels style attacks (this week every Minister from every foreign country I contacted responded with a phone call or/and email seeking further information because they now "get it".) To be direct, authorities in Las Vegas and the US have their heads in the sands regarding the issue of terrorism and must change their strategy and tactics while they still have a chance to do so. With Las Vegas having the worst inherent terrorist vulnerabilities of any major city, Las Vegas should be much more precise and aggressive in avoiding such an attack (which is possible). An attack in the manner that I have forecast would dwarf the Paris body count by a minimum of X5, however it will be worse. The intelligence, physical security, and counter measures of Las Vegas are an invitation for an attack, and the terrorist know all of the cities vulnerabilities as well as I do.

No casino pit boss, dealer, etc. could have the record of the anti-terrorism leadership and still be employed in Las Vegas, it is the equivalent to them "losing" track of a million dollars every day for a year and the casino owners and Gaming Control Board accepting any explanation he came up with as legitimate. This would never happen. The see something say something just does not work as Brussels, Paris, and San Bernardino prove with the number of people that knew and didn't talk for various reasons. The #1 reason is that people simply have no confidence in authorities taking proper action. Examine my experience with the issue, each time I am putting my life and business life in danger by even contacting authorities in Las Vegas, and not once has anyone so much as responded or asked me how and why I reached the conclusions I have reached. This is a mirror of the warning by James Woods cited below regarding 9/11-it all could have and should have been ended right then and there. The mindset of law enforcement/political leadership on the municipal level must change, at the end of the day the battle and ramifications are like all politics-local.

As you know the odds always catch up, and luck runs out. Vegas' luck is about to run out in the worst of ways. If you would like the scenario I war gamed, I will forward it upon your request.

Thank you and good luck-

Sincerely,
Jerome Almon

Sheriff Moody:

Thank you for you response and time regarding the issues below:

1)THE TERRORISM ISSUE:

As you are certainly aware of, Al Qaeda has Las Vegas as one of its top 5 main targets, specifically the Strip. I am certain that the area has been scouted and targets selected based on my experience in the area and my observations of individuals and groups while in Las Vegas. They will hit what is most familiar with them, and Las Vegas is very familiar to them. (For example the mastermind behind 911 graduated from the University of North Carolina http://edition.cnn.com/2002/US/South/12/19/al.qaeda.aggie/ .

ACTIONS THAT WILL BE TAKEN BY TERRORIST:

A) http://newyork.cbslocal.com/2014/03/19/al-qaeda-magazine-calls-for-car-bombings-in-u-s-new-york

B) http://www.cnn.com/2013/09/18/world/asia/mumbai-terror-attacks/

RECOMMENDED COUNTER MEASURES:

A) Special response teams will not get to the site in time, and must be in place PRIOR to any incident in the immediate area.
B) CONTAIN AND KILL-officers must be prepared to neutralize the terrorist at the point of attack, i.e. the attacker cannot be allowed out of the building, off the block, or off the side of the street where they attacked (Las Vegas Blvd is a perfect kill zone for a terrorist due to its geography, such as the inability to cross the Strip in certain areas combined with the natural traffic volume.) Point blank, these are the same individuals and groups that Delta Force, Navy SEALS, Army Rangers, Airforce Commandos, and Marine RECON/special forces faced on the battlefields of Iraq and Afghanistan-they are not to be under estimated. (Essentially they are Islamic special forces.) They are going to attack sooner than later. C) Las Vegas should have its own anti-terrorism unit on the level of the NYPD's anti-terrorism unit, NYC learned its lesson the hard way 911-YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT YOUR CITY. As you will see in the information from the Canadian CIA (CSIS) and the response to that information from both that unit and myself, the federal authorities are grossly out of touch with reality regarding terrorism.

I assure you this is not close to the worst.

I am well versed in this area as you will see due to my studies/duties as a university guest lecturer, and personal experiences however most of my experience is first hand. I left college and joined the US Army, several individuals that I attended college with left college and joined our enemy and did fight against the US in numerous war zones around the world. These individuals are supported by groups in America, and know the country as well as you and I do.

Secretary Napolitano-

I am writing you concerning a pervasive and unacceptable sanctioned policy within the Department of Homeland Security of the sexual harassment of female traveler's entering the United States. I have been informed by numerous female travelers coming to visit me in the United States from Norway, Germany, and especially Canada that they are routinely harassed by male DHS inspectors. I find the allegations completely credible due to the carbon copy stories from the females, and the profile of the females- all attractive teen or near teen girls traveling alone. The harassment is so overt that it is impossible that supervisors are not aware of it, do not witness it, and in fact sanction it.

I have a substantial amount of both academic and field study experience in this area, and have personally witnessed the practice by DHSemployees myself. This is should be addressed in the open without hesitation. It is insulting to the female travelers, and also opens up US females to the retaliatory actions by the security personnel of other countries- which I assure has happened. Certainly with all the alleged dangers facing Americans and the gaping holes in border security at the various ports of entry, DHS does not have the luxury expending valuable energy and tax payers money on sexually harassing female travelers.

I thank you for your time and consideration and will await your reply.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

website_comments: I have had previous contacts with your office issues (specifically Bonnie Tischler). I feel it is necessary to reintroduce this information (I will send a copy of thisinformation to US Senator Carl Levin.) I have made compliants against certain procedures and individuals at the Detroit/Windsor border crossing. I also corresponded with the Canadian Minister for Immigration (Elinor Caplan) concerning the fact that even the supervisors at the Canadian border do not understand much of the information they need to concerning legitimate vs. false documentation. (I unfortunately am able to prove this point.) Meaning if say a person was on a wanted list -the Canadians often ask the person to interpret the information.
Finally the Detroit/Windsor tunnel. It is a disaster waiting to happen. Since the US checks cars

AFTER they have entered the tunnel (as does Canada) -doesn't that defeat the objective of stopping a terrorist act in the tunnel? The check should happen before the tunnel is entered, and after-or the tunnel should be closed.

I originally warned a agent at a federal law enforcement entity of the threat on 9/11 and although he agreed I was correct, he took no action, stating he didn't exactly know what to do regarding the information, and that he was quite frankly stunned at the danger. Only when an individual drove through the tunnel with what appeared to be a bomb on his front seat did the politicians take the matter up, as you will see with NYC. The tunnel is in a far worse position than it was on 9/11 due to Detroit's economic collapse, the influx of more Middle Easterners into Canada, and this http://www.reuters.com/article/us-detroit-tunnel-bankruptcy-idUSBRE96O0RT20130725.

Tighter security at border hits snag

Legal issues may block U.S., Canada checks before crossing

WASHINGTON -- Checking travelers between the United States and Canada after they've crossed the border -- which some liken to checking airline passengers after they land -- is being scrutinized by officials concerned that bridges and tunnels could be vulnerable to attack.

Lawmakers are pressuring the U.S. Customs Service and Canadian officials to come up with a decision this week on whether the countries can swap inspection locations.

An alternative to paying a toll, crossing the bridge or tunnel, and then being scrutinized by Customs officials once inside the other country's territory is to do inspections before crossing.

Although the reverse inspection system is the only solution being lobbied to enhance infrastructure safety, the two nations haven't agreed on how to settle legal obstacles. An old idea revived by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, a revised system would involve numerous agencies in both countries in the decision.

"This reverse clearance proposal has a number of sovereignty and structure issues attached to it," said Michel Proulx, spokesman for the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency in Ottawa.

"There are a lot of players involved in all of this. It's difficult to get a sound, concrete answer. No one department or agency would be able to say yes or no."

There's little to stop someone who wanted to damage the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, or even Detroit Metropolitan Airport, if the crime is done before the perpetrator even gets to an inspection point, critics say.

Besides the human safety concern, destroying any one of the border-crossing points would do serious harm to the auto industry, one of the United States' economic engines, and many other businesses that rely on just-in-time delivery of material. Michigan had $70 billion in trade with Canada in 2000.

"Every time I drive through that tunnel, I expect something to happen," said Jerome Almon, a Detroiter who drives to and from Toronto at least twice a month.

"Osama bin Laden says the economy is what they want to attack, and you cannot find a more decimating effect than that bridge or tunnel on our economy. You will kill Detroit, it's over, goodbye. But think of the effect on the rest of America."

Firearms an issue

Aside from jurisdiction, the question of whether U.S. Customs agents should carry firearms in Canada is of particular concern to Canadians. Canada is known for being much less tolerant of guns than the United States.

"Our Customs officers are not armed and at this point in time we still feel there is no reason for them to be," Proulx said.

"We have a study going on right now to determine whether the tools they have are adequate to do their jobs safely and with full security. The U.S. (agents) are (armed) and definitely that would be one of the snags in the issue."

The preclearance concept does have precedent. U.S. Customs agents inspect U.S.-bound passengers at six Canadian airports so they don't have to be routed through Customs once they arrive like travelers on flights from every other country, said former Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

He spearheaded the "open skies" agreement when he was U.S. ambassador to Canada.

The real stumbling block to doing this at bridges and tunnels will be working out how much authority each side is given to enforce the other country's laws, he said.

"You could always prevent (a suspicious passenger) from getting on the plane," Blanchard said. "The question is who arrests them, can they say 'I choose not to fly' then go home, or do we hold them?"

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Detroit, said he thinks all of the issues can be worked out.

"The only impediment here is bureaucratic impediment," he said. "Even though there's supposed to be an urgency after Sept. 11, there seems to be some unnecessary foot-dragging."

Levin and Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, sent a letter to Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner on Jan. 4, insisting on a progress report by Friday.

"It is obvious that inspecting vehicles for dangerous contents such as bombs or explosives after they enter our tunnels or cross our bridges is inadequate," they wrote.

Customs spokesman Jim Michie said he wasn't sure when a decision would be made on reverse inspections, but that it was being closely studied.

Tighter local security

Local authorities say they've taken the steps they can to bolster security.

Travelers who use the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel are no longer allowed through unless operators are certain they can make to the other side without backups, said Gordon Jarvis, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp.

"If there is an incident and you need to get out, there is space for you to do so, and there are fewer cars in the tunnel at any one time," Jarvis said. "It also makes it much easier for us to identify when there are incidents in the tunnel."

Jarvis said reverse inspections are a viable option at the tunnel, despite the smaller queue area, compared to other crossing points like the Ambassador Bridge.

The owners of the Ambassador Bridge have installed new lighting, fencing and surveillance cameras, as well as armed security 24 hours a day, said Dan Stamper, president of the Detroit International Bridge Co. Stamper said the bridge company is paying for the extra security.

"We're not sure whose responsibility it is for the cost of security, but we are not in the position to say it's not going to be done," he said.

The bridge authority has completed plans showing that logistically, preclearance can be implemented on an interim basis within 90 days, Stamper said. In doing so, there would be the added bonus of huge efficiencies in traffic flow.

"The current six lanes that cross the border, two at the tunnel and four at the bridge, become traffic lanes and not parking lots," Stamper said. "It increases the capacity of both the tunnel and the bridge, a lot more than anything else we can do today."

Blue Water Bridge study

Bruce Campbell, the engineer manager of the Blue Water Bridge, said the proposal is being examined as part of a long-term security review of the span connecting Port Huron with Sarnia, Ontario.

With the Ambassador Bridge being the busiest U.S.-Canada entry point, carrying 12 million vehicles a year, the economic implications for the region are enormous.

"One 18-wheeler goes across that bridge every eight seconds," said Carmine Palombo, director of transportation planning at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The implications for the bridge and tunnel operators are significant as well.

"They're all looking at an out-of-pocket expense they hadn't anticipated," said Neil Gray, director of government affairs at the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, which represents toll agencies.

"Nobody wants to do a toll increase to reflect this, in fact I'm not sure anyone has proposed one, but it's an issue we are all having to think about."

Protecting airports is a concern as well, though most of the attention has been on protecting aircraft against air piracy, Capt. Duane E. Woerth, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, told senators late last year.

Noting that airports in Rome and Vienna have been hit, Woerth said he's worried terrorists could attack ticket counters, check-in facilities and lines of passengers waiting outside.

Airlines, bridges and tunnels are experiencing lower traffic flow because of leisure travelers concerned about terrorist risks.

Almon, the Detroiter who travels to Toronto on business, said he's a former combat engineer with the Army and he's concerned about how easily a carload of explosives put together with store-bought material could take out the bridge or tunnel.

"At the mouth of the Detroit tunnel sits General Motors headquarters, a terrorist would get two for one with that," Almon said.

The issue with the Ambassador Bridge is equally troubled, the owner has successfully blocked a new bridge being built. The issue too closely resembles the Dubai Ports issue https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Manuel_Moroun. Ottawa wrote me 90 days after my warning to CYA and because again what I warned them about occurred.

The largest portion of the trade comes through the tunnel and bridge mentioned https://www.commerce.gov/news/blog/2014/01/secretary-pritzker-highlights-strong-economic-partnership-between-usa-and-canada

Dr. Zagar-
Good to hear from you. I am sorry I just got to my email messages, I am working on several other huge projects that all come back to the migrant issue. I will have to hook up Skype, I don't know how it works to be honest.

The situation in the States is pretty dire. We are essentially at civil war with the country collapsing socially. All of the work that you and Dr. Feinstein did and your forecasts turned out to be 100% accurate. Simply put, America bet on the wrong people with the wrong plans and now we are getting our comeuppance.

I am against the re-settling of immigrants in the US or Europe, it will most certainly lead to more conflict in both areas and the Middle East. The only hope is establishing a safe zone in Syria and Iraq, which is as close to impossible as it gets considering the collapse of the basic structures and the radicalization of the factions. Electing George Bush was the worse event that has happened to the world since WWII. I will get on Skype and send you another email asap. I am moving to Berlin to work on a large social media project in the next 30-60 days. In the meantime I am sending these articles for your review concern my thoughts on the migrant issue. Would you be able to attend a conference on the issue of the migrants and school shooter issues in Europe or the US with all expenses and a fee paid to you?

The other issue I am extremely concerned about is a threat that would end Detroit, cost America 2 million jobs in a week, and plunge the stock market to below 2008 and 911 levels. The Iran deal was done in part due to Iran has 40,000 agents in or at America's borders prepared to attack if Iran's nuclear facilities were attacked. That is the good news, the bad news is the Sunnis have 3X that many agents in the US and are preparing for their "Islamic Tet offensive." With Russia, out of necessity intervening in the Syrian/Iraq war and the US govt. giving behind the scenes approval for the Russian-Iranian-Alawite axis which will inevitably bring in Israel and the US the Sunnis will go after the US and Canadians on their own soil in a much more aggressive and massive way. My assessment is that the Chinese will be drawn into the war due the unrest with the Xinjiang Province and the Uighars. The Islamic State (IS) has spread throughout Central Asia and will take Afghanistan and defeat the Taliban in the end unless there is a "mass war event." It is my contention that Putin has decided to that. He cannot lose the Syrian-Iraq War, he cannot allow the IS to continue to grow in the Central Asian Republics, and Afghanistan, and he is not giving up Crimea, and does not have the military resources nor money to fight a prolonged war. I believe Putin is planning to use a tactical/battle field nuclear weapon (NATO appears to be thinking that way on the Ukraine which is insane). Most of the intelligence guys that I respect believe that is the only way to stop the IS/Sunnis or to completely withdraw from the Middle East. What is your opinion?
Thanks-
Jerome

(My numbers on the size of the networks mentioned are accurate I assure you. 2 other respected security/intelligence officers that have a proven track record of accuracy, agree with me. The messages I sent to US authorities were more detailed and were sent in the Spring of 2014, and the Spring and Summer of 2015.)

Sir or Madam: I am forwarding the following information sent to first responders, due to its application to your industry. To be direct, I have warned your union several times since 9/11 of these very threats, and the actions of the leadership has not matched the threat. Unfortunately, this is the same conduct of law enforcement and political leadership regarding what is now a catastrophic situation. That is, the industry will suffer huge losses in both personnel and revenue due to the lack of taking prudent steps to pre-act rather than react to obvious threats. The only hope in negating or minimizing the threat is for the travel, hotel, and tourism industries along with the pilot and flight attendant unions (and their allies) to join forces and seek to have necessary security and industry support measures put in place without political consideration. The needed measures must be completely based on the real world security and economic threat that exists, and is getting worse by the minute. The losses France and Belgium are suffering are just the beginning, and minor in compared to an Egypt Air or Russian Sharm El Sheikh incident in North America or Europe. I assure you, the threat is far worse than is known even to most of the law enforcement community.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

Hi Katja,

I got your contact details from Marie at Freemuse in Denmark. My name is Scott Corben and I am a producer with Al Jazeera Television in London.

I am researching a piece on soldier in the United States and I am really keen to speak to a guy called Jerome Almon. I believe he is based in Detroit. Maries tells me that you may have some way of contacting him. If you have an up to date email or phone number I'd really appreciate it.

Look forward to hearing from you

best regards,

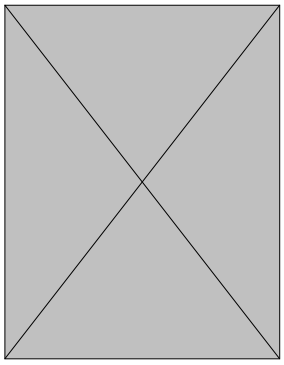
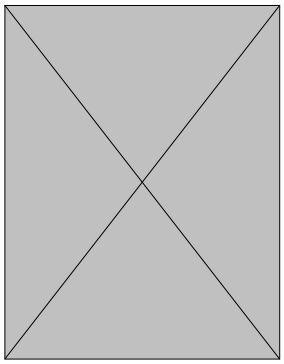
Are Intelligent Automation & Blockchain Poised to Disrupt HHS?

This new research strategy paper examines how state and local health and human services agencies are approaching a pair of emerging technologies: Intelligent automation and blockchain. Based on a national survey and a series of in-depth discussion workshops, the paper reports that HHS officials see a range of practical applications for these technologies which could improve eligibility decisions, facilitate secure data sharing and reduce fraud. It also identifies potential concerns as agencies consider putting intelligent automation and blockchain into wider use.



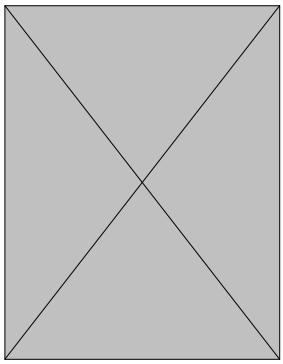
A Fast, Effective Path to Marijuana Regulation

As the legalization of marijuana becomes more prevalent in states across the country, local governments need to quickly and effectively stand up regulatory processes that guide market participants into an organized system while maintaining public safety. Fortunately, technology can help. Download this paper to learn more about the complexities of regulation, how integrated digital technology can ease the management of marijuana licensing programs and how one local government found success.



How HHS Agencies are Reinventing Fraud Detection

Future funding levels for Medicaid and other human services programs is uncertain. But states are bracing for the likely outcome of reduced program funding, even as requests for help rise. With new technology, states can identify more forms of fraud, stop them sooner and protect program funds for use by legitimate recipients. Download this paper to learn more.



How Advanced Resource Management Leads to Better Citizen Services

Whether trucks or earth movers, boats or snowplows, local governments have many resources to dispatch and track. They often assign these resources using spreadsheets and instinct, and lack complete, real-time information regarding location and availability. A cloud-based system for self-service dispatch streamlines much of this work, saving local governments time and money. Download this paper to learn more.

Subject: Rescinding Dianetics Day or Month

Dear Mayor,

I believe that you in the past your city inadvertently made a horrible mistake by issuing a proclamation for Dianetics Day. I am sure your Mayor at the time did not know that by doing so you were condoning the actions of the author L.Ron Hubbard, who has proven to be a liar and fraud and who's organization actively destroys families and has infiltrated many government agencies to spy on them which resulted in nine of their members going to jail including L Ron Hubbard's wife!

Currently The Church's uses the proclamation your city has given them as evidence of your support for what they do and how. Mayor Roy of Calera, Alabama rescinded theirs and I am asking you to do the same. I have included some different information here to substantiate what I am asking for and why so you have facts that your city may not have been provided with before agreeing to having your city be supportive of this organization. Mayor Roy rescinded their proclamation based on only the following:

Dianetics and Scientology are inseparable; the former is used as a technique in the practice of the latter, and the doctrines of the former are incorporated in the latter."
– The Lee Report on Dianetics and Scientology by Professor John Lee

"(a) The claim is made for dianetics, which is part of scientology, and inferentially for the whole of scientology, that between them they can positively cure all psychosomatic ailments, which it is claimed represent 70 per cent. of man's illnesses.

(c) On the contrary, scientology techniques, beyond the elementary stages, are potentially and, in some instances, positively harmful to mental health.
(d) Scientology is practised by "auditors" who have no medical training; they use dangerous techniques; they are unable to recognize symptoms and diagnose particular mental and physical conditions of ill health; they indiscriminately apply dangerous techniques irrespective of the circumstances; they not only administer the wrong treatment, but also poison their patients' minds against orthodox medicine and thus prevent them from obtaining proper medical treatment which they may require."
– Conclusions The Anderson Report, Chapter 30, point 8
Kevin Victor Anderson, Q.C. Published the State of Victoria, Australia

Despite Hubbard's claim his poor eyesight, ulcers and arthritis were never resolved and he petitioned for and received disability payments from the Navy reserve which he continued to receive while making millions of dollars from the Dianetics book that claimed to cure all of these for himself and others.

In a California Judge Breckenridge ruled;
"In addition to violating and abusing its own members civil rights, the organization… has harassed and abused those person not in the church whom it perceives as enemies .The organization clearly schizophrenic and paranoid, and this bizarre combination seems to be a reflection of its founder L Ron Hubbard. The evidence portrays a man who's been virtually a pathological liar when it comes to his history, background and achievements.

In another court case Justice Latey wrote " when comparing the truth about Hubbard with the churches published claims and said to promote himself in the cult he made these amongst other false claims:

1- Hubbard's claim was: That he was a much decorated war hero.
The truth is: He was not.

2- Hubbard's claim :That he was awarded the Purple Heart a gallantry decoration for those wounded in action
The truth is: He was not.

3-Hubbard's claim: That he was crippled and blinded in the war and cured himself with Dianetic technique.

The truth is: He was not crippled and he was not blinded.

Hubbard claims " That he was a graduate of George Washington University an atomic physicist.

The truth is: He completed only one year of college and failed the one course on nuclear physics he enrolled in.

Mr. Hubbard is a charlatan or worse. Scientology is both immoral and socially obnoxious…In my judgment it is corrupt sinister and dangerous. It is corrupt because it is based on lies and deceit and has as its real objective money and power."

Kenneth Robinson a past British Minister of Health has stated that: "The government is satisified…that Scientology is socially harmful. It alienates members of families from each other and attributes squalid and disgraceful motives to all who oppose it; it's authoritarian principles and practice. Are a potential menace to the personality and well-being of those so deluded as to become its followers: above all,its methods can be a serious danger to the health of those who submit to them.

I think you have more than enough information here to rescind your city's proclamation. I am more than happy to discuss this further with you should you have any questions.I have LOTS more disturbing information that I am sure will help you make this decision to rescind

I have also sent this to the editors of your cities your main newspapers as they to might want to rescind any positive story they had run when you gave Dianetics this original proclamation .

Thank you for your consideration of this matter,

Brian J Sheen

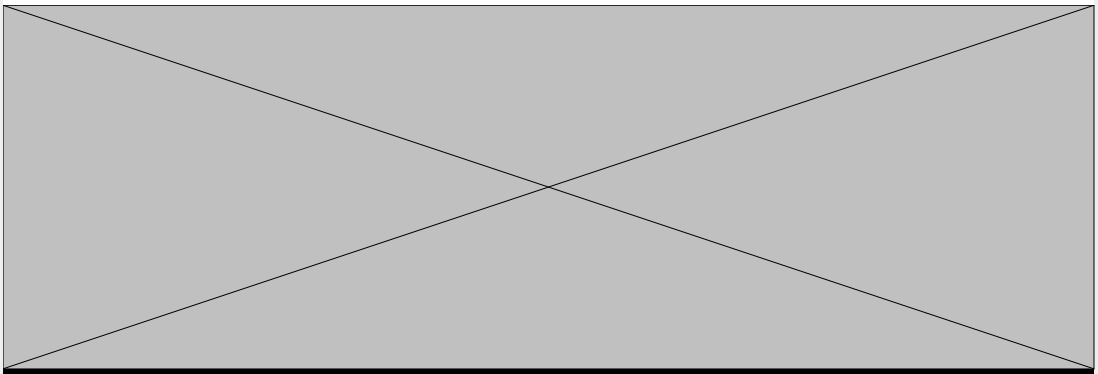
Subject: Prevent T&E fraud before it's too late

forward | view in browser | view on mobile



Better manage, detect and prevent T&E fraud.

With technology providing more channels for employee-initiated spend, the risk of T&E fraud is increasing. It is becoming harder to track misappropriation, mileage padding, duplicate expenses, unused airline tickets and last-minute flight bookings because spending may be done using several applications, including non-partner travel services.

Preventing T&E fraud before it happens is key, as recouping fraudulent expenses takes time and money you don't want to spend. To get ahead of T&E fraud, your organization needs an integrated T&E system that reduces risk and gives you real-time visibility of spend with controls such as:

- Spend thresholds.
- Receipt limits.
- Blocks to prevent users from being reimbursed for expenses that do not comply with your policies.

An integrated T&E system that can power constant audit rules, triggers and exception analyses can reduce your risk of fraud, but also protect your organization from legal ramifications and fines, employee fall-out and the reputational damage of a fraud investigation.

Learn how savvy companies better manage, detect and prevent fraud in this report.

Subject: [Marketing Mail] Out of Network Providers: Maximize recovery against health plans and generate more revenue

Dear colleague,

Patients are increasingly seeking out-of-network (OON) services and this trend is expected to continue going forward. As the consumer demand drives out of network activity, insurance companies are coming up with OON benefits integrated into their policies.

Since OON reimbursement tends to be higher than in-network reimbursement, payers use different strategies to discourage it, including bill reduction tactics, limits on benefits policies and third-party rental agreements that lower reimbursement. Out-of-network represents the last great opportunity for many providers to increase their reimbursement. But remember, what has worked for you in the past is no longer effective in recovering revenue for your practice. The climate has changed and so must you!

Join expert speaker Thomas J. Force, Esq., in this on-demand webinar "Everything the Out-of-Network Provider Needs to Know to Generate More Revenue for its Practice" tomorrow, Wed, Jun 28, 2017, to get deeper insights on effective revenue recovery techniques for your out-of-network services. Get strategies to maximize recovery against health plans while ensuring that your patients pay their fair share of charges. Thomas will analyze and discuss in detail the procedures necessary to be successful as an OON provider—starting with scheduling and involving the entire revenue cycle.

Session Highlights:

- Discussion on out-of-network claims
- Out-of-network vs. in-network: the advantages and disadvantages
- The importance of patient disclosures and upfront estimates of charges
- ERISA: friend or foe?
- How to use ERISA law to appeal denied and under-reimbursed claims for employer-sponsored plans
- Are you getting an appropriate response from the health plan?
- What is a recoupment and what to do when faced with one?
- How to get a full and fair review in case of a recoupment?
- Affordable Care Act (ACA) emergency services mandate
- How to object to and defend health plan recoupments
- The importance of charity care program/ financial hardship policy
- Review of dispute resolution for emergency services
- Review of dispute resolution for non-emergency "surprise bills"
- Timing of benefit determination
- Manner and content rules
- Fee forgiveness (insurance fraud): how to avoid them
- Interplay with state insurance laws
- Disclosure rules
- Dispute resolution for emergency and non-emergency services
- Insights on Affordable Care Act and the emergency services mandate
- Mandatory disclosures for OON providers
- Expanded consumer protections

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Patent Reform Beyond The Innovation Act: The TPTP Act

The Trade Protection Not Troll Protection Act is a recent bipartisan effort with provisions expected to curb nonpracticing entity use of the U.S. International Trade Commission. It has gained considerable steam already, presenting Congress the opportunity to substantially amend Section 337 for the first time since 1988, say attorneys with Finnegan Henderson Farabow Garrett & Dunner LLP.

The Potentially Sweeping Effects Of FCC's ISP Regulations

The Federal Communications Commission's proposed rules concerning customer proprietary information acquired by broadband internet access service providers are broad in scope and reflect uncertainty as to how to best protect customer information. Paid Sick Leave Compliance: Untangling The Complicated Web

The momentum for legally mandated paid sick leave has turned compliance into a game of whack-a-mole. Not only must employers be vigilant and identify newly enacted laws that may apply to their business, but they must also navigate the complicated web of requirements to ensure compliance, say Daisy Sanchez and Jennifer Terry at Arent Fox LLP.

9th Circ. Says Fair Housing Act Thwarts Discrimination

For years, neighbors have opposed housing projects that are intended to be occupied by lower-income families. Local governments often bow to the political pressure brought to bear by such opponents. The Ninth Circuit's strong opinion last month in City of Yuma v. Avenue 6E Investments should serve to uphold these projects, even in the face of neighbor opposition, says Michael Berger at Manatt Phelps & Phillips LLP.

Relearning The Lessons Of Korematsu's Case

Fred Korematsu’s U.S. Supreme Court case challenging President Franklin Roosevelt’s executive order that led to the incarceration of approximately 120,000 people of Japanese ancestry may sound like ancient history. However, Feb. 19 marks the 75th anniversary of the order's signing, and that it’s celebrating its diamond anniversary now is breathtaking timing, says Randy Maniloff of White and Williams LLP.

CPSC Civil Penalties: A Statistical Analysis

In 2015, U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission Chairman Elliot Kaye announced that he had directed CPSC staff to seek “double-digit” penalties from companies found to be in violation of the Consumer Product Safety Act. Kaye appears to have accomplished his stated goal — a statistical analysis of agency fines shows that companies are being punished more severely than before, says Jonathan Judge of Schiff Hardin LLP.

How A General Counsel Should Think About AI: Part 2

General counsels face the challenging task of understanding how companies can navigate the rules surrounding uses of artificial intelligence. To get smart on AI, general counsels must ask the right questions about areas such as human resources, intellectual property, liability and insurance, say Bruce Heiman and Elana Reman of K&L Gates LLP.

Looking Back At The Life Settlements Industry In 2017

While 2017 was a relatively quiet year on the regulatory front for life settlements, Delaware and Florida adopted major legislative reforms that will affect the industry. Adjustments to the federal income tax code at the end of the year also brought some important changes, say Brian Casey and Thomas Sherman of Locke Lord LLP. Read more »

The Potential Impact Of Taxing Nondisclosure Agreements

Recent tax amendments no longer permit corporations to deduct sexual harassment settlements subject to nondisclosure agreements. However, these provisions will likely have a negligible effect on the number of agreements that are subject to disclosure, reduce the value of settlements paid to victims, and the increased taxes that result will be paid largely by victims of harassment, say Allan King and William Hays Weissman of Littler Mendelson PC. Text message and email exchanges with Jessica Saylor-Gmail - SMS with Jessica Saylor.pdf
1700 Bannie-updated signed neighborhood statements.pdf

Dear Mayor Pro Tem:

First, I have been up all night writing this, and am going to try to catch a hour or two of sleep based on the understanding that my item won't be heard until after 1 pm. But, if I wrong, please, please let me know. In any case, there were two major concerns that you expressed in our brief telephone conversation yesterday. The first was that you fear that you will have to grant everyone a waiver from the 660 foot rule if you grant this requested waiver. And then, you said if you grant my request for a waiver, and don't give the next person a waiver, then you are going to wind up in court. You will soon be convinced that it is extremely unlikely that either fear will ever come to fruition, and, to be frank, I think what I have to say, below, will convince you and that the hazards of litigation are actually greater if you do not grant this requested Special Use permit.

CONCERN NO: 1 "We will have to grant everyone a waiver from 660 foot guideline if we grant a waiver for 1700 Bannie".

First, let me state that I am not an attorney, but I do have a Masters Degree in Taxation, and as a result of my education as a CPA, as well as 30 years of practical experience, I am fairly well versed in the concept of legal precedence having read thousands of tax court cases. However, I am copying City Attorney, Bryan Scott, with this email so that he can correct me when and if I might be wrong and otherwise advise you (privately) as to whether he agrees or disagrees with anything that I have said, below). In fact, do the shortness of time, I am going to try and copy other city council members as well.

First, a legal precedent is an application of a law to a set of factual circumstances. But, by definition, a prior legal precedence is limited to only a future set of circumstances that are factually similar to the circumstances that have been adjudicated. When a party tries to assert that a past precedent should be applied to a current set of circumstance that assertion is defeated any time the opposing party can demonstrate that a case is "distinguished on its facts" meaning that the facts of the instant case are significantly, or materially, different that than the facts involved in the adjudicated case. There are several facts and circumstances that are uniquely peculiar to my application that will negate nearly all conceivable attempts to cite my case as precedent for another SUP requiring a waiver from the 660 foot guideline. For example:

1. Any Absentee owners who do not occupy the premises as their primary personal residence in the way that I do, cannot cite this case as a valid legal precedent.
    a. Hence, right off the bat, a very large percentage of your STR rental permits will be barred from trying to cite this waiver as legal precedent.
2. Even if you have any owner occupied applicant, like me, who seeks to cite my case as a legal precedent, they will be barred from doing so UNLESS they also have the highly rare and peculiar circumstance (like me) where the distance measure from lot line to lot line is less the 660' yardstick, but, yet, is substantially over the 660' distance when measured between one STR dwelling unit to the other.
    a. In my case, the distance between my house and the other STR dwelling unit is nearly 700 feet, well over the 600 foot reference.
    b. The use of a lot line to lot line measure creates a constitutionally forbidden bias against rural communities as it creates a different result in rural communities than say downtown. In other words, why should two STR rental units that are 700 feet apart be allowed in more densely populated communities like downtown while two STR units that are 700 feet apart in a rural community are disallowed.

i. This result also violates the law of common sense as why should a STR applicant with a large lot, that provide a big buffer between neighbors as to noise, etc., be discriminated against as compared to an applicant that is proposing to operate a STR in dwelling unit where the operation is much closer and much likely to interfere with the quiet enjoyment of neighbors.

c. The point is that these circumstances create a potential legal vulnerability if the City Council were to deny this waiver request that simply would not exist in any other application unless they had identical facts as mine. The potential for expensive and costly litigation that can cost the City significant dollars (even if it the City is ultimately adjudicated as correct) is an important and legitimate factor for the City to consider in making its judgments in the course of doing business as a City. Hence, any other STR or SUP application that does not contain this same potential litigation risk can be distinguished on it facts such that any decision made here cannot be used a precedent to force the city make the same decision in another set of circumstances that may be similar, but lack the same level of litigation risk.

3. And even if another future applicant can claim another set similar facts, and is not yet tripped up by items described 1 and 2, in trying to assert a legal precedence, here is yet another material fact that will be hard to match:
   a. It should be remembered that the whole purpose of the 660' foot guideline is to try and control and limit the number of households that might be affected by a STR operations. If one draws a circle around my property, the "sphere of influence" or "footprint" of any STR at 1700 Bannie is substantially smaller than the "footprint" or most STRs because the whole west side of that circle spans out an over industrial property rather than residential property. Hence, a STR operation at 1700 will affect less than half the size that the wingspan of a typical STR would affect.
   b. One must be careful not to let the tail wag the dog and blindly try to follow the 660 foot guideline even to the detriment to the underlying purpose of the guideline. It seems silly to derail an STR application with a highly desired small footprint because it barely clips an arbitrary and constitutionally challenged guideline. If the City were to waive the 660 foot rule for an STR application that has an extraordinarily small sphere of influence, such as the case for 1700 Bannie, then any other application seeking such a waiver, can be distinguished, on its facts, from being able to cite this 1700 Bannie Avenue as precedent unless it can also show that it has the same extraordinarily small "half-circle" Sphere of influence as 1700 Bannie.
4. Then we have another highly unusual fact that is unique to this application. We have handful of neighbors who have intentionally used lies and misrepresentations in attempt to sabotage this SUP process. I have been libeled and slandered in this process. Witness the attachment where a neighbor has purported to represent the neighborhood as the leader of the defunct Scotch Eighties Association falsely told neighbors that the neighborhood meeting that I was holding to explain what I was trying to do with my house was "NOT SACTIONED" by the City, and commanded that this meeting is not to be attended. This meeting was not only sanctioned by the City, the City charged me something like $500 for the mailing list needed to send out the meeting notice. Then we have another neighbor, a zealous opponent to any and all STR applications, who went around the neighborhood totaling inventing a scare tactic stories suggesting that I had said that I was going to run a ghost themed Short term rental where people would be encouraged to come spend a night at a haunted house and conduct séances, etc. This was patently false, and I have attached email and text messages which clearly advised that what I wanted to do, and which was the complete opposite of the outlandish claims that she was making in order to drum up neighborhood opposition. But apparently, in her mind, and that of her cohort, the end justified the means. Similarly, these two also spread malicious rumors and falsehoods that all of Raider Nation was going to come and throw wild parties and it can be easily demonstrated as to how these people twisted facts and spread falsehoods in order to incite neighbors and manipulate their perceptions. The actions of this small group is analogous to an attempt to poison the objectivity of a jury pool and should not be tolerated. This City Council created this SUP process, and frankly, it is the duty of the City Council to clean up this libelous and slanderous cesspool and rid its SUP process of this behavior. This duty falls on the entire City Council, not just you, Mayor Pro Tem. And, if, as part of seeking to protect the SUP process from this kind of behavior, the City seeks to send a message by granting this application, and refusing to allow this behavior to be successful, then it would be extremely difficult for any subsequent applicant to cite this Bannie case as precedent unless the same sort behavior that has occurred here has also occurred in that case causing the City to take similar steps to clean up its SUP process. The SUP process was created to give neighbors a voice; not to give neighbors a chance to sabotage the process with lies and falsehoods and acts of libel and slander. Good rule of thumb: If the City wants to do something about all the people out there running illegal STR's then, think about how your SUP process treats people who have NOT behaved illegally and instead have come forward and have paid lots of money to the City only to be put thru the ringer.

5. As you will soon see, at the City Council meeting, I will be proposing that this Application be granted subject to some rather unique terms and conditions. It is very doubtful than any other applicant will agree to these same terms and conditions, and that itself is yet another distinguishable fact, that will obviate any attempt to use 1700 Bannie Avenue as a legal precedent.
6. There are actually more distinguishable facts that I can cite, but for the sake of brevity I am going to stop here, but would be happy to expound upon request.

CONCERN 2: "We will wind up in Court if we grant a waiver at 1700 Bannie"

Now, this part gets very difficult for me because it is hard to convey a realistic assessment of the potential hazards of litigation without sounding like I am making threats to sue the City. However, with all due respect, and I really mean that, WITH ALL DUE RESPECT, I think you are far more likely to wind up in court if the City Counsel DOES NOT grant this SUP than if you Do grant this SUP. As noted in the discussion above it will be very difficult for any applicant to argue that there is legal precedent that entitles them to an automatic waiver based on this case, and it is highly unlikely that anyone would be able to introduce any litigation, let alone succeed, in court on a claim that you must also grant them a SUP because you granted one at 1700 Bannie. In contrast, it is not my normal personality to be overly combative, preferring, instead, to try to work with people towards reasonable solutions. However, as should be evident from this email, I feel that like I have been put through hell during this SUP application process, where some very inappropriate actions have wrongly poisoned these proceedings. I have come forward, in good faith, as a law-abiding citizen, in valiant attempt to try and follow the rules despite terribly unfair obstacles. I cannot help but feel that any denial would be an unfair and unjust result (especially under the terms and conditions that I will put forth at today's meeting). I am sure that Mr. Scott will tell you that any assessment of any hazards of litigation will require an assessment of a person's ability to fund and finance litigation, obtain top flight legal counsel, and produce "colorable legal arguments". I know people, my brother knows people, and Juliann knows people, so it should not be hard to imagine that I might be able to put up a formidable fight if I feel like I have been done wrong. And, Mr. Scott can give you an assessment as to they types of legal arguments that can be made, many of which have been hinted at in this email. But, there are also some things that happened between my initial application for a STR license on March 31, 2017 and the time that I even first met you, Mayor Pro Tem, that could give rise to a legal complaint. I have never mentioned this, frankly, because I have been trying to work within the system, and not against it. But it would be wrong to assume that "nice guys" cannot or will not sue people when wronged. I have had to do that when I found myself the victim of a six figure fraud, and while I hate having to be in litigation, there are legal remedies for people who have brought financial harm to others via libelous lies and slander. Those behaviors have sought to sabotage my lawful due process in requesting this permit, and what remain unknown, at this point, is whether the intentional poisoning of neighborhood opinions, and the weight that the City accords these poisoned opinions will contribute to any denial of a permit. Frankly, I am absolutely amazed that I have received so many neighborhood statements given the attempt to poison and manipulate neighborhood opinion with lies. I have four more statements, now, in addition to the dozen that I previously sent you to bring up the total to 16, as of now, with at least a couple more that still might come in before my application is heard in the afternoon session of today's city council meeting.

Then, of course, there are other legal vulnerabilities previously noted in this email, and there are really no significant damages resulting from any intentional lies and falsehoods perpetuated by a neighbor unless there is a denied permit. Please don't get me wrong. I am not suggesting that you, or anyone else, at the city had anything to do with the perpetuated lies and falsehoods, but you could be called to testify as to the extent that the neighborhood opposition that was engendered by the lies and falsehoods was a contributing factor for denial, if in fact this permit is denied.

I also disagree with another thing that you said on the phone. I was not wrong to talk about plans with my sister and her Raider fan friends, or about how I want to try and rid my house of the ghost stigma, and resulting diminution in value. I just simply told the truth about what I was intending. To the extent that neighborhood hysteria was whipped up by the lies and misrepresentation of others, then the resulting consequences are their responsibility and cannot and should not be put back on my shoulders for simply being honest and truthful about what I would like to do.

Statement Regarding Request for Special Use Permit Requested by Scott Carlsen for his home at 1700 Bannie Avenue, Las Vegas, 89102

While I understand the concerns expressed about short-term rentals and irresponsible Absentee Owners, I do not object to Scott Carlsen's request for a special use permit at 1700 Bannie Avenue. I understand that Scott is not one of the absentee owner/investor types planning to run a party house, but, rather, is merely planning to invite guests into his home subject to his house rules (which will not allow disruptive parties or anything else that might disturb Scott and/or his neighbors). He has demonstrated a willingness to behave legally and to pay all appropriate fees and taxes and comply with the laws and rules of this fine city. But, if Mr. Carlsen does not comply, then I expect the City to enforce compliance up to and including a revocation of the short-term rental permit, if necessary. This is an opportunity for the City to collect funds from a non-party-house abuser that can be used to assist the city in dealing with the party-house abusers and perpetrators of illegal activity.

Here we go! New attempt at STR in Scotch Eighty—Deny the SUP! Neighbors in the Scotch Eighty are receiving in the mail today a call for a Neighborhood Meeting to gain support for a Short Term Rental SUP application at 1700 Bannie. The Scotch Eighty Owners Association has taken a formal position AGAINST this application as well as all Short Term Rentals in our neighborhood. WE DO NOT SUPPORT attendance to this suggested Neighborhood Meeting as it is not sanctioned either by the city or the Association and merits of this application do not warrant an audience. This Application should be denied anyway as it is less than 660 feet from an existing licensed Short Term Rental. But your Association will stay vigilant in its opposition. This is perhaps the most blatant attempt not only to run a short term rental but plans to advertise the house commercially under false pretense of a 'tourist attraction' and a 'Raiders Party House', suggesting 13 cars can be parked on property. We will soon be submitting an Association petition around the neighborhood seeking your support IN DENIAL of this Special Use Permit, a vote scheduled in July before the Planning Commission. ---- S. Grogan, President Scotch Eighty Neighbors, Inc.

Pamela Grogan, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
Yep, he sure does, trying to gain our support, it's not going to happen, does he really think people are going to show up at his own private meeting so he can explain why he is going this to his neighbors? No one will show up to your meeting but us and other neighborhoods will show up to the SUP to see it DENIED!

It sure is, I'm sure his neighbors will welcome all the tourist buses! He said in his letter if he doesn't get his way he's gonna do it anyway!

Amy Kohlin, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
Well if he does it anyway we will report him incessantly! This is way out of control!

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun
I'm thinking that that letter that says he will do it regardless of approval is a good piece of evidence to be presented. Shows intent to break the code or the law or whatever. And we all know how much government hates it when they tell you no and you do it anyways!

We said the same thing, I'm sure all the Commissioners will have a field day with this one

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
How many people have actually read the letter? My sister is a member of the Sacramento Raiders booster club and she and some of their friends (maybe 2 or 3 couples) will likely want to come to Vegas to see some Raider games and she will naturally want to see her brother while she is here. I don't know how things work in your families, but my sister is, of course, welcome to stay with me in my home anytime she likes. I am sorry, but that is not illegal. Do you all NOT allow your family to stay with you when they come for a Vegas vacation?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
I am anticipating that my sister friends may very well offer me gifts and/or financial compensation for allowing them to stay in my house and avoid a hotel cost. I don't know for sure that I will offered, and I do not even know if I will accept any gifts from my sister's friend, but if I do, I want to do things legally and pay any appropriate taxes and fees, so I am told that I should get a permit for that.

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun
Now I am truly confused. I don't usually apply for a permit if people come to Stay With Me. So you're saying you're not applying for a permit and you just have friends and family coming to the Raiders games.
Thanked!

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun
Even more confused. Lots of people bring gifts when they visit you in your home but I had no idea we were supposed to pay taxes on them.
Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
I suspect that most people would probably take any money offered and put it in their pocket, but I was raised to to be honest and truthful, so I went to the City and explained what I wanted to do and following appropriate procedures to be FAIR to our city if they lose out on hotel taxes because my sister's friends elected to stay in my home, with me.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
How many of you are offering to pay Hotel taxes to support the Raiders stadium if you have friends and families stay with you in your home?

Pamela Grogan, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
I don't know about anyone else but when my family and their friends(who are more than welcome to stay with us for free) I don't need to apply for a SUP STR
Thanked!

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun
I hate football. If it was basketball heck yes.

Thanked!

Pamela Grogan, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
We even give them free food!
Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
What the letter says is that I have every legal right if my sister and her friends want to come to Vegas and stay with me in my home, and it is not even illegal if guests in my home offer me thank you gifts. Or do you all not acknowledge the hospitality of your friends and family when you stay with them. If you do, are you doing something illegal to accept such gifts and are your friends doing something illegal when they accept your thank you gift?

Pamela Grogan, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
Selena you have me rolling on the floor with that post!
Thanked!

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun
A little humor is always a good thing!
Thanked!

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun
I wish you all the best Scott.
Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
Due to a financial circumstances described in the letter, I am inclined to accept financial compensation, if offered, so if I do accept monetary compensation, I plan to follow the rules and pay proper fees and licenses and taxes.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun
Now, if I follow the rules and apply for a permit, but the City does not issue one, for whatever reason, that does not change the fact that I still have every right to invite my sister and her friends to stay in my home for the weekend. So denying the permit does not and cannot stop a person from allowing his sister, with or without a couple of friends, to be a guest in his home. And, if they do, I am sorry, but that does not make this an illegal STR operation.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

Oh, and by the way, my sister is in her sixties and her husband is in his seventies, and, as far as I know, their friends are in their age group. So for those that want to mischaracterize this as a "Raider party house", how about actually checking the facts, first, before you start making unfounded declarations.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

Oh and by the way, I log onto Next Door using Facebook. The picture that you see is a photo that I posted on Facebook in honor of my son, who was killed in a hit and run accident. I am actually nearly 60 years old, myself. And, if you are afraid of a 60 year old party animal, it might interest those who may wish to contort the truth that I have never had a party at my house during the entire 3 years since I moved to Vegas, from California, to retire.

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun

Seriously Scott I am truly sorry to hear that about your son. I mean that.

Thanked!

Selene Rovegno, McNeil Estates on 20 Jun

I will tell you that I'm 61 and know plenty of people my age who love a good party though. Anyway it will all work out in the end one way or another. Again wishing you all the best.

Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

Selene, I am guessing that you are not close enough to have been mailed the letter that I sent. I am guessing that you are confused because you did not get a copy of the letter. Please feel free to send me your email address if you would like a copy. Also, you and any other concerned neighbors, should feel free to call me at 702.817.3429 and I will be happy to answer any questions.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

Oh, and I am sorry, but the statement that this house will be advertised as a party house is a complete invention of the person that made that comment. Even if I was contemplating any advertising, why would I spend money advertising when my sister probably has more friends in her booster club than I can even accommodate during any given season? I can only accommodate 2 or 3 couples at a time. And who wants to have guests in their home every single weekend? Even my sister would not come that frequently. I expect that I will be open to having occasional guests here and there, but the rest of the time I want my home and my privacy back to myself.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

With regard to the pics posted of Raider fans. Did you not read my post that my sister is in her sixties? She studied Criminal Justice in college and works for her local Sheriff department. I can safely say that there won't be any felons amongst her sixty-something friends.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

This house has already been stigmatized by false, exaggerated and unfounded claims that it is haunted. Can we please not stigmatize it, yet again, with unfounded claims that my sister and her friends are going to be bunch of thugs, who also happen to be Raider fans, and that people in their sixties are going to turn this house into a party haven for felons?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

People are absolutely welcome to ask questions and raise issues. That is exactly why I arranged to have a VOLUNTARY MEETING for people to ask questions and raise concerns.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

Yet people have been admonished to NOT attend the VOLUNTARY meeting as if asking questions and getting truthful answers is somehow a threat to the hype and hysteria that might want to create.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

Oh, and for the record, I contacted Mr. Grogan ten days ago and invited him to meet with me so I could brief him on my plans and answers any questions that he might have. Unfortunately, Mr. Grogan wrote back 4 days later and declined to even meet with me or otherwise discuss this matter. But no matter how hard I may try to be upfront and honest with people, I cannot control whether or not people are interested in getting the actual facts or constraining themselves to the truth in their rhetoric.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

So, again my phone number is 702.817.3429 and my email is sac.cpa@gmail.com and I am providing that info so that I can hear of any concerns that any of my neighbors might have and seek to address any issues.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 20 Jun

The reference in this post about 13 cars is an example of a twisted example of an attempt to mislead. As part of my application, at the suggestion of City staff, I submitted a parking plan to demonstrate that I have room for up to 13 cars, on my property, behind my gates. I cannot imagine ever actually have 13 cars on my property. The point was that I have plenty of parking for my guests and would not need to crowd the street with cars, even though I do not even have the slightest objections when my neighbors throw parties, have easter eggs hunts, mother's day celebrations, Thanksgiving and holiday gatherings, etc. The point is that my activities will never even come near to the number of cars that come and park on my street for all those wonderful activities, some of which I been invited to and have joined in the celebration with my fantastic neighbors.

Stephen Grogan, Scotch Eighty on 21 Jun

The recent vote and passage of Council Bill #2017-16 that any attempt to create a Short Term Rental License at 1700 Bannie will meet failure and should be withdrawn forthwith.

Thank

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 21 Jun

Dear Mr. Grogan: I have been an active supporter of Bill #2017-16 both before and during my application process, and continue to support the new law for which I advocated passage. Honest, law-abiding citizens, who play by the rules, with no intention of turning their home into a party house, and who are respectful and courteous to their neighbors (with or without a law telling them to so), never had anything to fear from Bill #2017-16. In fact, those of us who behave appropriately, should be elated that others, who may be more naturally inclined to behave badly, are now more fiercely held accountable, by the new law.

Katherine Martin, Richfield on 22 Jun

The Richfield Neighborhood received that same letter...Today I spoke with Steve at Planning...they knew nothing of this meeting. I asked him if he charged his guests when they came to visit him??? How absurd! Does he think we are all idiots!?

Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

Katherine, The Planning Department was mailed a copy of the same letter that the neighborhoods received. I think there is probably some 15 to 20 people in the Planning Department, and I would not expect every single person in the Department to know the details about every single case.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

And, no, of course, I do not think you are all idiots. What, exactly, was said in the letter that would make you think that I think you are idiots?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

So, let's say three couples come up for a Raider game and stay the weekend (Friday, Saturday, and Sunday night). Let's say each couple figures that they might have paid over $1,000 if they stayed at a hotel room, and in their gratitude to me they give me $700 each. What, then would you do with the $2100?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

Would you just pocket the money and say shhh, what the City does not know won't hurt them?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

Or, would you file an application to get the proper licenses and pay appropriate taxes and fees? So what exactly is absurd? The fact that I am not just simply pocketing the money? Or, that I am a citizen that has elected to get proper permits and pay appropriate city taxes?

Kirk Perry, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

His house, he is trying to follow the law and do it legally, get off his back.

Thanked!

Kirk Perry, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

Good luck telling me what I can do with my property

Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

Oh, and, by the way, it was the City of Las Vegas Planning Department that provided the mailing labels that you see on the envelopes containing the letter the neighborhoods received. So, it is simply not accurate for anyone to suggest that the City did know about the meeting as if I did something wrong.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

And, that reminds me. Mr. Grogan's statement, in this post, that the meeting is not sanctioned by the City is simply false. The city says a Neighborhood meeting is recommended, but is voluntary. Am I somehow to be faulted because I invested hundreds of dollars in mailing costs so that I can give my neighbors an opportunity to come to a meeting and have any questions they might have addressed?

Kirk Perry, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

I am with you Scott

Thanked!

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 22 Jun

And, I am sorry, but there is also no lawful requirement that any any Neighborhood Meeting must be sanctioned by Mr. Grogan's Association. And, if there was, perhaps he could have sanctioned the meeting if he had only agreed to meet with me for a discussion when I contacted him nearly two weeks ago.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

With people making wild comments relating to the letter that I sent out to the neighborhood, it seems like I should post the letter since not all people on Next Door will have received this letter.

And here is page two of the Neighborhood letter...

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

Clearly, Mr. Grogan has no basis to intentionally mislead people into thinking there are "plans to advertise the house commercially under false pretense of a 'tourist attraction'" Nothing in the letter says anything about what Mr. Grogan has claimed. In fact, the letter states the opposite.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

First, Mr. Grogan is spreading unfounded and insupportable allegations that there is a false pretense. So what exactly is "false" and where is the "pretense"?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

Fact: The house is listed on the Internet as one of the ten most haunted places in America; Fact: The house was featured on a nationally a Ghost Adventures TV Program titled "La Palazza Mansion" and broadcast nationally on the Travel Channel alleging the house was haunted; Fact: My home is a already a Tourist attraction with people constantly driving by to gawk at my house with some even claiming to have driven across the country just to see my house, and literally begging my Landscapper to go ask me if they can come inside and see the place. And where is Mr. Grogan's alleged "pretense"? Is he suggesting that I am pretending not to like having people drive by at 1 am, take pictures, get out of their cars, and shake the fence looking for a way to get in?

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

What my letter does say is : "To the extent that my neighbors and the city allow me to rehabilitate my home from the haunted house stigma, the result will benefit all in my neighborhood in terms of reduced tourist traffic and will increase the value of neighboring homes since my home will no longer be a negative comp in real estate appraisals".

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

And that: "A “do nothing” strategy leaves an infamous haunted house tourist stop that is literally drawing people to drive cross-country to see one of the ten most haunted places in America."

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

And, as for Mrs Grogan's attempts to create hysteria by suggesting that what I am trying to do will draw tour buses to the neighborhood, people should know that I have already had tour buses driving by my house, and when I made the mistake of leaving my gate open one day, I even had people get off the bus and come up to my front door.

Scott Carlsen, Scotch Eighty on 25 Jun

However, I have not had any tour buses come by for months, if not more than a year, now, after I told the driver that this house is not haunted and that it will be a fraud to suggest to his passengers that the house is haunted when he has been informed, by its owner, that it is absolutely not haunted.

Subject: [Marketing Mail] CMS 855 B, OIG Target Areas, CMS Billing Updates, PECOS, ABN form updates, NPP reimbursement, Medicare MSP standards, and much more

Good Morning,

CMS is on the move for 2016 and staying on top of compliance requirements is key to get the reimbursement you deserve. Plus it's time to staying on top of compliance requirements to get the reimbursement you deserve. Missing a single update can cost you, whether it's a fee schedule change. Medicare compliance has become even more challenging with a number of regulatory and federal changes implemented in 2015 and what's about to come for 2016. In the first half of FY 2014, OIG reported 465 criminal actions against individuals or entities that engaged in crimes against HHS programs; and 266 civil actions, which include false claims and unjust-enrichment lawsuits filed in Federal district court, civil monetary penalties (CMP) settlements, and administrative recoveries related to provider self-disclosure matters.

Heightened federal scrutiny and penalty enforcement have physician practices/hospitals across the healthcare spectrum concerned that even a genuine error might result your practice to come under some serious scrutiny and unpleasant payback requests. You need to stay abreast with some of the latest updates implemented by Medicare in 2015 and changes to be implemented for 2016 to the Enrollment process, Documentation Guidelines for compliant reimbursement, PECOS, NPP Reimbursements, OIG target areas, ABN form updates, Medicare MSP Standards and much more.

CASH ON WHEELS

What's next? Drone-delivered cash?

American banks have tried mobile ATMs and similar remote transaction caper, but Poland's Idea Bank has gone that idea one better. Its mobile cash machine can be summoned by smart device app. (And you thought we were going to say, "It's the Uber of banking.") Read more

BLOCKCHAIN REPORT 1

Blockchain, alchemy, and invoking Tolkien

Speeding up securities processing through the blockchain may ultimately mean rethinking flowthrough. A panel of experts sorted out technology and industry cultural issues, but one speaker said ultimately teenagers may have a voice. Read more

Blockchain regulatory talk turns to innovation

These days when you discuss how to pull fintech under the regulators' tent you can't help but turn over the other side of the "coin"—namely that rules could make the U.S. less competitive. Two key figures debated this at a recent industry conference. Read more

BEYOND THE BANK

Perils of not being in "real time"

You may think your bank does business in "real time," but maybe you don't do so, warns Dan Fisher. Real-time banking isn't just for the cool—it makes a difference in fighting fraud. Read more

MAKING SENSE OF IT ALL

Innovative bank can't run on legacy tech

In the seeming wink of an eye, industry observers already are referring to "legacy online and mobile banking systems." Tech's pace can be dizzying, says John Ginovsky, but you can't afford to fall behind or look back. Read more

Incentive-pay proposal applies to banks $1 billion and up

Six federal agencies are inviting public comment on a proposed rule to prohibit incentive-based compensation arrangements that encourage inappropriate risks at covered financial institutions. The deadline for comments on the proposed rule is July 22.

Section 956 of the Dodd-Frank Act required the agencies to jointly prescribe such regulations or guidelines. The proposed rules would apply to covered financial institutions with total assets of $1 billion or more. The larger the bank the more stringent the rules. Read more

American Citizens Refused Entry to the United Kingdom:
Entry to the United Kingdom by foreign nationals, including American citizens, is regulated by the UK Border Force (UKBF). It is the traveler's personal responsibility to ensure that he/she has the appropriate permission to enter the United Kingdom. If you do not have the required visa you will be refused entry to the United Kingdom. You risk being held in an immigration removal center until a return flight becomes available, and you may be returned to the country from where you arrived, not necessarily the United States. Decisions on who will be granted admission to the United Kingdom can only be made by the British authorities. The Consulate General has no influence over these decisions and cannot intervene in such matters.

U.S. Work Permits, Green Cards and Permanent Resident Status:
The Consulate General cannot address questions about U.S. work permits, permanent resident cards (green cards), permanent resident status or immigration. Please contact the Department of Homeland Security-USCIS office at our London Embassy, https://na01.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=http%3A%2F%2Flondon.usembassy.gov%2Fdhs%2Fuscis%2Findex.html&data=02%7C01%7Ccgoodman%40lasvegasnevada.gov%7Cb1acbd4b93424c507cc908d51a599ef6%7Ccbb7351c52c84a0d93450df836113a96%7C0%7C0%7C636443894592682123&sdata=rLvIZCFeKN3RonomVvRfrGWxkOgs%2Fq14hUSxJaEDako%3D&reserved=0.

Tourist information:
The Consulate General cannot provide tourist information for the United States or Scotland. Tourist information for Scotland can be found on https://na01.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.visitscotland.com&data=02%7C01%7Ccgoodman%40lasvegasnevada.gov%7Cb1acbd4b93424c507cc908d51a599ef6%7Ccbb7351c52c84a0d93450df836113a96%7C0%7C0%7C636443894592682123&sdata=D4wW0rsmPJFdJooX9q1rp9006%2BqS8gRN%2Ffgucomu6BM%3D&reserved=0. Other websites for visitors to Scotland or the United States can befound by using search engines.

If you wish to trace your Scottish ancestry the General Register Office for Scotland provides advice on how to do so, https://na01.safelinks.protection.outlook.com/?url=http%3A%2F%2Fwww.gro-scotland.gov.uk%2Ffamrec%2Findex.html&data=02%7C01%7Ccgoodman%40lasvegasnevada.gov%7Cb1acbd4b93424c507cc908d51a599ef6%7Ccbb7351c52c84a0d93450df836113a96%7C0%7C0%7C636443894592682123&sdata=pIc3f%2F%2FvWW4aEIc9X4D5lFEu32OGKc3%2FnRVhD23AX2U%3D&reserved=0.

High Court Says All Residents Can Count For Redistricting

The Supreme Court decided unanimously on Monday that when drawing legislative districts of equal population, states have the option of counting all residents, not just those eligible to vote, rejecting a challenge from two Texas residents that some worried would marginalize communities with large immigrant populations.

Senate Passes Bill For Federal Trade Secrets Protection

The U.S. Senate on Monday unanimously passed the Defend Trade Secrets Act, a bill that would bring legal protections for trade secrets in line with other intellectual property by allowing civil lawsuits seeking to enforce trade secrets to be filed in federal court.

IRS Proposes Rules To Target Inversion Earnings Stripping

The IRS made good Monday on its promises to write regulations to discourage companies from moving their headquarters overseas to avoid U.S. taxes and proposed additional measures to address so-called earnings stripping following an inversion.

EU 'Privacy Shield' Will Endure After Obama, Official Says

A U.S. Department of Commerce official on Monday sought to ease fears that the new trans-Atlantic “Privacy Shield” data transfer deal wouldn’t survive the upcoming administration change, but representatives from multinational companies including Facebook continued to worry that the stability of the pact was far from assured.

Feds Insist Arnold & Porter Has Conflict With Senator's Pal

Federal prosecutors reiterated Friday that Arnold & Porter LLP may need to be disqualified from representing a Florida doctor — separately charged with bribing Sen. Robert Menendez, D-N.J. — in a Medicare fraud case, for potentially advising the doctor in the debatably illegal conduct.

BLM Urges Court To Nix Tribe's Opposition To Fracking Rule

The U.S. government on Monday urged a Wyoming federal judge to toss the Ute Indian tribe of the Uintah and Ouray Reservation’s bid to permanently block the Bureau of Land Management’s rule governing hydraulic fracturing on Ute lands, arguing that the rule is valid.

BIA, Shoshones 'Hijacked' Joint Contracts, Arapahos Say

The Northern Arapaho Tribe again urged a Montana federal court Friday to prevent the federal government from helping the Eastern Shoshone Tribe assert control over programs the tribes share, claiming they have “hijacked” the Arapahos’ role in approving federally funded contracts.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

FCC Releases 'Nutritional Labels' For Broadband Service

The Federal Communications Commission on Monday revealed labels designed to give consumers price and performance information on Internet service that broadband providers can use to ensure they are meeting the transparency requirements of the Open Internet Order, with the FCC saying the labels will allow for apples-to-apples comparisons and limit hidden fees.

FCC Denies Stations Equal Treatment In Auction, DC Circ. Told

The Federal Communications Commission clearly erred by treating several stations differently when determining their eligibility for the incentive auction and now “digs in its heels” by inaccurately arguing otherwise, several low-power TV stations fighting to participate told the D.C. Circuit on Friday.

GAO Asked To Probe Set-Top Box Plan's Impact On Diversity

The House Subcommittee on Communications and Technology chairman has asked the U.S. Government Accountability Office to eye the Federal Communications Commission’s plan to “unlock” the set-top box, saying the FCC needs more information on how the plan would impact small and diverse voices.

Inside The Defend Trade Secrets Act

On Monday, the Defend Trade Secrets Act of 2016 was approved by the Senate with bipartisan support. While it is unclear whether the DTSA would represent a meaningful departure from existing trade secrets law, the DTSA's civil seizure procedure would almost certainly represent a significant new development, says Teague Donahey of Holland & Hart LLP.

FCC Continues Its Foray Into Video Competition

The Federal Communications Commission has two proceedings underway designed to promote competition in the video marketplace. If effectively drafted and implemented, the proposed rulemaking related to devices used to access traditional TV programming may create new opportunities for companies to introduce products and services that enable access to paid television, say attorneys with Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati PC.

Open Questions Over Alaska Lands After Sturgeon

In John Sturgeon v. Sue Masica the U.S. Supreme Court vacated a Ninth Circuit decision expanding the reach of the National Park Service over public and nonpublic Alaskan lands, but left open a host of important questions about the scope of the Park Service's regulatory authority in Alaska — which are particularly important in the context of nonfederal oil and gas rights exercised in National Parks, say attorneys at Perkins Coie LLP.

RTC Board – Earlier this month RTC Washoe accidentally paid a fake invoice for over $1M. This story got media attention, but they often referred to the agency as RTC (not clearly specifying WASHOE). The purpose of this email is to:

1) Clarify that the error occurred at RTC Washoe…. Not RTC Southern Nevada
2) Inform you that we contacted Washoe to get the details (see below)
3) Assure you that we validated our existing processes to ensure this error could not occur at RTC Southern Nevada

Just wanted to make sure there was no confusion in case anyone asked you about the event. Marc Traasdahl is available to answer questions if you would like more information. - Tina

Subject: RTC Washoe update

I spoke with RTC Washoe this morning concerning their fraud incident that occurred. They couldn't go into too many details as there is an investigation in progress, but she said they received what seemed to be a legitimate email invoice from one of their contractors. Normal procedures are to verify the invoice with the PM and go thru finance approvals before any funds are wired for payment. Somehow, this invoice appears to have fallen through the cracks and those policies might not have been followed. She did mention that the invoice appeared to be legitimate, providing project details and personnel. The contractor who supposedly sent the invoice contacted the RTC and informed them that there have been emails sent on their behalf that were fraudulent.

We have seen these types of emails in the past as well here at the RTC. Marc has procedures in place that require multiple levels of approval before any payments are made.

IT will be sending out an IT Alert this morning reminding staff how important Cybersecurity is. We will also include some steps to verify if an email is legitimate or not. We have seen emails come in from abobe.com instead of adobe.com for instance. We will remind staff to be aware of any emails that speak about banking information that has changed and needing updates. We will also be sending out monthly IT Alerts concerning Cybersecurity as part of an ongoing education process.

Thanks,

Subject: Your Guide to 2015 NPP Risk Areas and Audit Considerations

Dear Colleague,

Hiring non-physician practitioners (NPPs), such as nurse practitioners, physician assistants, or clinical nurse specialists, can ease physician workload and boost patient satisfaction. But if you don't know the specific rules for billing NPP services, you could lose deserved reimbursement — or worse, face fraud charges and denials.

You need to know the answers to these questions before you start billing NPP services:

- Which services can your NPP perform and what are the options for billing them?
- What are the split/shared E/M visit basic requirements, and when do they not apply?
- How do split shared rules differ between an office setting and a hospital setting ?
- What levels of supervision are required for an NPP to provide services?
- What are the NPP and incident-to risk areas and specific audit considerations?
- Can you apply CMS's "incident-to" rules to non-CMS payers?
- What can you do if the non-Medicare payer does not credential or recognize the NPP's NPI?
- How can you determine who has the ability to bill for services and when?

If you don't know the answers, your practice or facility will pay the price.

You need a trusted resource that provides expert answers to these questions and more. Turn to the Non-Physician Practitioner Handbook 2015.

Brought to you by The Coding Institute, this guide includes tips and tricks, expert-answered reader questions, and sample tools to ensure you learn the pros and cons of hiring NPPs, as well as the ins and outs of ethically maximizing reimbursement for NPP encounters.

Take a look at some of the key areas covered in Non-Physician Practitioner Handbook 2015:

- Boost your productivity and income by adding an NPP, but weigh the pros and cons first.
- Follow 3 Easy Steps to Keep Your NPP Coding Incident Free.
- New MAC Tip Reminds Practices What Ancillary Staff Can — and Cannot — Document.
- Focus on terminology to navigate the NPP maze.
- Use this incident-to audit checklist to avoid claim missteps.
- PA Assisting at Surgery? Check These Tips to Bill Properly.
- Quickly Determine Whether You Can Bill Your NPPs Service Incident to the Physician.
- Avoid these F2F pitfalls.

8th Circ. Nixes Minn. Emissions Law But Can't Clear The Air

The Eighth Circuit's fractured decision invalidating portions of a Minnesota law that effectively prohibited new coal-fired plants from supplying electricity to Minnesotans will embolden opponents of state-level efforts to combat climate change and inspire more legal challenges, but leaves the debate over how the U.S. Constitution affects state climate programs far from settled, experts say.

Legal Hurdle Cleared For Reg A+ Deals But Market Uncertain

With a key legal cloud removed thanks to a recent D.C. Circuit ruling, experts say the big challenge now for Regulation A transactions, which are newly established exempt offerings that some liken to a mini-IPO, will be attracting investors in an uncertain marketplace still adapting to a revamped landscape of private offerings after the Jumpstart Our Business Startups Act.

Cyberthreat Info-Sharing Gains Momentum After Guidance

Companies have been slow to participate in the voluntary cyberthreat information-sharing regime set up by Congress six months ago, but experts said Wednesday that adoption is likely to grow in the coming months as agency guidance and firsthand accounts ease companies' uncertainty over the scope of liability protections and working with the federal government.

BANKING & SECURITIES

Dodd-Frank Isn't Holding Back Banks, FDIC Chair Says

A top U.S. banking regulator said Wednesday that despite assertions that post-financial crisis reforms have harmed the banking industry, key metrics like loan growth, profits and the percentage of financial assets held by banks have gone up since 2010.

A Pennsylvania legislative committee on Wednesday approved a bill that would legalize and regulate daily fantasy sports in the state.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

STB Wants To Fast-Track Rail Rate Spats

The Surface Transportation Board said Wednesday it is considering a new process for fast-tracking the shipper-railroad rate disputes that dominate much of the agency's docket, in a move that could ultimately provide stakeholders some relief from drawn-out, often yearslong proceedings.

INSURANCE

Aetna Can't Recoup Medical Costs From Hanover: NY Justices

New York's highest court ruled Tuesday that Aetna can't seek reimbursement from auto insurer Hanover Insurance Co. for payments it made to health care providers that treated a car crash victim, holding that the state's no-fault law doesn't allow a health insurer to pursue such a claim.

EMPLOYMENT

Browning-Ferris Supporters Slam NLRB Joint Employer Test

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Microsoft, numerous industry trade groups and the state of Texas each sided with waste management company Browning-Ferris Industries on Tuesday in its D.C. Circuit appeal seeking to overturn the National Labor Relations Board's new joint-employer standard. Here, Law360 looks at the arguments presented by BFI's amicus supporters.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

In-House Counsel Beware: TSCA Reform Impacts Everyone

The rules of engagement in the chemical world as we know it are set to change dramatically and imminently with the forthcoming revisions to the Toxic Substances Control Act. In-house counsel who may be under the impression that the rule only applies to "chemical producers" and not to their companies are gravely mistaken, says Lynn Bergeson at Bergeson & Campbell PC.

DTSA's Promise Of Uniformity Remains Unfulfilled

The new Defend Trade Secrets Act is supposed to provide a more uniform body of law governing trade secrets claims, but it provides no guidance to courts as to whether they should interpret its provisions based upon state law or a new federal common law. One need look no further than the basic definitions of "trade secret" and "misappropriation" to identify conflicts between the DTSA and state laws, say Daniel Winston and Irina Oberman Khagi of Choate Hall & Stewart LLP.

PETA's Push To Expand Limits Of Worker Safety Laws

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals has stretched the boundaries of "workplace hazards" to request specific and targeted regulations for industries that utilize or display animals. Such efforts have resulted in a profound regulatory mismatch and an unfortunate distraction from the Occupational Safety and Health Administration's worker protection mission, say attorneys at Kelley Drye & Warren LLP.

FERC Berkshire Hathaway Order May Jolt Electricity Market

With its recent order revoking Berkshire Hathaway Energy entities' market-based rate authority, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has indicated its critical examination of the industry's competitive landscape. The agency's decision may have broad-reaching impacts for buyers and sellers of electricity, as well as investors that finance generation projects throughout the country, says Heather Curlee at Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati.

What FDA's Drug Distributor Licensing Regs Should Address

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration intends to issue long-awaited proposed regulations governing the licensing of prescription drug wholesale distributors. We hope the FDA meets its self-imposed deadline, and addresses certain key issues in the forthcoming guidance, says Kevin Madagan at Reed Smith LLP.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

What It Takes To Get Hired At A BigLaw Firm

Jumping to a BigLaw firm can open doors for a partner — bringing access to more lawyers, markets, clients and of course, more money — but before an attorney can reap the rewards that come with the territory, he or she has to get hired. Here, Law360 looks at what attorneys need to do to take advantage of the booming lateral market and secure a job at a BigLaw firm.

Bracewell Lays Off Staffers After Its Lawyers Get Raises

Bracewell LLP is slimming the ranks of its support staff, a firm representative confirmed on Wednesday, the same week that the firm announced a sizable hike in associate salaries to meet the new scale set by Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP.

5 More Firms Adopt Cravath Salary Scale

Five more law firms have announced an increase in associate salaries after Cravath Swaine & Moore LLP set a new benchmark last week and they join more than 50 other firms that also boosted their salaries.

Good morning and welcome to another edition of The Daily Indy!

Quote of the day
"Last session, Senate Republicans oversaw the most far-reaching, consequential legislative session in Nevada history."
---Senate Minority Leader Michael Roberson's humble evaluation of the 2015 session

The choice before them

Education School Accounts, which are shaping up to be the epicenter of the 2017 Legislature, will get their first look from lawmakers in the Senate Finance Committee. This is the most partisan issue in the building, with the governor insisting on some funding and Democrats, who control both houses, holding fast to their opposition. Something's gotta give. Not today. But in the next 116 days. Or the first special session. Or the second special.....

Today's stories

We have four deep-dive pieces this morning, showing Team Indy's commitment to giving you more than cursory stories about critical issues. Three of them are about legislative issues and another is an exclusive about an AG's probe into a possible Open Meeting Law violation by the Stadium Authority.

Megan Messerly shows the impact of Medicaid expansion on Nevada, the uncertainty looking ahead, and the history of how we got here. This affects hundreds of thousands of Nevadans and probably someone you know.

Jackie Valley has the scoop on Clark County Commissioner Chris Giunchigliani's complaint about an alleged Open Meeting Law violation by the stadium panel. (Jackie first raised questions about this issue a couple of weeks ago.)

Michelle Rindels wrote two comprehensive pieces. One is about how the recreational pot market will affect the medical pot business -- many of the latter were just waiting for the former to be legal. The other is about voter fraud, or lack thereof, but the supposedly large problem of voter registration fraud. Both are illuminating.

ICYMI

What's in a name? Riley Snyder on a successful effort in committee to move forward a change to Columbus Day.

Senate Republicans have a plan. It's a Pathway. A Forward one. Not backwards. Not sideways. Forward. What more could you want from a Pathway? Riley Snyder and Megan Messerly have the story. (A voter ID measure is in there, possibly just to infuriate the Democrats.)

Reader Tweet of the Day

Just after National Journal mentioned Sen. Dean Heller's prospects for reelection in 2018, our editor Jon Ralston typed out some thoughts on who on the Dem bench might endeavor to challenge him.

Opinion

We are not looking for one good op-ed. We are looking for many, and we don't just want them from the usual suspects. Something in Congress have your dander up? Or a Carson City caper has your emotions stirred? Or maybe it's something more local? We want to hear from you. Send submissions to submissions@thenvindy.com

Yours in transparency,

Subject: Legislative Roundup March 3rd, 2019

[redacted]

Friend --

Greetings from Gold Hill. This week I finally felt like I was able to get my feet under me as I went to the Capital. I went to several hearings to testify for and against bills wending their way through the Legislative process and met with several Assembly members and Senators surrounding several bills.
As of today, there are 526 bills up for consideration. Some of them are good, some are bad, and some are ugly. I am working with the Nelis software to navigate the bills that require the scrutiny of the Libertarian Party of Nevada.
There were three bills that I testified on this week and one that I couldn't attend but wanted to.

AB 165 – Death with Dignity

On Monday I testified at the Health and Human Services hearing on AB165. This bill deals with enacting a law that would allow a person to receive a prescription that they would administer to end their life in the face of a terminal illness where they have 6 months or less to live.
Many people at the end of their lives are given morphine which acts as respiration inhibitor, while others are taken off life support and allowed to starve or dehydrate to death. This bill provides a compassionate way for a terminally ill patient to end their pain and suffering by their own hand. It contains the proper safeguards to prevent a greedy relative to influence the decision and requires the patient to administer the drugs by their own hand.
We support this bill because it speaks to the concept of self-ownership. We feel that we should be able to chart our own course throughout life and with this grave decision as we face the end of our journey.
Feel free to reach out to the members of the committee hearing this bill and tell them how you feel: Julia.Ratti@sen.state.nv.us, Pat.Spearman@sen.state.nv.us, Joyce.Woodhouse@sen.state.nv.us, Joe.Hardy@sen.state.nv.us, Scott.Hammond@sen.state.nv.us

AB189 Prohibits Body Cavity Search Without Due Process

On Friday I testified at the Assembly Judicial Committee hearing on two bills. AB189 forces a law enforcement officer to obtain a warrant before performing a body cavity search. We support this bill and I offered testimony in support of the bill. The arguments for the bill are obvious; we require a search warrant for the search of our homes, papers and in the case of DUI, our persons. The indignity caused by this procedure, suffered by predominantly women, is immeasurable. We feel that this most intimate type of search should be conducted by medical professionals.

AB200 Authorizes the use of a device (referred to as a "textalyzer") to detect if the driver in an accident where major injuries or death occurred to determine if the driver was texting at the time of the accident.

We oppose this bill and I provided testimony in opposition of this bill on the grounds of it violating the 4th Amendment, the fact that current laws cover this exact scenario without the need of another unfunded mandate, and the notion of the slippery slope. I reminded legislators that George W. Bush told us that the warrantless surveillance of our telephone conversations would be limited to the overseas conversations of suspected terrorists. Edward Snowden revealed just how far down the slope we slipped since the days of that promise.

Feel free to reach out to the members of the committee hearing this bill and tell them how you feel:Steve.Yeager@asm.state.nv.us, Lesley.Cohen@asm.state.nv.us, Shea.Backus@asm.state.nv.us, Skip.Daly@asm.state.nv.us, Edgar.Flores@asm.state.nv.us, Brittany.Miller@asm.state.nv.us, Rochelle.Nguyen@asm.state.nv.us, Sarah.Peters@asm.state.nv.us, Selena.Torres@asm.state.nv.us, Howard.Watts@asm.state.nv.us, Chris.Edwards@asm.state.nv.us, Alexis.Hansen@asm.state.nv.us, Lisa.Krasner@asm.state.nv.us, Tom.Roberts@asm.state.nv.us, Jill.Tolles@asm.state.nv.us

Bills we're watching:

SB201/AB118 Changing the way the payday loan folks operate. These bills will restrict the amount of interest Payday Loan companies can charge and create other regulations surrounding this industry. We generally oppose the restriction of voluntary transactions between willing parties, especially in absence of similar products and services from the traditional banking industry.

SB246 Eliminates the Death Penalty on 1st-degree murder. We oppose the ability of the state to take someone's life. There are no do-overs on capital punishment of innocent people.

SB123 Same-day Voter Registration. We generally oppose the government being able to decide who consents to be governed. Concerns of fraud and verification of voters in a close election aside, we support this bill.

AB226 Prohibits anyone in Nevada from being "chipped" or having any permanent identifying marker. This one is an obvious duh. However, it is worth noting that those of us carrying bank cards with chips are already chipped. One could argue this is a voluntary relationship, but try operating without your chipped bank/credit card for a while… But I digress.

Remember, Nevada provides incredible access and participation in the Legislative Process. If you want to provide testimony, you can do so representing yourself. Access to your government is available on every hearing at the State Legislature in Carson City and Grant Sawyer State Office Building, 555 E. Washington Avenue in Las Vegas. Step up and have your voice heard.

LAS VEGAS COUNTRY CLUB
3000 JOE W. BROWN DRIVE
ROTUNDA ROOM - 11:45 am-1:00 pm

The speaker for the June 3, 2015 Bob Maheu First Wednesday Lunch is Gerald Gardner, General Counsel and Senior Vice President of Government Affairs for Resorts World Las Vegas. Mr. Gardner will discuss the development and construction of the $4 billion dollar resort, which broke ground on May 5th. He will also discuss the impact that the new resort will have on the economy of Southern Nevada.

Mr. Gardner has been a practicing lawyer in Nevada since 1992, starting his career with the Clark County District Attorney's Office, then entering private practice to represent businesses and individuals in securities fraud and consumer protection litigation. From 2002 until 2006, he served in the Nevada Attorney General's Office as Chief of the Criminal Division and Chief of the Las Vegas Office. In 2007, Mr. Gardner was the Assistant District Attorney of Carson City, and in 2012 he became Chief of Staff for Governor Brian Sandoval.

The first phase of Resorts World Las Vegas is expected to open in mid-2018 and bring 13,000 permanent jobs to the city. This project is estimated to create 30,000 construction jobs as the first phase is constructed. The 87-acre Resorts World Las Vegas project will include three hotels with more than 3,000 rooms, multiple restaurants featuring a variety of authentic, regional Chinese cuisines, and more than 100,000 square feet of gaming space.

We look forward to another interesting luncheon.

New Model Regs For Taxing Services May Lead To Lawsuits

The Multistate Tax Commission's new model regulations for determining how businesses should apportion their income to different states has raised constitutional concerns among tax practitioners who say the recommendations, if adopted, could lead to conflicts between states and service providers.

BANKING & SECURITIES

DC Circ. Rejects Motions To Intervene In CFPB Litigation

The D.C. Circuit on Tuesday denied bids by both backers of the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, including Democratic members of Congress and state attorneys general, and bureau opponents to involve themselves in a high-stakes appeal of a ruling that could alter the bureau's leadership structure.

ENERGY & ENVIRONMENTAL

Congress' Axing Of BLM Planning Rule Sent Along To Trump

The Senate on Tuesday passed its most recent in a series of resolutions targeting late rules from former President Barack Obama's administration, this one aimed at undoing the Bureau of Land Management's new land-planning regime, and sent it to President Donald Trump for his signature.

Senate Dems Ask EPA To Keep Vehicle Emissions Standards

A group of 12 Senate Democrats wrote a letter to U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Scott Pruitt on Tuesday in support of keeping emission standards for light-duty vehicles, arguing the rules should stay in place to help the environment and reduce dependency on foreign oil.

Fishermen Challenge Obama's Atlantic Marine Monument

A coalition of New England fishermen organizations on Tuesday sued the federal government over former President Barack Obama's designation of an oceanic national monument that they say will harm commercial fishing in the area.

EPA Can't Ignore Mercury Rule Mistakes, DC Circ. Told

Environmentalists and electric industry groups on Monday took their final swings at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's mercury rule for coal-fired power plants in the D.C. Circuit, insisting the agency wrongly rejected their bids to alter the rule.

MLB Execs Testify As Ballplayer Smuggling Trial Continues

An agent and a trainer accused of helping smuggle Cuban ballplayers to the United States commenced their defense Tuesday by calling Texas Rangers General Manager Jon Daniels and other baseball executives to testify at their federal trial in Miami after the judge rejected their motions for acquittal.

Fla. Court Declares State Lottery Contract Void

A Florida judge handed the leader of the state's House of Representatives a win Tuesday by declaring the state lottery department's 14-year contract for ticket vending machines void because the department did not get legislative approval first.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

Norwegian Air Can Intervene In DC Circ. Air Permit Row

Norwegian Air Shuttle ASA's Irish subsidiary can intervene in a suit brought by a coalition of pilots and flight attendants unions challenging the U.S. Department of Transportation's controversial decision to grant the airline a foreign air carrier permit, the D.C. Circuit has decided.

DC Circ. Asked To Halt Santa Monica Runway Reduction

General aviation groups asked the D.C. Circuit on Monday to halt Santa Monica's plans to shorten its airport runway to shut out jets as allowed under the California city's approved plan to close the airfield by 2029, a pact with the Federal Aviation Administration that airport proponents argue is legally invalid.

Unions Slam Railroads' Bid To Preempt Mass. Sick Leave Law

A group of labor unions that represent railway workers told the First Circuit on Monday that a lower court wrongly deemed a Massachusetts paid sick leave law to be preempted by federal law, as the latter was designed to preempt only laws that would duplicate longer-term disability benefits.

EMPLOYMENT

6th Circ. Denies Rehearing On County's Right-To-Work Law

The Sixth Circuit on Monday declined to revisit as a full body a November panel ruling that a Kentucky county's right-to-work ordinance is allowed by the National Labor Relations Act, leaving the door open for local governments to enact such measures where no statewide law exists.

PRIVACY & CONSUMER PROTECTION

Gretchen Carlson, Dems Push Bids To Ax Forced Arbitration

Former Fox News anchor Gretchen Carlson and a group of Democratic lawmakers pitched legislation that would keep mandatory arbitration clauses out of employment and other consumer contracts, saying at a news conference Tuesday that arbitration protects corporations from facing their ills.

TAX

SD Sales Tax Law Edges Closer To Hearing In Top Court

A South Dakota law imposing sales taxes on certain out-of-state retailers inched closer to the Supreme Court on Tuesday when a state circuit court tossed a lawsuit to compel online retailers to pay the tax, finding the suit fails as a matter of law.

Pa. Auditor Says Marijuana Can Help Close Budget Shortfall

Pennsylvania's auditor general called for the full legalization, and taxation, of marijuana Monday as a way to tackle the state's projected $3 billion budget shortfall and to address the social and fiscal costs of policing the drug and pursuing criminal charges against users.

Water Agency Can't Revive Challenge To Tribal-Land Tax Rule

The Ninth Circuit held Tuesday that a California water agency was not injured by a federal regulation it argued might keep it from collecting certain taxes and fees from non-Indians who lease reservation lands, affirming the toss of the agency's challenge.

IMMIGRATION

Trump's Hiring Freeze Doesn't Touch Immigration Judges

President Donald Trump's recent federal employee hiring freeze does not affect federal immigration judges, the Executive Office for Immigration Review has said, marking the latest clarification on how the president's budget-cutting agenda will be implemented.

Immigration Group Wants In On Visa Rule Challenge Suit

An advocacy group for high-skilled immigrants has asked to intervene in an appeal at the D.C. Circuit brought by Save Jobs USA over a decision upholding a new rule that would allow spouses of certain H-1B workers to apply for employment authorization, saying the rule was validly implemented but may no longer be defended by the federal government under President Trump.

FCC's Robocall Plan To Benefit From Rare Bipartisanship

Federal Communications Commission Chairman Ajit Pai's planned proposal to expand the tools for combating illegal robocalls builds from a President Barack Obama-era initiative, and experts say it's expected to gain rare agreement across party lines and between government and industry.

Broadcasters Ask FCC To Make Post-Auction Deadline Flexible

The National Association of Broadcasters has urged the Federal Communications Commission to make its timeline for repacking broadcasters after the incentive auction flexible, saying viewers could be at risk of losing service.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Shining A Light On GOP Plan For Health Care Reform

Since the election of President Trump and Republican majorities in the House and the Senate, there has been a strong push to repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act. However, there has been little detail as to what “repeal” or “replace” actually mean. Recent developments provide some clarity, say members of Debevoise & Plimpton LLP.

The Need To Preserve And Expand Tribal VAWA Jurisdiction

Given the new administration's penchant for rolling back progressive civil rights and social justice victories achieved under the Obama administration, the fight to reauthorize the Violence Against Women Act looms large. VAWA provides crucial protection for Native American women, who are victims of violent crime more than any other demographic, primarily at the hands of non-Natives, says Becky Howlett of Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton LLP.

NY Employers Can't Avoid Overtime And Minimum Wage Regs

When a district court judge in Texas enjoined the U.S. Department of Labor’s federal overtime rule last year many employers breathed a sigh of relief. However, there are many states, like New York, that have expressed a real intent to fill the void and make sure that labor protections continue, say Joshua Zuckerberg and LaKeisha Caton of Pryor Cashman LLP.

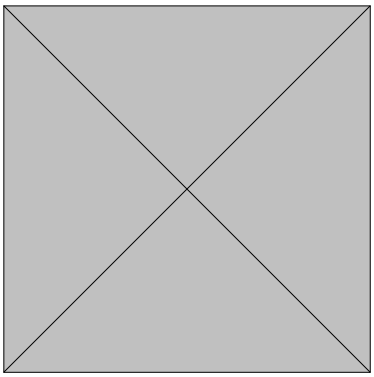
Community Spotlight: Immigrant Justice Initiative



The Immigrant Justice Initiative (IJI) is a collaboration among community advocates providing accessible legal services to the immigrant community.
IJI provides legal counsel and representation for nominal fees primarily for refugees, victims of violence, unaccompanied minors and those filing family-based petitions. Limited cases will also be accepted on a pro bono basis with the help of local immigration attorneys. Additionally, IJI provides free educational workshops for victims of domestic violence and works to educate the public about pervasive fraud and the status of the expanded DACA and DAPA programs. For more information and to find out ways you can help, click on the link below.

Judging A Book: Lipez Reviews 'Last Great Colonial Lawyer'

In his new book, "The Last Great Colonial Lawyer: The Life and Legacy of Jeremiah Gridley," Charles McKirdy argues that Gridley — someone I had never heard of — was the last great colonial lawyer, and that his cases illuminate his times. The author largely substantiates both claims, says First Circuit Judge Kermit Lipez. Read full article »

Subject: Asking for Advice

Dear Mayor Goodman:
My name is Eric Sanders & I live in Desert Shores. We met a few times when you came here & we also met your Husband, the former Mayor, when he came here.
The reason I am writing to you is that we have a problem, that you may be able to give us some advice about.
I am a young 77 years of age, & my wife and I decided to get something different for ourselves to celebrate our, then 21 years of marriage.(Valentines Day-2/14/2014). We decided to buy an older Rolls Royce Silver Shadow,1980), so we could have fun driving around in it.
So, we went down to a business, in Las Vegas, that dealt with & restored older Rolls. The place is called The Touring Shoppe, 3050 Sirius Ave., Las Vegas Nv. 89102. The owner is Wayne McMiniment.(He goes by an Alias Wayne Andre.)
After speaking with him initially, we showed us a car, on his premises, that, he said, had only 9000 miles on the odometer,(which he showed us), but was sitting in a garage for many years and needed only minor work done on the engine & some cosmetic work on the body.
Needless-to-say we liked the car. The total price to restore it to running condition would be $25,000.
He wanted a $15,000.00 deposit & he said the work would take a few months after he completed work on another car that his mechanic was working on before ours.
To make a long story short, it's now been over 2 years & we have kept all of the e-mails that have been sent to & from this man. It turns out that he had been arrested for investment fraud & stealing other people's money. Had we known this prior to dealing with him, we would have never given him the money.
The last e-mail he sent us was so nasty & full of foul language(we have copies) that we knew we were never going to see that car.
He has since shut down his computer & we are unable to e-mail him & demand our $15,000 deposit back. I would like to see this man put in jail for defrauding senior citizens & willfully & knowingly defrauding customers.
What can we do to get our money back & make sure he never does this anyone again?
Thanks for your assistance.
Hope you have wonderful holidays, coming up, & we look forward to seeing you again.
Best regards.
Eric & Maria Sanders

2017 AARP Funding Opportunity - Scaling Evidence-Based Solutions for Vulnerable Older Adults
Grant Application Process - All applications must be completed online. Deadline: October 24, 2017, 11:59 pm ET Link to information: http://www.aarp.org/aarp-foundation/grants/info-2017/advancing-effective-solutions.html
Eligible organizations are encouraged to submit an application, which, besides general organizational information, contains a list of basic information about your current intervention and how it aligns with AARP Foundation's mission and strategic objectives. Application submissions undergo a thorough review process. During our review, you may receive clarification questions and follow up (which may include video conference or on-site visit).

The application provides an overview of the current program you have in place. Our goal is to receive an understanding of the intervention and, in particular, your financial model and current operations. The application questions seek concise and specific answers. Please note that you must attach a project logic model and business model canvas to be considered for funding. You must also submit a summary of evaluation results/findings.

Balance Billing for Out-of-Network Providers

Most out-of-network (OON) health care providers make critical mistakes that jeopardize their compliance with state and federal laws. Many providers tell patients they will accept any payment received from the patient's health plan as payment in full. This practice is risky and may invite accusations of ínsurance fraud – however, it is prevalent throughout the U.S.

A few of the cases where billing-related errors (overpayments, negligent misrepresentation, OON write-offs, and balance billing) ended in real legal nightmares are:

- Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. and Cigna v. Health Diagnostic Laboratory, Inc.—$84 Million dollars recovered
- Aetna v Health Diagnostics Laboratory—Sued for "tens of millions" of dollars
- Aetna v Bay Area Surgical Management (BASM)—Amount sought: $23 Million

What makes it worse is that HHS is actively waiting and watching to càtch you in case you backslide. However, all is not lost! Join expert speaker Thomas Force, Esq., to learn how OON providers and their revenue recovery staff can maintain compliance while collecting a fair amount of money from the patient's health plan. Thomas will also cover state laws related to balance billing requirements for OON providers.

Conference: The Balance Billing Requirement - Why Out-of-Network Providers Must Balance Bill Their Patients
Date: Tuesday, February 13 (Available for all day)
Time: 60 minutes
CEU: 1 AAPC CEU

Failure to balance bill patients can lead to large recoupment, audits, and litigation for ínsurance fraud. This training session will help you avoid common pitfalls and get answers to questions such as:

- Why is balance billing required in most jurisdictions?
- What are the exceptions to balance billing requirements?
- How to properly balance bill patients without offending or alienating them?
- How can your practice use ERISA to appeal deníed and under-reimbursed claims for employer-sponsored plans?
- What is a recoupment and what to do when faced with one?
- What are the penalties for non-compliance with balance billing?

Session Highlights

This session will cover:

- Why OONs are required to balance bill and why it is ínsurance fraud if you don't
- The case of Ingenix's conflict of interest and how FAIR Health is reforming out-of-network reimbursement
- ERISA Pre-emption: What it means for providers located in states that restrict or prohibit balance billing
- Case studies of problematic billing and how they are noncompliant
- Patient protections under PPACA: Coverage for emergency services
- Industry insights on Medícare, TRICARE/CHAMPUS and balance billing
- The impact of New York's Emergency Medical Services and Surprise Bills Law
- How to write a patient-friendly balance bill letter, and consider the timing of the same
- The importance of a Charity Care Program/Financial Hardship policy
- The best practices: Transparency and disclosure
- The case laws: Cigna vs. Health Diagnostics, Aetna vs. Health Diagnostics Laboratory, and more

Apply "SAVE20" at check-out and get $20 off . Plus, you will get 1 AAPC CEU per registration.

Mobile banking highlighted in Gates Foundation annual letter

An excerpt: "... Already, in the developing countries with the right regulatory framework, people are storing money digitally on their phones and using their phones to make purchases, as if they were debit cards. By 2030, 2 billion people who don't have a bank account today will be storing money and making payment with their phones. And by then, mobile money providers will be offering the full range of financial services, from interest-bearing savings accounts to credit to insurance." Read more

House Rules Could Ease Affordable Care Act Repeal

House Republicans on Tuesday voted through rules changes that would grease the wheels of Affordable Care Act repeal and replacement this year, exempting the bills from new budget rules meant to limit spending increases.

House Backs Off Controversial Changes To Ethics Rules

House Republicans backed off changes to the independent ethics office as one of the first acts of the 115th Congress on Tuesday, in the face of criticism from Democrats, President-elect Donald Trump and reminted GOP leadership.

Congress Sets Sights On Obama Legacy Rules

Congressional Republicans will soon start the process of rejecting a yet-to-be-named group of measures from the last year of President Barack Obama's administration, targeting major rules and rulings for override votes.

Recent 9th Circ. Decisions May Muddy The Water On CFAA

In early December, the Ninth Circuit issued back-to-back decisions intended to clarify what is and isn't illegal computer use under the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act — but attorneys say the court's modest changes to lower court opinions don't go far enough in defining the specific conduct that can lead to a violation of the CFAA.

GOP Rep. Goodlatte Proposes Repeal Of Chevron Doctrine

U.S. Rep. Rob Goodlatte, R-Va., has resurrected a plan to overturn the U.S. Supreme Court's longstanding Chevron doctrine, which gives deference to federal agencies' interpretations of ambiguous laws, by including changes to judicial review powers in a sweeping regulatory reform package introduced Tuesday.

Trump Treasury Pick's Bank Fingered In Leaked Calif. AG Doc

Staff at the California Attorney General's office in 2013 wanted to file consumer fraud claims against OneWest Bank, then headed by Steven Mnuchin, President-elect Donald Trump's pick to lead the Treasury Department, citing evidence "suggestive of widespread misconduct," according to a purportedly leaked memo.

Law Profs Bash Sessions' AG Nomination Ahead Of Vote

Analysis

Circuits Split Widely On SEC Judges' Constitutionality

Now that the Tenth Circuit has created a split over the constitutionality of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's administrative law judges, the U.S. Supreme Court appears poised at long last to review the controversial issue. But experts warn that a high court decision would ultimately do little to dispel claims that the law tribunal is biased and unfair.

NJ Again Urges High Court To Review Sports Betting Case

New Jersey and its horse racing industry group have again urged the U.S. Supreme Court to review the federal ban on sports betting in the Garden State, arguing that the restriction undermines state sovereignty.

Fla. Senate Bill Would Nix Sports Facility Finance Program

Time may be running out on a Florida program that offers public funding from sales taxes to offset the cost of professional sports facility construction and renovations, as a powerful state senator filed a bill Tuesday to repeal the underlying law.

TRANSPORTATION & INFRASTRUCTURE

Cabbies Say Mass. Officials Can't Duck Unfair Uber Regs Suit

Boston taxicab drivers told a Massachusetts federal judge Friday that state officials cannot dodge a suit alleging the state's new regulations for so-called transportation network companies such as Uber and Lyft are an unconstitutional taking of taxicab drivers' property and violate their equal protection rights.

Safety Groups Urge DOT To Boost Trucker Training Rule

Independent truckers and highway safety advocates asked the U.S. Department of Transportation to rework its new final rule establishing entry-level commercial trucker training standards, saying the rule is too lax because it doesn't require drivers spend a set number of hours behind the wheel before getting licensed.

NJ Developer Wins Appeal Over Apartment Buildings Denial

A New Jersey appeals court on Tuesday revived a developer's proposal for two apartment buildings in Sea Girt, New Jersey, saying a lower court mistakenly upheld the denial of the application after the borough clarified that a building coverage limitation requirement did not apply to the project.

EMPLOYMENT

NY Launches Unit To Enforce New State Minimum Wage Law

A team of more than 200 investigators in New York have joined a new enforcement unit to ensure that employers comply with the state's new minimum wage law, which took effect on Dec. 31 and is moving in phases toward a $15 hourly wage, Democratic Gov. Andrew M. Cuomo said on Monday.

AARP Denied Early Block Of Wellness Program Regs

A D.C. federal judge has declined to preliminarily block two Equal Employment Opportunity Commission rules letting employers raise insurance premiums for workers who don't take part in wellness programs, saying the AARP hadn't shown its members would suffer irreparable harm come the rules' Jan. 1 effective date.

GSK Vaccine Sales Exempt From Antitrust Law, 9th Circ. Says

The Ninth Circuit on Tuesday held that GlaxoSmithKline LLC's sale of discounted vaccines through a federal program is exempt from antitrust liability, in a decision affirming a lower court's toss of a private clinic's suit accusing the drug company of abusing a federal drug-discount program.

PRIVACY & CONSUMER PROTECTION

6th Circ. Says TVA Must Face Nuke Plant Officer's Bias Suit

The Tennessee Valley Authority must face an employment discrimination lawsuit brought by a former nuclear security officer who claims he was illegally fired after he failed a medical exam, the Sixth Circuit has ruled, saying in a published opinion that the decision isn't shielded from judicial review just because the TVA said it's a national security issue.

Va. Gov. Says He Won't OK Proposed 20-Week Abortion Ban

Democratic Virginia Gov. Terry McAuliffe has promised to veto a bill that would ban abortions after 20-weeks if the legislation makes it to his desk, according to reports Tuesday.

Parking Rules Discriminated Against NJ Mosque, Judge Says

Bernards Township, New Jersey, and several municipal officials accused of stymieing the construction of a mosque violated federal law by applying a municipal zoning ordinance in a way that created different requirements for building houses of worship on the basis of religion, a federal judge ruled Saturday.

Texas Judge Blocks ACA Transgender Rule

A Texas federal judge has blocked an Obama administration rule incorporating gender identity discrimination as part of sex discrimination under the Affordable Care Act, concluding the states and religious medical groups challenging the rule are likely to prove the executive branch went around Congress and violated religious freedoms.

A trade group for midsize telecom companies asked the Federal Communications Commission Tuesday to reconsider its ruling setting privacy rules for ISPs, saying the agency does not have the legal authority it needs despite good policy intentions.

Level 3 Challenges AT&T's DC Circ. Win On VoIP Fees

Level 3 Communications has asked the D.C. Circuit to take another look at a panel ruling in AT&T's favor after the telecom giant challenged a Federal Communications Commission order allowing switching charges for voice-over-internet-protocol calls, saying the panel improperly relied on its own research rather than any AT&T argument.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

US Sanctions Against Iran: Outlook Under President Trump

During his campaign, President-elect Donald Trump alternatively promised to "dismantle" the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action, negotiate a better deal, and vigorously enforce the current agreement. Given the vagueness of Trump's policies, sanctions activity regarding Iran is likely to originate in Congress, say attorneys from Mayer Brown LLP.

Get Ready For The Long Arm Of EU Privacy Regulation

The 99 articles of the EU General Data Protection Regulation create a tsunami of obligations for not only the European Economic Area-based operations of subsidiaries of a U.S. business, but also the activities that a U.S. business conducts from U.S. shores, even if there is no legal establishment in the EEA, says Francoise Gilbert of Greenberg Traurig LLP.

Can Employers Still Drug Test Where Marijuana Is Legal?

It would be great if the new rules surrounding marijuana legalization and employer drug policies were clear, stable and uniform from state to state and across the country. However, especially with an incoming right-leaning cabinet, the reality is we're facing a mixed bag of guidelines over the next couple of years, says Eve Wagner of Sauer & Wagner LLP.

What To Expect From A Trump Trade Policy: Part 2

If the Trump administration follows through on its pledge to renegotiate or withdraw from NAFTA, any one of a number of scenarios may emerge — from an expanded and modernized agreement, offering companies a chance to formulate a wish-list agenda, to substantial supply chain and commercial disruption, implying defensive concerns for affected businesses, say members of WilmerHale.

Learn, but don't worship, disruptors

Today we idolize Google, Amazon, and Facebook, and make corporate role models of them. But author Manish Grover advises against blind adulation, in his book Dancing The Digital Tune: The 5 Principles of Competing In A Digital World.

"They … limit our learning if we identify too closely with them. They cloud our ability to analyze and apply to our particular situation. They tend to idolize certain aspects while glossing over the many shortcomings. They inspire but they don't guide. They are the notion of best practices. And they provide the potently obvious but probably false idea that some firms really had a strategy or intended to do what they did. A lot of outcomes we often speak of—and quote—came about without being designed as such. Indeed some visionaries may have everything planned out when they started, but I believe they are an exception, not the rule." Read more

Subject: Webinar Today: When to use political labels like Progressive, Socialist, Gun Control, Pro-Choice and more

Dear Carolyn,

At last week's Democratic presidential debate, Bernie Sanders embraced the label "Democratic Socialist" while Hillary Clinton said she is a "Progressive who likes to get things done."

Most elected officials think "socialist" is a negative term, and many think that calling themselves "progressive" is risky. So, for one thing, our next webinar will present polling about traditional political labels like liberal and conservative, capitalist and socialist.

But we'll also discuss political labels that are based on issues, like: feminist, pro-choice, gun control, global warming, Obamacare, tax-and-spend, Washington, Wall Street, tort reform, voting fraud, illegal alien, education reform, and much more.

What: When to use political labels

When: Today, October 21 @3pm Eastern, 2pm Central, 1pm Mountain, Noon Pacific.

How: Register at: https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/4042340575766593538

When we use those terms, we know what we are trying to express—but does our audience understand the words they same way we do? As always, we will set aside time for questions; we want your active participation.

Hope you can attend!

Gloria Totten, President

Join Banking Exchange and LifeLock on November 19 at 2:00 pm EST | 11:00 am PST for the webinar Protecting Vulnerable Populations from Identity Fraud: Today and Tomorrow.

Identity fraud affected almost 13 million Americans last year, yet not all Americans are affected equally. In a recent research study sponsored by LifeLock, Javelin explored the impact of identity fraud on students, seniors and military personnel and how fraudsters are using different techniques to attack these vulnerable populations. Each of these consumer segments has a different set of behaviors that cause them to be targets of account fraud. Register for this complimentary webinar >

This webinar will examine:

- What behaviors and activities place students, military and seniors at higher risk of identity fraud
- The outlook for fraud targets over the next few years and how it will impact these consumer segments
- Strategies for how banks can help protect customers and employees

Date: Thursday, November 19, 2015

Subject: Laxalt v. Sisolak on health care

Quote of the Day

"We do have to deal with the fact that we have implicit and explicit bias — racial bias — in Nevada and in the Clark County School District. I'm not going to pretend that doesn't exist because that's something maybe we don't want to talk about. If we don't talk about these things, they won't change."

— Yvette Williams, chair of the Clark County Black Caucus, which on Monday sponsored a student-driven summit in partnership with the school district

From the Editors

Equity — an education-reform term that boils down to monetary and resource distribution fairness — has become a focal point for the Clark County School District since a report released this summer detailed inequities in the school district's budgeting practices. Essentially it found that schools in low-income areas with lower-paid, less-experienced teachers subsidize schools in wealthier neighborhoods with higher paid, veteran teachers. And because these low-income schools tend to have higher ratios of minority students, it effects educational outcomes.

Clark County Superintendent Jesus Jara on Monday participated in the above-referenced freewheeling question-and-answer session — formally called the 2018 African American Student Summit — which brought together more than 500 black students from across the district to talk about educational equity, diversity and cultural awareness. Jackie Valley was there and reported.

Subject: Expert Guidance on Ever-Changing Medicare Rules, Payer Policies, ACA, PQRS, Stark, Medical Necessity, & More

Good Morning,

With 2015 underway, now's the time to identify and correct your compliance and regulatory areas of concern. Increased federal scrutiny in 2015 is making Medicare compliance even more challenging for facilities and physician practices.

The reality is that even an innocent, unintentional error might be misinterpreted as willful fraud. And staying profitable in the wake of reimbursement cuts is a constant struggle. You need to keep current with the latest updates from Capitol Hill to the fee schedule, enrolment process, documentation guidelines for compliant reimbursement, PECOS, NPP reimbursements, OIG target areas, ABN form updates, Medicare MSP standards, and more.

If reducing your Medicare compliance risks and improving your reimbursement flow are top priorities, you'll need the expert guidance offered in the all new Medicare Compliance & Reimbursement Insider 2015. The expert advice you'll get in this handbook will ensure you are on track to reduce your Medicare compliance risks, will provide you with regulatory updates, and will help improve your reimbursement flow.

Here are some of the topics we've covered in this brand new, 165-page handbook:

- Tune in to key changes listed in 2015 Medicare physician fee schedule.
- Advance Beneficiary Notices: Reduce Risk Of Fraud Or Abuse Allegations
- Tips Help You Avoid Costly Billing Errors In Early 2015
- Overlooking These E/M Tips Could Cost Your Practice $5000 Each Year
- Interpreting Your PEPPER Report Is Much Easier Than You Realize
- Stay on the Right Side of Your Next Audit with These 3 Lessons
- Your Reimbursement Could Hinge on Outcomes Come 2016
- HHPPS: Improve Outcomes or Put Your Reimbursement at Risk
- And much more…

When Your Client Is The President

On the evening of Sept. 11, 2001, I stood on the Oval Office porch and watched as Marine One landed on the South Lawn, bringing President Bush home. The president decided immediately that the attacks that morning placed America on a war footing against a nonstate actor. This generated a number of unique and complex legal issues for me, says Alberto Gonzales, who served as White House counsel for President George W. Bush.

Without Greater Investor Protection, EB-5 Is Unsustainable

Among the ongoing criticisms of the current EB-5 program are its lack of transparency, its failure to protect investors, and the inadequacy of safeguards to ensure that EB-5 funds are properly deployed for job creation and not lost through fraud or defalcation. The program's longevity and success thus depends in large part on the implementation of reliable investor safeguards, say attorneys at Seyfarth Shaw LLP.

EPA’s Regional Consistency Regs Tilt The Playing Field

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency’s recently finalized regional consistency regulations are substantively flawed and simply unfair. The agency’s rule limits decisions adverse to the agency to a particular region of the country, while still allowing the agency to apply favorable decisions nationwide, say Richard Alonso and Brittany Pemberton of Bracewell LLP.

Plaintiffs Cash In On Expanding Gift Card Laws

Wallets filled with unused and partially used gift cards have spurred a plethora of legislation in the last decade concerning the sale and use of gift cards. As plaintiffs continue to target retailers over the sale and use of gift cards, states (and the federal government) continue to expand and refine regulations in this arena, say Stephanie Sheridan, Meegan Brooks and Emily Mertes of Sedgwick LLP.

U.S. Sanctions' Long Reach May Have Just Gotten Longer

The case of a Turkish businessman arrested en route to Disney World has significant implications for other non-U.S. persons conducting business with governments and companies subject to U.S. sanctions, and suggests that sanctions laws may be applied even when there is no nexus between the criminal allegations and the United States, say Scott M. Flicker, Kwame Manley and Jason Fiebig of Paul Hastings LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Michael Best's Lisa Mueller

Let clients know that you add value not only because of your strong legal skills, but because you are genuine and will always provide sound advice. These traits will illustrate your interest in becoming their trusted adviser and partner for the long term, says Lisa Mueller, chairwoman of the life sciences and chemical practice group at Michael Best & Friedrich LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Stroock’s Todd Lenson

You need to practice as part of a team, where each member of the team operates at the highest level and is responsible for their role. Being able to rely on your partners and associates is a critical aspect of being an effective and successful lawyer, says Todd Lenson, co-practice group leader of the corporate department at Stroock & Stroock & Lavan LLP.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Brokaw Act Could Broaden Change-Of-Control Triggers

The recently introduced “Brokaw Act” proposes changes to the rules governing the reporting of ownership in U.S. public companies and would expand the definition of “beneficial owner.” But as the definition of ownership expands, the definition of change of control in many indentures may expand as well — sometimes in ways the drafters may not have anticipated, say Laurent Alpert and Robert Gruszecki of Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton LLP.

Developments At The NAIC Spring Meeting: Part 1

This three-part series from attorneys at Debevoise & Plimpton LLP highlights some of the developments from the National Association of Insurance Commissioners' spring meeting that are of particular interest to the insurance industry. In this part, we take a look at life insurer, property/casualty insurer, captive reinsurance and cybersecurity developments.

Using The New Federal Rules To Rein In Discovery

The 2015 amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure present a fertile opportunity for defendants to leverage the rules' renewed focus on reasonableness and proportionality to rein in rampant discovery abuse. Courts' application of the amended rules has already shown promise in this regard, say Martin Healy and Joseph Fanning of Sedgwick LLP.

Louisiana Joins Debate Over Online Remote Seller Sales Tax

Louisiana recently entered the conversation on taxation of out-of-state online retail sales by passing new remote seller legislation, but a question remains as to the ultimate effect this law will have on the state’s budget issues and the overall movement nationwide to statutorily (or administratively) expand the sales tax nexus, say attorneys with Jones Walker LLP.

LEGAL INDUSTRY

4 Ways You're Wasting Your Co-Workers' Time

The sound of a new text or the temptations of cruising Facebook or finally beating "Angry Birds" can distract the best of attorneys. But a more fundamental culprit for what consumes lawyers' precious time may be sitting nearby: their colleagues. Here, legal industry experts discuss common ways attorneys waste each other's time and how they can do better.

Squire 'Disappointed' Ex-Atty Says She Suffered Gender Bias

Squire Patton Boggs LLP said Thursday that it was "disappointed" a former international arbitration associate took to the social news website Reddit to say that she was a victim of gender discrimination at the firm and that she felt like she was “worth less as a lawyer” after having a baby.

3 Cost-Effective Cybersecurity Tips For Firms Big And Small

Hackers and cybercriminals see all lawyers, not just the deepest-pocketed global law firms, as targets — a lesson one Texas solo learned when an attack on his firm sent malware to thousands — but experts say there are simple, cost-effective steps any firm can take to protect its reputation and data. Here, experts share ways all attorneys can shore up their online security.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

Some lawyers were predators this week and others were prey, with a group of plaintiffs attorneys topping the food chain by securing a $34 million jury verdict against R.J. Reynolds and Philip Morris, while Gibson Dunn and Winston & Strawn LLP were fed to the NFL for dinner when the Second Circuit reinstated New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady's four-game suspension.

Nonlawyer Firm Ownership Lacks Traction Despite New Look

The American Bar Association has again waded into politically turbulent waters with a new look at loosening rules against firm ownership by nonlawyers, an effort critics said won't achieve the bar's stated goal of improving access to the legal system even if it can overcome strong opposition.

Obama Picks 8 For Federal Bench Positions

President Barack Obama on Thursday nominated four judges, a law professor, partners from Hogan Lovells and Jung & Sisco PA, and a member of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights to federal judgeships in Florida, the District of Columbia, Colorado, North Carolina and Nevada.

DC Circ. Tosses LPTV Challenge To Spectrum Auction

The D.C. Circuit nixed a challenge brought by low-power television broadcasters against a Federal Communications Commission decision to repurpose their spectrum in the ongoing incentive auction, finding Tuesday that the LPTVs had been subject to displacement by wireless licensees “long before” the auction.

Alternative Biz Data Regs Proposal Self-Serving, FCC Told

A group of midsize incumbent local exchange carriers including CenturyLink and Frontier on Monday blasted a business data services rate regulation proposal from Verizon and trade group INCOMPAS that it assailed as self-serving rather than any kind of compromise.

Bruce Beemer Confirmed As New Pa. AG

The Pennsylvania Senate voted unanimously on Tuesday to confirm Bruce Beemer to take over as the state’s new attorney general, replacing Kathleen Kane, who resigned earlier this month on the heels of her perjury conviction.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

What To Know About New Fair Pay And Safe Workplaces Rule

The recently released Fair Pay and Safe Workplaces rule will become effective and begin phase-in on Oct. 25, 2016, and will affect most current and future government contractors and subcontractors with contracts valued at more than $500,000. Attorneys at Arnold & Porter LLP highlight some of the key changes.

Where's The E-Sign? A Primer On Electronic Signature Laws

Understanding the history and intricacies behind electronic signature laws can be difficult due to overlap between the Electronic Signatures in Global and National Commerce Act and the Uniform Electronic Transaction Act. Brian Casey of Locke Lord LLP explains the differences between the laws and answers some of the questions they have raised.

REBUTTAL: Establishing Standards And Norms In Mediation

A recent Law360 guest article asks whether by signing a mediation confidentiality agreement a lawyer surrenders the power to protect his client against inappropriate mediation conduct. The short response to this concern is that parties to a mediation should refuse to execute such an agreement that removes all future recourse against the mediator, no matter how egregious the mediator’s actions, says William Ruskin of Gordon Rees Scully Mansukhani LLP.

Foreign Agents Registration Act May Be At A Tipping Point

The Foreign Agents Registration Act — an obscure, sweeping, 80-year-old federal criminal statute that requires certain individuals and companies acting on behalf of foreign principals to register with the U.S. Department of Justice and file reports — has rocketed to national headlines. The story of former Donald Trump campaign chairman Paul Manafort falls squarely within a pattern of increased enforcement interest, say attorneys with Covington & Burling LLP.

6 Traits Of The Most-Loved Law Firm Leaders

While it's a worthwhile endeavor to try to tease out the common qualities of admired law firm leaders, reliable templates remain elusive because if there's one thing great leaders can be counted on to do, it’s break the mold. Here, attorneys and law firm leaders share their thoughts about the qualities of leaders who inspire greatness.

Law Firms Push Work In-House As Rates Climb

Banks that lend money to law firms published two reports this month that concluded firms have hiked rates as demand for legal services wanes, a strategy for revenue growth that experts say will likely push more work in-house, further hurting demand for legal services.

ITC Slaps Quinn For 'Vast' Document Failures In Tech Row

The “vast extent” of Quinn Emanuel Urquhart & Sullivan LLP’s improper disclosures of a confidential expert report and breaches to a protective order in a smartphone patent and trade battle between Apple Inc. and Samsung Electronics Co. call for an official reprimand, the International Trade Commission said Tuesday.

Use Jury Panels To Keep Tabs On Judicial Bias, Paper Says

The use of mini-juries alongside elected judges during pretrial decisions would provide a much-needed method of monitoring a system biased toward judicial campaign donors and decisions that favor judges' re-election, a new paper published by the Social Science Research Network says.

DC Court Pushed To Loosen Up In-House Atty Pro Bono Rules

The Association of Corporate Counsel is pushing the D.C. Court of Appeals to remove certain restrictions on the pro-bono work of in-house attorneys, arguing they are unnecessary and only serve to limit the amount of pro bono work done by lawyers.

Ill. Woman Cops To Theft In $7M Vedder Price Scam

This sister of a longtime Vedder Price PC office manager charged with running an elaborate embezzlement scheme that drained more than $7 million from firm coffers pled guilty to theft and was sentenced to nearly a year in jail, according to Illinois state court officials.

Rainmaker Q&A: FordHarrison's Sarah Pierce Wimberly

I read far too many attorney biographies in my practice that convey the same thing, an “expertise” in everything. But that makes it challenging for an aspiring rainmaker to differentiate herself to clients and prospects. Expertise naturally leads to a certain level of confidence, and confidence makes it easier to go after the work, says Sarah Pierce Wimberly, leader of the airline employment practice at FordHarrison LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Patrick McNicholas

The way I look at it, you’re never really making a pitch. You are entering into a potential relationship. Credibility is king. You must be in command of the facts of that client’s particular situation and in command of the law that’s going to govern that client’s issue, says Patrick McNicholas, a partner with McNicholas & McNicholas LLP.

Carolyn —

New mandates have been announced under OMB Circular A-123 that require every government program to conduct a formal risk assessment and submit mitigation plans to the White House budget office.

To learn how to meet these new mandates, would you like to join us on July 24-25 for the Government Enterprise Risk Management Summit (Gov-ERM)?

Gov-ERM provides comprehensive coverage of the latest mandates and best practices for conducting risk assessments, integrating performance management with risk management, mitigating risks through improved internal controls, and changing the culture of your agency to be more aware of risks.

This year Gov-ERM will spotlight strategies for three common government risk areas: Cyber Risk, Fraud and Improper Payments, and Operational Risk.

Space is limited so let me know asap if you want to see the full agenda and if you want to register yourself or a colleague!

Best,

Jonathan Copeland

High Court Is Asked To Review DOI's Land Trust For Cowlitz

An anti-casino group has asked the U.S. Supreme Court to review a D.C. Circuit ruling that the U.S. Department of the Interior properly took Washington state land into trust for the Cowlitz Indian Tribe's gaming project, arguing the decision rests on a misinterpretation of the Indian Reorganization Act.

Verizon, Sprint, T-Mobile Push FCC On Team Telecom Reform

Three major carriers and trade group CTIA-The Wireless Association have told the Federal Communications Commission that there is broad support for shortening the length of Team Telecom national security reviews, but also cautioned against mandating new burdens.

Broadcasters Want More Transition Time After FCC Auction

The Federal Communications Commission's proposal to move TV stations after the broadcast incentive auction is promising but the agency is too committed to a 39-month window for the switch, the National Association of Broadcasters has told the FCC, calling the time frame "arbitrary and inflexible."

CenturyLink Says FCC's Planned Rate Caps Are Baseless

CenturyLink slammed the Federal Communications Commission on Friday for floating rate caps for older providers in the market for business data services that it said don't have basis in the record, also saying the FCC has understated the degree of the cuts in its fact sheet on the proposal.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

When Your Client Is The President

The day after Barack Obama was elected our 44th president, President Bush gathered the White House staff and made clear that the work of his administration during its final two months would be defined by whatever was necessary to help President-elect Obama and his team succeed. It was perhaps the most critical event of the transition, say Gregory Craig, who was White House counsel for President Obama, and Michael Scudder, who was general counsel of the National Security Council under President Bush.

FCC's New Framework For Categorizing Consumer Consent

The Federal Communications Commission's new regulatory framework is intended to provide consumers with transparency and privacy. However, internet service providers have expressed dissatisfaction with the new regime, and the public has yet to learn how the promised "harmonization" will affect other entities, say attorneys at Squire Patton Boggs.

Confronting EPA's Refusal To Consider Industry Costs

Federal courts are increasingly pushing back against the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's failure to consider the potential consequences of its actions. Recent decisions are clear victories for rational regulatory policy, affirming that agencies such as the EPA are required to consider all of the relevant factors before taking action, say Jeffrey Dintzer and Joseph Ireland of Gibson Dunn & Crutcher LLP.

Attys' Group Asks High Court To Hear Challenge To NJ Rules

An attorneys' group has urged the U.S. Supreme Court to take up its case demanding that New Jersey nix its bar admission rule for out-of-state lawyers, arguing the Third Circuit erred when it agreed with a lower court that the requirement does not violate lawyers' rights.

Rainmaker Q&A: Baker Donelson's Timothy Lupinacci

Maintaining and growing a trusted client relationship requires a lot of nonbillable time and extra effort to get out and be with your clients on a regular basis. It requires creativity to ensure you are at the forefront of delivering added value to your client work, says Timothy Lupinacci, chairman of the financial services department at Baker Donelson Bearman Caldwell & Berkowitz PC.

Rainmaker Q&A: Briggs & Morgan's Frank Taylor

You must show that you understand the client's needs and business and can offer creative and novel solutions. If an attorney can't speak coherently to the issues in the same amount of time it takes to ride the elevator from the first to the sixth floor, the opportunity is lost, says Frank Taylor, head of the financial markets group at Briggs & Morgan PA.

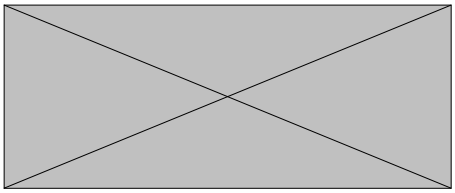
Subject: [Marketing Mail] Courage, vision, and fidelity



Dear Friends,

For all who care about the ideals of the Constitution, and a just and tolerant society, Donald Trump as President is a stunning rebuke.

America has entered unmapped territory. At the Brennan Center for Justice, we see our charge as more vital than ever before. To stand up for constitutional values, to draw a line and resist abuse. To ensure that all have an equal voice in our democracy. To oppose bigotry in all its forms. And to press forward with solutions and arguments, rooted in core values, and offer answers in the face of anger. In doing this work, we need your support now more than ever.

How will the Brennan Center wage this fight? It's early. We can't know all the ways these debates will unfold. Here are some of the ways we'll stand up for all the people:

- Start with our democracy. The right to vote could come under new assault. Donald Trump won office loudly and falsely claiming widespread voter fraud. So we will stand up against harsh voting laws, a fight central to our national ideals. Dismay over campaign finance corruption motivated many voters from both parties. Now we've got to show what it will really take to "drain the swamp." From partisan gerrymandering to the absurd Electoral College, we will point out how the broken system distorts the voice of the people.

- We will press forward in the drive to reform America's broken criminal justice system, one of the greatest moral failures and racial injustices of our time, working with law enforcement, Republicans, and Democrats to show how we can bolster public safety while reducing prison populations.

- In the face of ugly xenophobia, our Liberty and National Security program will expose the costs of Islamophobia that violates our most basic values. A commitment to religious freedom makes us safer.

All around us old alignments are scrambled and old arrangements are fracturing. That's the very moment when fresh thinking and new ideas can take flight. The Brennan Center will continue to craft the next generation of reforms to revitalize our broken system so that America works for everyone.

As you know, the Brennan Center was named in honor of the late U.S. Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, Jr. He once said, "The Constitution will endure as a vital charter of human liberty as long as there are those with the courage to defend it, the vision to interpret it, and the fidelity to live by it."

Courage, vision, and fidelity. We've never needed those values more than today.

I hope you will stand by our side as we defend the Constitution and core American ideals with courage, vision, and fidelity. Please make a contribution to the Brennan Center for Justice today.

Thank you for your partnership. We are very grateful.

Best regards,

Michael Waldman

EXPERT ANALYSIS

9th Circ. Legal Concerns Influence Trump's New Travel Ban
President Donald Trump's new executive order banning travel to the U.S. by certain people from six Muslim-majority countries was clearly drafted to address structural defects and constitutional concerns outlined by the Ninth Circuit. However, it is unclear whether the changes will be sufficient to withstand legal challenges, says Kari Konikowski Blackman of Foster LLP.

Here Comes The Rule-Making Revolution
The business of agency rule-making — a significant source of the regulatory burden that financial institutions bear — is about to undergo a significant makeover. Those who have been around financial regulation through various business and political cycles know, however, that federal agencies can sometimes revert to the path of least resistance to reach the same bottom line, says Thomas Vartanian of Dechert LLP.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Subject: [Marketing Mail] Ralston Reports -- Morning Flash, 10/26/16

10.26.2016

DAYS UNTIL THE 2016 GENERAL ELECTION: 13

Good morning, everyone. I have been tallying early vote numbers now for several cycles, and the numbers always fascinate people. They also tell a lot about what will happen – I was able to forecast blue waves in 2008 and 2012 early on, and I foretold the red wave of 2014 after the first day. But never have I experienced the number of people crying fraud – George Soros rigged the voting machines! – as I have on Twitter this cycle. This is what Trump has wrought, and this is why what he is doing with his rigged meme is so dangerous.

I was on KTNV last night several times talking about a new Senate poll/ad, early voting and my interview with AFT's Randi Weingarten.

What's below: Early numbers, stadium applicants, Morning Flash nuggets, and a trivia question about a document.

COMING UP

Democratic leaders who embraced Adelson Stadium will announce the community benefits agreement with Team Adelson tomorrow at a news conference. I'm told it's a lot of money (seriously, it is). You think those Democratic votes came cheap? Still, Democratic leaders at a presser with Sandsman Andy Abboud? This is through the looking glass, folks.

THE EARLY VOTE AFTER FOUR DAYS

The latest numbers show turnout is much like 2012 for the Democrats, maybe slightly better because of Washoe 3,000-vote firewall. The GOP played Washoe, where they usually do all right but lost the first three days, to a draw Tuesday, if they want some hope. But the statewide numbers will show close to a 25,000-vote lead. Unless this trend is reversed – and that has never happened – it's big trouble for the GOP up and down the ticket.

Details here.

ADELSON STADIUM APPLICANTS

The applications are starting to roll in for positions on the stadium authority to oversee THE GREATEST PROJECT EVER. Some familiar names, I've learned:

Perennial everything Andrew Martin, the former assemblyman

Former Thomas & Mack Executive Director Daren Libonati

Others include general contractors and others who have either a lot of good experience or not much.

A QUARTET OF MORNING FLASH NUGGETS

Nugget No. 1 – The race for Harry Reid's seat began with Harry Reid being the GOP foe and will end that way.

Nugget No. 2 – Ah, a stadium survey. And only 10-15 minutes!

Nugget No. 3 – Ah, the "pyramid scheme" returns.

Nugget No. 4 – BREAKING: Pot foe Pat Hickey is smoking pot.

FAST FLASHES

Click and enjoy.

FLASH FACTS OF THE DAY

It might seem reasonable to assume that nuclear tests in Nevada were all performed on the Nevada Test Site, set aside for this purpose. But, it would be an incorrect assumption. Project Shoal was organized by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) and the Department of Defense (DoD) to study the impact of a nuclear explosion in different geological environments, in this case, a predominantly granite rock formation. The goal was to compare the seismic reporting of the event to that of an earthquake to help discern nuclear explosions. On October 26, 1963, a nuclear bomb was detonated about 28 miles Southeast of Fallon, NV in south Churchill County, just north of the county line with Mineral County. The 12 kt bomb was detonated at a depth of 1,204 ft at the edge of the Sand Springs Range. Because of the location and the depth of the explosion and level of contamination, the Nevada Division of Environmental Protection (NDEP) said "exposure to humans is unlikely."

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

It took two days, and a document that started traveling from Nevada to DC on this day in history actually had to be transcribed when it arrived. Transcribed from what, and what was it?

Tuesday's winner: KSNV's Tony Garcia

The question: On this day in history, a mayor awarded a key to the city to a legend who passed away only six years later. Who was it?

The answer: Michael Jackson

Well, this is certainly…interesting. I do not recall having seen or heard of such communications from this person until now. I will forward the string to the Fusion Center to follow up on. If his message reached Ted Moody prior to his retirement, he would have sent it along to SNCTC as well. If so, they will have a file started on this person and any communications they may have had with him since. His initial warning in May 2014 has yet to pan out and with no specifics to go on, there's not much we can do.

I recommend your response read something to the effect of:

"Mr. Almon, thank you for sharing your concerns about terrorism and its potential impact to the Las Vegas area. I have recently expressed my own concerns directly with Secretary Johnson of the Department of Homeland Security. As a city, we invest in many resources to ensure the safety of the community and the visitors we serve. As you know, we cannot prevent every possible act of violence or terrorism. We work very hard to ensure communication, cooperation and coordination with our local government agencies, the private sector and our state and federal partners to be prepared to achieve our 5 mission areas: prevent, protect, mitigate, respond, recover from terror attack.

I am forwarding your concerns to our Joint Terrorism Task Force and the Southern Nevada Counter Terrorism Center for further investigation. If you have knowledge of specific planned targets, modes of attack, or dates and times of planned attack, please file a SAR (Suspicious Activity Report) as soon as possible with our Counter Terrorism Center. This report may be sent anonymously if so desired."

I hope this is satisfactory for your use. Please let me know if he persists with non-specific information about how much danger we are in. Thank you!

Subject: PERSONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL FOR REVIEW BY MAYOR GOODMAN RE: TERRORISM THREAT

The Honorable Mayor Carolyn Goodman:

I am contacting you concerning the information on terrorism below. Due to 2 incidents in Las Vegas and my familiarity with terrorism, I sent the email below to a Las Vegas commander, and have since contacted other commanders, corporate, and a Las Vegas politician with my concerns. Unfortunately, the response was as inadequate as the response the FBI agents, civilians, and well known individuals experienced when warning top DC officials about 9/11. This is why I and others are so reluctant to contact authorities concerning the issue, and specifically why I hesitated to contact the Las Vegas commander with my original warning (due to what I witnessed in Las Vegas). If it were not for the fact so many EU, Australian, Chinese, and Indian friends/kids that I know visit Las Vegas I would just ignore the situation and let it happen and then say I told you so to the media. (I am also covering myself by having proof that I did warn every authority responsible for public safety in Las Vegas, the US, and abroad.) I assure the situation is far worse than you know, and I would not underestimate it or the ruthlessness of the enemy. They have already picked out their targets and made their decision to carry out their missions no matter what. They will have to be physically stopped by and aggressive and competent campaign led by competent and aggressive law enforcement/intelligence officers.

Due to the seriousness of the situation, my ties to the EU, Australia, and other countries, I have warned Ministers that I have had previous contact with and others this week concerning issuing a travel warning to their citizens. I have not mentioned the city of concern, however as of next week I may have to. I do not want to get involved in the situation at all, I like 3 other top terrorist experts are fed up with the incompetence and politicizing of terrorism that has led to the disastrous attacks from 9/11, Paris, San Bernardino, and now Brussels. (The experts are former Clinton & Bush terrorism expert Richard Clark, former CIA agent/CNN consultant Bob Baer, and former Bin Laden desk Chief Michael Scheuer.) We have all reached this point due our being completely correct in our forecasts and strategies for addressing terrorist threats, and the individuals and entities that were listened to being dead wrong each and every time. An audit of my record on forecasting terrorist trends and events to be irrefutably accurate, and an audit of the "experts" to be irrefutably inaccurate.

The individuals that are sought after to address terrorism in the US by the government and media are not actually experts-are you aware of that? If you are counting on US or local counter terrorism officials to save Las Vegas-I would stock up on body bags, you're going to need them.

Those responsible for anti-terrorism measures in Las Vegas and the US as a whole have no idea what they are up against, nor do they have a clue as to how to negate the threat-hence why ISIS/Al Qaeda continue to beat them to the punch.

EXAMPLES:

-The only people that did not know that Ms. Prouty a terrorist mole were the Directors of the FBI and CIA (literally) that fought over her and gave her the highest awards the agencies has https://www.justice.gov/archive/opa/pr/2007/November/07_nsd_910.html http://www.cbsnews.com/news/the-case-against-nada-prouty-26-03-2010/. There are a lot more Nada Prouty's in the US committing the same act. Ms. Prouty proves a Middle Easterner cannot be vetted, there are many just like her in the US that have US passports, driver's licenses, and they are in no way who the government thinks they are right down to the names on those documents.

-This terrorist pioneer lived 2 miles down the road from me http://articles.chicagotribune.com/1985-06-19/news/8502090070_1_lebanon-david-berry-nabih-berri

I grew up here and know or have met all of the people connected to this issue and I assure you the situation is far worse than is suspected by authorities. I have met and talked to many of the individuals responsible for stopping these terrorists, and trust me-the terrorists are far ahead of the opposition.

https://www.google.com/webhp?sourceid=chrome-instant&ion=1&espv=2&ie=UTF-8#q=plane+terrorism+dearborn+

http://www.wxyz.com/news/local-news/investigations/happys-pizza-headquarters-raided-by-irs-criminal-division-dea (Las Vegas has a franchise and a lot more connections to Detroit/Dearborn than you likely are aware of. It is a case of this https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=JcZHSGyos6g)

I have talked with the founders of this business several times and this case was strictly about terrorist funding as in this case http://www.mlive.com/lansing-news/index.ssf/2011/12/report_several_southeast_michi.html.

In closing, my original warning should have been ran to ground, the fact that it wasn't is proof of just how off and far behind Las Vegas is in addressing Paris and Brussels style attacks (this week every Minister from every foreign country I contacted responded with a phone call or/and email seeking further information because they now "get it".) To be direct, authorities in Las Vegas and the US have their heads in the sands regarding the issue of terrorism and must change their strategy and tactics while they still have a chance to do so. With Las Vegas having the worst inherent terrorist vulnerabilities of any major city, Las Vegas should be much more precise and aggressive in avoiding such an attack (which is possible). An attack in the manner that I have forecast would dwarf the Paris body count by a minimum of X5, however it will be worse. The intelligence, physical security, and counter measures of Las Vegas are an invitation for an attack, and the terrorist know all of the cities vulnerabilities as well as I do.

No casino pit boss, dealer, etc. could have the record of the anti-terrorism leadership and still be employed in Las Vegas, it is the equivalent to them "losing" track of a million dollars every day for a year and the casino owners and Gaming Control Board accepting any explanation he came up with as legitimate. This would never happen. The see something say something just does not work as Brussels, Paris, and San Bernardino prove with the number of people that knew and didn't talk for various reasons. The #1 reason is that people simply have no confidence in authorities taking proper action. Examine my experience with the issue, each time I am putting my life and business life in danger by even contacting authorities in Las Vegas, and not once has anyone so much as responded or asked me how and why I reached the conclusions I have reached. This is a mirror of the warning by James Woods cited below regarding 9/11-it all could have and should have been ended right then and there. The mindset of law enforcement/political leadership on the municipal level must change, at the end of the day the battle and ramifications are like all politics-local.

As you know the odds always catch up, and luck runs out. Vegas' luck is about to run out in the worst of ways. If you would like the scenario I war gamed, I will forward it upon your request.

Thank you and good luck-

Sincerely,
Jerome Almon

Sheriff Moody:

Thank you for you response and time regarding the issues below:

1)THE TERRORISM ISSUE:

As you are certainly aware of, Al Qaeda has Las Vegas as one of its top 5 main targets, specifically the Strip. I am certain that the area has been scouted and targets selected based on my experience in the area and my observations of individuals and groups while in Las Vegas. They will hit what is most familiar with them, and Las Vegas is very familiar to them. (For example the mastermind behind 911 graduated from the University of North Carolina http://edition.cnn.com/2002/US/South/12/19/al.qaeda.aggie/ .

ACTIONS THAT WILL BE TAKEN BY TERRORIST:

A) http://newyork.cbslocal.com/2014/03/19/al-qaeda-magazine-calls-for-car-bombings-in-u-s-new-york

B) http://www.cnn.com/2013/09/18/world/asia/mumbai-terror-attacks/

RECOMMENDED COUNTER MEASURES:

A) Special response teams will not get to the site in time, and must be in place PRIOR to any incident in the immediate area.
B) CONTAIN AND KILL-officers must be prepared to neutralize the terrorist at the point of attack, i.e. the attacker cannot be allowed out of the building, off the block, or off the side of the street where they attacked (Las Vegas Blvd is a perfect kill zone for a terrorist due to its geography, such as the inability to cross the Strip in certain areas combined with the natural traffic volume.) Point blank, these are the same individuals and groups that Delta Force, Navy SEALS, Army Rangers, Airforce Commandos, and Marine RECON/special forces faced on the battlefields of Iraq and Afghanistan-they are not to be under estimated. (Essentially they are Islamic special forces.) They are going to attack sooner than later.
C) Las Vegas should have its own anti-terrorism unit on the level of the NYPD's anti-terrorism unit, NYC learned its lesson the hard way 911-YOU CANNOT DEPEND ON THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT TO PROTECT YOUR CITY. As you will see in the information from the Canadian CIA (CSIS) and the response to that information from both that unit and myself, the federal authorities are grossly out of touch with reality regarding terrorism.

- http://pamelageller.com/2007/12/hezbo-mole-crac.html/
I assure you this is not close to the worst.
I am well versed in this area as you will see due to my studies/duties as a university guest lecturer, and personal experiences however most of my experience is first hand. I left college and joined the US Army, several individuals that I attended college with left college and joined our enemy and did fight against the US in numerous war zones around the world. These individuals are supported by groups in America, and know the country as well as you and I do.

Secretary Janet Napolitano
Department of Homeland Security
U.S. Department of Homeland Security
Washington, DC 20528

Secretary Napolitano-

I am writing you concerning a pervasive and unacceptable sanctioned policy within the Department of Homeland Security of the sexual harassment of female traveler's entering the United States. I have been informed by numerous female travelers coming to visite me in the United States from Norway, Germany, and especially Canada that they are routinely harassed by male DHS inspectors. I find the allegations completely credible due to the carbon copy stories from the females, and the profile of the females- all attractive teen or near teen girls traveling alone. The harassment is so overt that it is impossible that supervisors are not aware of it, do not witness it, and in fact sanction it.

I have a substantial amount of both academic and field study experience in this area, and have personally witnessed the practice by DHSemployees myself. This is should be addressed in the open without hesitation. It is insulting to the female travelers, and also opens up US females to the retaliatory actions by the security personnel of other countries- which I assure has happened. Certainly with all the alleged dangers facing Americans and the gaping holes in border security at the various ports of entry, DHS does not have the luxury expending valuable energy and tax payers money on sexually harassing female travelers.

I thank you for your time and consideration and will await your reply.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

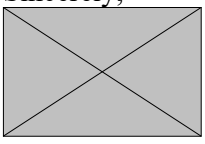
Dear Jerome,
Thank you for contacting me about the reports of sexual misconduct and abuse by U.S. Customs and Border Protection agents. I appreciate that you have taken the time to communicate your views and concerns with me.

I share your concern about this issue. Should related legislation come before the U.S. Senate for a vote, I will keep your views in mind, and share your thoughts on this issue with my colleagues who serve on the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee.

Thank you again for contacting me. Please continue to keep me informed about issues of concern to you and your family.
Sincerely,



Debbie Stabenow

website_comments: I have had previous contacts with your office issues (specifically Bonnie Tischler). I feel it is necessary to reintroduce this information (I will send a copy of thisinformation to US Senator Carl Levin.) I have made compliants against certain procedures and individuals at the Detroit/Windsor border crossing. I also corresponded with the Canadian Minister for Immigration (Elinor Caplan) concerning the fact that even the supervisors at the Canadian border do not understand much of the information they need to concerning legitimate vs. false documentation. (I unfortunately am able to prove this point.) Meaning if say a person was on a wanted list -the Canadians often ask the person to interpret the information.
Finally the Detroit/Windsor tunnel. It is a disaster waiting to happen. Since the US checks cars AFTER they have entered the tunnel (as does Canada) -doesn't that defeat the objective of stopping a terrorist act in the tunnel? The check should happen before the tunnel is entered, and after-or the tunnel should be closed.

I originally warned a agent at a federal law enforcement entity of the threat on 9/11 and although he agreed I was correct, he took no action, stating he didn't exactly know what to do regarding the information, and that he was quite frankly stunned at the danger. Only when an individual drove through the tunnel with what appeared to be a bomb on his front seat did the politicians take the matter up, as you will see with NYC. The tunnel is in a far worse position than it was on 9/11 due to Detroit's economic collapse, the influx of more Middle Easterners into Canada, and this http://www.reuters.com/article/us-detroit-tunnel-bankruptcy-idUSBRE96O0RT20130725.

Tighter security at border hits snag

Legal issues may block U.S., Canada checks before crossing

WASHINGTON -- Checking travelers between the United States and Canada after they've crossed the border -- which some liken to checking airline passengers after they land -- is being scrutinized by officials concerned that bridges and tunnels could be vulnerable to attack.

Lawmakers are pressuring the U.S. Customs Service and Canadian officials to come up with a decision this week on whether the countries can swap inspection locations.

An alternative to paying a toll, crossing the bridge or tunnel, and then being scrutinized by Customs officials once inside the other country's territory is to do inspections before crossing.

Although the reverse inspection system is the only solution being lobbied to enhance infrastructure safety, the two nations haven't agreed on how to settle legal obstacles. An old idea revived by the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, a revised system would involve numerous agencies in both countries in the decision.

"This reverse clearance proposal has a number of sovereignty and structure issues attached to it," said Michel Proulx, spokesman for the Canada Customs and Revenue Agency in Ottawa.

"There are a lot of players involved in all of this. It's difficult to get a sound, concrete answer. No one department or agency would be able to say yes or no."

There's little to stop someone who wanted to damage the Ambassador Bridge, Detroit-Windsor Tunnel, or even Detroit Metropolitan Airport, if the crime is done before the perpetrator even gets to an inspection point, critics say.

Besides the human safety concern, destroying any one of the border-crossing points would do serious harm to the auto industry, one of the United States' economic engines, and many other businesses that rely on just-in-time delivery of material. Michigan had $70 billion in trade with Canada in 2000.

"Every time I drive through that tunnel, I expect something to happen," said Jerome Almon, a Detroiter who drives to and from Toronto at least twice a month.

"Osama bin Laden says the economy is what they want to attack, and you cannot find a more decimating effect than that bridge or tunnel on our economy. You will kill Detroit, it's over, goodbye. But think of the effect on the rest of America."

Firearms an issue

Aside from jurisdiction, the question of whether U.S. Customs agents should carry firearms in Canada is of particular concern to Canadians. Canada is known for being much less tolerant of guns than the United States.

"Our Customs officers are not armed and at this point in time we still feel there is no reason for them to be," Proulx said.

"We have a study going on right now to determine whether the tools they have are adequate to do their jobs safely and with full security. The U.S. (agents) are (armed) and definitely that would be one of the snags in the issue."

The preclearance concept does have precedent. U.S. Customs agents inspect U.S.-bound passengers at six Canadian airports so they don't have to be routed through Customs once they arrive like travelers on flights from every other country, said former Michigan Gov. James Blanchard.

He spearheaded the "open skies" agreement when he was U.S. ambassador to Canada.

The real stumbling block to doing this at bridges and tunnels will be working out how much authority each side is given to enforce the other country's laws, he said.

"You could always prevent (a suspicious passenger) from getting on the plane," Blanchard said. "The question is who arrests them, can they say 'I choose not to fly' then go home, or do we hold them?"

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Detroit, said he thinks all of the issues can be worked out.

"The only impediment here is bureaucratic impediment," he said. "Even though there's supposed to be an urgency after Sept. 11, there seems to be some unnecessary foot-dragging."
Levin and Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, sent a letter to Customs Commissioner Robert Bonner on Jan. 4, insisting on a progress report by Friday.
"It is obvious that inspecting vehicles for dangerous contents such as bombs or explosives after they enter our tunnels or cross our bridges is inadequate," they wrote.
Customs spokesman Jim Michie said he wasn't sure when a decision would be made on reverse inspections, but that it was being closely studied.
Tighter local security
Local authorities say they've taken the steps they can to bolster security.
Travelers who use the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel are no longer allowed through unless operators are certain they can make to the other side without backups, said Gordon Jarvis, president of the Detroit & Canada Tunnel Corp.
"If there is an incident and you need to get out, there is space for you to do so, and there are fewer cars in the tunnel at any one time," Jarvis said. "It also makes it much easier for us to identify when there are incidents in the tunnel."
Jarvis said reverse inspections are a viable option at the tunnel, despite the smaller queue area, compared to other crossing points like the Ambassador Bridge.
The owners of the Ambassador Bridge have installed new lighting, fencing and surveillance cameras, as well as armed security 24 hours a day, said Dan Stamper, president of the Detroit International Bridge Co. Stamper said the bridge company is paying for the extra security.
"We're not sure whose responsibility it is for the cost of security, but we are not in the position to say it's not going to be done," he said.
The bridge authority has completed plans showing that logistically, preclearance can be implemented on an interim basis within 90 days, Stamper said. In doing so, there would be the added bonus of huge efficiencies in traffic flow.
"The current six lanes that cross the border, two at the tunnel and four at the bridge, become traffic lanes and not parking lots," Stamper said. "It increases the capacity of both the tunnel and the bridge, a lot more than anything else we can do today."
Blue Water Bridge study
Bruce Campbell, the engineer manager of the Blue Water Bridge, said the proposal is being examined as part of a long-term security review of the span connecting Port Huron with Sarnia, Ontario.
With the Ambassador Bridge being the busiest U.S.-Canada entry point, carrying 12 million vehicles a year, the economic implications for the region are enormous.

"One 18-wheeler goes across that bridge every eight seconds," said Carmine Palombo, director of transportation planning at the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The implications for the bridge and tunnel operators are significant as well.

"They're all looking at an out-of-pocket expense they hadn't anticipated," said Neil Gray, director of government affairs at the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, which represents toll agencies.

"Nobody wants to do a toll increase to reflect this, in fact I'm not sure anyone has proposed one, but it's an issue we are all having to think about."

Protecting airports is a concern as well, though most of the attention has been on protecting aircraft against air piracy, Capt. Duane E. Woerth, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, told senators late last year.

Noting that airports in Rome and Vienna have been hit, Woerth said he's worried terrorists could attack ticket counters, check-in facilities and lines of passengers waiting outside.

Airlines, bridges and tunnels are experiencing lower traffic flow because of leisure travelers concerned about terrorist risks.

Almon, the Detroiter who travels to Toronto on business, said he's a former combat engineer with the Army and he's concerned about how easily a carload of explosives put together with store-bought material could take out the bridge or tunnel.

"At the mouth of the Detroit tunnel sits General Motors headquarters, a terrorist would get two for one with that," Almon said.

Ahmed Ressam, the Millennium bomber had the Detroit-Windsor tunnel, GM HQ, and the Ambassador Bridge as his secondary targets if he could not reach LAX. Had he chosen either, he would have been 100% successful and 9/11 would not be close to America's worst terrorist attack. https://www.fbi.gov/about-us/history/famous-cases/millennium-plot-ahmed-ressam

Dear Mr. Almon:

Thank you for your correspondence of July 18, 2011, regarding the proposed construction of a new bridge between Detroit and Windsor. Please accept my apologies for the delay in replying.

Again, thank you for writing and for providing me with your comments.

Yours sincerely,

Denis Lebel, P.C., M.P.

The issue with the Ambassador Bridge is equally troubled, the owner has successfully blocked a new bridge being built. The issue too closely resembles the Dubai Ports issue https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Manuel_Moroun. Ottawa wrote me 90 days after my warning to CYA and because again what I warned them about occurred.

The largest portion of the trade comes through the tunnel and bridge mentioned https://www.commerce.gov/news/blog/2014/01/secretary-pritzker-highlights-strong-economic-partnership-between-usa-and-canada

Dr. Zagar-
Good to hear from you. I am sorry I just got to my email messages, I am working on several other huge projects that all come back to the migrant issue. I will have to hook up Skype, I don't know how it works to be honest.

The situation in the States is pretty dire. We are essentially at civil war with the country collapsing socially. All of the work that you and Dr. Feinstein did and your forecasts turned out to be 100% accurate. Simply put, America bet on the wrong people with the wrong plans and now we are getting our comeuppance.

I am against the re-settling of immigrants in the US or Europe, it will most certainly lead to more conflict in both areas and the Middle East. The only hope is establishing a safe zone in Syria and Iraq, which is as close to impossible as it gets considering the collapse of the basic structures and the radicalization of the factions. Electing George Bush was the worse event that has happened to the world since WWII. I will get on Skype and send you another email asap. I am moving to Berlin to work on a large social media project in the next 30-60 days. In the meantime I am sending these articles for your review concern my thoughts on the migrant issue. Would you be able to attend a conference on the issue of the migrants and school shooter issues in Europe or the US with all expenses and a fee paid to you?

The other issue I am extremely concerned about is a threat that would end Detroit, cost America 2 million jobs in a week, and plunge the stock market to below 2008 and 911 levels. The Iran deal was done in part due to Iran has 40,000 agents in or at America's borders prepared to attack if Iran's nuclear facilities were attacked. That is the good news, the bad news is the Sunnis have 3X that many agents in the US and are preparing for their "Islamic Tet offensive." With Russia, out of necessity intervening in the Syrian/Iraq war and the US govt. giving behind the scenes approval for the Russian-Iranian-Alawite axis which will inevitably bring in Israel and the US the Sunnis will go after the US and Canadians on their own soil in a much more aggressive and massive way. My assessment is that the Chinese will be drawn into the war due the unrest with the Xinjiang Province and the Uighars. The Islamic State (IS) has spread throughout Central Asia and will take Afghanistan and defeat the Taliban in the end unless there is a "mass war event." It is my contention that Putin has decided to that. He cannot lose the Syrian-Iraq War, he cannot allow the IS to continue to grow in the Central Asian Republics, and Afghanistan, and he is not giving up Crimea, and does not have the military resources nor money to fight a prolonged war. I believe Putin is planning to use a tactical/battle field nuclear weapon (NATO appears to be thinking that way on the Ukraine which is insane). Most of the intelligence guys that I respect believe that is the only way to stop the IS/Sunnis or to completely withdraw from the Middle East. What is your opinion?
Thanks-
Jerome

(My numbers on the size of the networks mentioned are accurate I assure you. 2 other respected security/intelligence officers that have a proven track record of accuracy, agree with me. The messages I sent to US authorities were more detailed and were sent in the Spring of 2014, and the Spring and Summer of 2015.)

Sir or Madam: I am forwarding the following information sent to first responders, due to its application to your industry. To be direct, I have warned your union several times since 9/11 of these very threats, and the actions of the leadership has not matched the threat. Unfortunately, this is the same conduct of law enforcement and political leadership regarding what is now a catastrophic situation. That is, the industry will suffer huge losses in both personnel and revenue due to the lack of taking prudent steps to pre-act rather than react to obvious threats. The only hope in negating or minimizing the threat is for the travel, hotel, and tourism industries along with the pilot and flight attendant unions (and their allies) to join forces and seek to have necessary security and industry support measures put in place without political consideration. The needed measures must be completely based on the real world security and economic threat that exists, and is getting worse by the minute. The losses France and Belgium are suffering are just the beginning, and minor in compared to an Egypt Air or Russian Sharm El Sheikh incident in North America or Europe. I assure you, the threat is far worse than is known even to most of the law enforcement community.

Sincerely,

Jerome Almon

Hi Katja,

I got your contact details from Marie at Freemuse in Denmark. My name is Scott Corben and I am a producer with Al Jazeera Television in London.

I am researching a piece on soldier in the United States and I am really keen to speak to a guy called Jerome Almon. I believe he is based in Detroit. Maries tells me that you may have some way of contacting him. If you have an up to date email or phone number I'd really appreciate it.

Look forward to hearing from you

best regards,

Brill Leaves FTC With Legacy Of Powerful Privacy Advocate

Federal Trade Commissioner Julie Brill has played a vital role in focusing the commission on emerging privacy and data security issues such as data brokers and trans-Atlantic data flows, and her looming departure for Hogan Lovells marks the loss of a strong voice that has helped cement the agency's place as one of the world's leading privacy regulators.

FTC Commissioner Julie Brill Resigns To Join Hogan Lovells

Federal Trade Commissioner Julie Brill is stepping down at the end of the month, ending a six-year tenure that has been punctuated by a strong defense of consumer privacy issues and leaving the agency with only three commissioners, the regulator said Tuesday.

Schumer Predicts 'Brilliant' Garland Will Win Over GOP

After meeting with Supreme Court nominee Merrick Garland Tuesday, Sen. Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., praised the D.C. Circuit chief judge's "brilliant legal mind" and "heart of gold," remaining optimistic that the GOP's icy opposition to his confirmation will melt once Republican senators meet him in person.

EPA Administrator McCarthy Likes CPP's Chances

U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Gina McCarthy on Tuesday reiterated her belief that the agency's Clean Power Plan will be upheld in court and that any states that still want to work on implementing the currently blocked rule's goals will have support from the EPA.

House Debates Bill To Align FTC, DOJ Merger Challenges

The U.S. House of Representatives on Tuesday debated a bill that would bring certain Federal Trade Commission merger review procedures more closely in line with U.S. Department of Justice merger reviews, with the threat of a veto of the bill looming.

FDA Adds Black-Box Warning To Opioids

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration said Tuesday it will now require black-box warnings on immediate-release opioids highlighting the risk of "misuse, abuse, addiction, overdose and death," to combat what the agency described as an epidemic of addiction.

FTC Loses Tough Antitrust Enforcer As Brill Departs

Departing Federal Trade Commissioner Julie Brill may be best known for her work on privacy and consumer protection, but she also helped push the commission to take aggressive action on mergers and other antitrust issues, former FTC lawyers said.

FTC Likely To Remain Short-Handed Through Election

The Federal Trade Commission will be in the unusual position of having just three commissioners when Julie Brill leaves her post at the end of the month, and experts say it will be difficult, if not impossible, to get the agency back to full strength before 2017.

High Court Split In Lending Bias Case 'Anticlimactic'

The U.S. Supreme Court's ruling Tuesday limiting discrimination claims that can be brought by spouses under a fair lending law further defined the statute's applicability, but because the first split decision since Justice Antonin Scalia's death did not come with a published opinion, the impact on consumer finance laws remains murky.

Payroll Tax Break May Not Boost Foreign Grad Hiring

A work authorization rule for foreign graduates drew claims that savings from certain payroll tax breaks give companies an incentive to hire the graduates over U.S. workers, but attorneys say the tax exemption is confusing for employers and likely doesn't factor into their hiring plans.

Sparring Wyo. Tribes Stand United On Border Challenge

Despite an intensifying battle between the Northern Arapaho and Eastern Shoshone tribes for control of federally funded programs they both take part in, a Tenth Circuit row over a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency ruling on the boundaries of their shared Wyoming reservation has united them behind a common cause.

SEC Inching Forward On Fiduciary Duty Plans, White Says

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's long-awaited plans for a uniform fiduciary duty still don't have a time frame, but they are gradually taking shape, Chair Mary Jo White told a congressional panel on Tuesday, as the agency's two other commissioners are presently vetting the outlines of a potential rule proposal.

'Brexit' Could Undermine European Capital Markets: Report

Britain's exit from the European Union could weaken the continent's capital markets and disrupt the relationship of U.K.-based banks with the larger union, potentially ushering an era of uncertainty, a Monday report by a financial group that was commissioned from law firm Clifford Chance LLP concluded.

High Court Splits On Loan Guarantor Discrimination Claims

An evenly divided U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday said that "spousal guarantors" could not bring gender discrimination claims against creditors under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, affirming lower court decisions and rejecting a 30-year-old expansion of the law.

Group Defends Bid To Apply 8th Circ. CWA Ruling Nationwide

An industry coalition on Monday insisted the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency must apply an Eighth Circuit finding that it improperly crafted water pollution rules to states beyond that court's jurisdiction, saying the agency hasn't shown that its actions weren't reviewable by the D.C. Circuit.

Climate Data Must Be Weighed In ESA Listing, 9th Circ. Told

The National Marine Fisheries Service is pushing the Ninth Circuit to allow Endangered Species Act protections for a bearded seal population it says is threatened by climate change, arguing an Alaska federal judge erred when he sided with oil and gas groups and the state of Alaska in rejecting the seal's "threatened" status.

Groups Plan Suit Against FPL Over Miami Plant Pollution

Citing an insufficient response to new studies linking radioactive materials from Florida Power & Light's Turkey Point nuclear plant near Miami to surface water in Biscayne Bay, two citizens' groups said Tuesday they intend to file a lawsuit under the Clean Water Act.

BLM, Enviros Push 10th Circ. To Reinstate Fracking Rule

The federal government and allied environmental groups have urged the Tenth Circuit to lift a stay of the Bureau of Land Management's hydraulic fracturing rule imposed by a Wyoming federal judge, insisting that the agency has the authority to craft the rule regulating the practice on public lands.

HEALTH & LIFE SCIENCES

Fewer Prescriptions Could Combat Opioid Abuse, House Told

A U.S. House committee on Tuesday heard that some of the best strategies to combat the nation's heroin and opioid abuse epidemic include better treatment options and a cultural change — involving both doctors and patients — regarding the need to be pain-free at all times.

Arnold & Porter, Kobre Deny Conflict In Menendez Pal Case

Defense lawyers at Arnold & Porter LLP and Kobre & Kim LLP have asked a Florida federal judge not to oust them from a Medicare fraud case against an eye doctor who also faces charges of bribing U.S. Sen. Robert Menendez, saying their work in a related civil case doesn’t pose a conflict.

CPA Group Asks IRS To Allow Early Opt-In To Reporting Rules

The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants on Monday recommended that the Internal Revenue Service allow U.S. owners of multinational corporations to voluntarily opt in to the agency’s proposed rules for implementing the country-by-country reporting of economic data for 2016.

10th Circ. Asked To Rethink Ruling Upholding 'Amazon Tax'

The Direct Marketing Association on Tuesday asked the Tenth Circuit to reconsider its February ruling affirming Colorado's tax reporting obligations for out-of-state sellers, saying the panel failed to acknowledge the ruling’s potentially staggering burdens for retailers doing business in interstate commerce.

GOP Rep. Floats Sweeping Reforms To Income Tax Code

A Republican congressman has proposed a bill to overhaul the federal income tax system by taxing businesses' cash flow instead of income and eliminating tax deferral rules for multinational corporations, steps he said would make “America the largest tax haven in the world."

Trump Foundation Cites Errors Behind Donation To Fla. AG

The Trump Organization said Tuesday that a “series of unfortunate coincidences and errors” led to Donald Trump's nonprofit foundation contributing in 2013 to a group backing Florida's attorney general and also to not including the donation in its tax filings, as pointed out by a watchdog group Monday

Navajo Groups' EPA Rule Suit Booted From District Court

A California federal judge on Tuesday tossed a lawsuit against the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency brought by Navajo environmental groups over an agency rule exempting a coal-burning power plant from emissions requirements, ruling that the challenge can only be brought in an appeals court.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS

FCC Bureau Chiefs Defend Lifeline Minimum Service Standards

The Federal Communications Commission's proposal to set minimum standards as part of expanding Lifeline to include broadband balances affordability and ensuring consumers get the quality of service they need, two FCC bureau chiefs wrote Monday.

FCC Tells DC Circ. New Inmate Call Rates Aren't Sneaky

The Federal Communications Commission pushed back Tuesday against phone companies trying to halt new rate caps for in-state calls from prisons and jails, telling the D.C. Circuit that its recent order freezing the implementation of some rate limits left other restrictions free to take effect.

FCC Spectrum Plans Threaten LPTVs, DC Circ. Hears

Low-power television broadcasters told the D.C. Circuit on Monday that the Federal Communications Commission has illegally relegated them to secondary status to wireless services so it can take away some of their spectrum and give it to wireless companies.

FCC Suffering Bipartisan Breakdown, GOP Members Say

Bipartisan cooperation at the Federal Communications Commission has broken down, and its members are wrongly being held back from publicly commenting on rule proposals while efforts to overhaul FCC processes have "accomplished nothing," the agency's Republican commissioners told lawmakers Tuesday.

Jesse Jackson, Al Sharpton Ask FCC For Set-Top Box 'Pause'

The Rev. Jesse Jackson's Rainbow PUSH Coalition, the NAACP, the Rev. Al Sharpton's National Action Network and other civil rights groups urged the Federal Communications Commission on Monday to delay its set-top box proposal to evaluate the plan's potential impact on disparity and diversity.

Pa. AG Asserts Immunity In Ex-Agent's Name-Clearing Bid

Pennsylvania Attorney General Kathleen Kane told a state appeals court Monday she acted within the scope of her official duties when commenting on a purportedly "botched" sting operation and was thus immune from an ex-undercover agent's bid for a name-clearing hearing over her statements.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Political Prosecution: The Unconstitutional Rick Perry Case

In August 2014, then-Texas Gov. Rick Perry was indicted for threatening to exercise a veto and then carrying through with that threat. Last month, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals rightly held that the prosecution was as much an “oops” as the debate slip that famously felled Perry's 2012 presidential campaign. The charges against Perry were weak, and he should not have been charged, says Lathrop Nelson of Montgomery McCracken Walker & Rhoads LLP.

Presidential Candidates Should Rethink US Trade Policy

Candidates for the U.S. presidency must be proactive in ensuring that our trade policies actually advance U.S. economic interests and provide the tools needed to address differences in economic systems that have caused and continue to cause unwarranted harm to American companies, workers and communities, says Terence Stewart at the Law Offices of Stewart and Stewart.

Insurers Must Brace For New Corp. Governance Disclosures

The Corporate Governance Annual Disclosure Model Act and Model Regulation have been adopted by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners and have been passed into law by five states. Regardless of the exact contours of the final requirements in each state, insurers should be preparing to share an unprecedented level of detail on corporate governance procedures with insurance regulators annually, say attorneys with Day Pitney LLP.

A New Dawn For European Patents

The creation of a new European Unified Patent Court and a new patent with unitary effect — expected to come into force next year — is the most important change in the European patent system since the European Patent Convention came into effect in October 1977. It will fundamentally change the international patent litigation landscape, say attorneys with Jones Day.

Changing Climate: What The Paris Accord Means For Australia

As a result of the Paris agreement, we expect to see a more stable policy setting in Australia aimed at moving the economy to one with a lower-emissions profile. Businesses will be hoping that the time for short-term, unstable policy is over and that in due course, bipartisan agreement will be reached on what has been a fraught area of public policy, say Elisa de Wit and Hannah Gould of Norton Rose Fulbright.

Here, six heavy-hitters dish on the daily habits that helped them get to rainmaker status.

Why GCs Still Miss The Mark On Alternative Fee Deals

Discounted and blended rates may be the new normal in law firm billing, but experts say law departments need to put in more work and gain more comfort before the industry sees widespread adoption of the risk-shifting, value-based fee arrangements once held up as the antidote to the billable hour.

Sex With A Client? 3 Times The Rule Isn't 'Never'

The list of reasons lawyers shouldn’t get sexually involved with clients is lengthy. But experts say there are some gray areas in the ethics rules that lawyers should be aware of, even if it's just to help them avoid professional quicksand. Here, Law360 looks at situations in which sex with a client could be permissible.

Cheryl,

Greetings, my name is Jonathan Cooper and I am the DDA assigned this case. I wanted to send the below Email to Mayor Goodman but I do not have her E-mail address. Can you please forward the below email to her for me.

Thank you !

Mayor Goodman:

Last week, Mr. Meeks attorney reached out to me in an attempt to resolve this case short of going to trial. Some of the suggestions that his attorney made were very reasonable. However, I first wanted to discuss possible resolutions with you before I agreed to any. Out of the few negotiations we discussed the most favorable to our position is below.

Offer
Pled Guilty to Count 1 (Forgery- D Felony punishable by 1-4 years)
Standard bail after entry of plea ($3,000.00)
State will argue facts of the case but not recommend a punishment
Pay Full Restitution

As you know, the Defendant is charged with 2 Counts of forgery. In essence, he will be pleading guilty to the "lead charge". Further, even if he was convicted of both counts at trial it is likely that the sentencing judge would run the counts concurrent. So, in my opinion under this negotiation we lose little if any leverage at sentencing. Another benefit of this negotiation is that I would not need you to come to court and testify which I know can be a scheduling nightmare.

Please let me know your thoughts. I am also available to answer any questions you may have regarding the case or the possible negotiation.

Jonathan

Subject: Today's webinar: Words and phrases to avoid when debating public policy

Dear Carolyn,

Our messaging webinars usually explain the proactive language that we progressives should use for one issue or another. This one describes language we should not use. This is because progressives often derail our own arguments by using language that triggers the wrong response from persuadable Americans.

This presentation will first explain the situations where we use the wrong language—where we repeat the right wing message frames, trigger negative emotions, use wonky, insider or ideological language, or substitute facts and statistics for values and goals.

Then we'll go over dozens of examples, issue-by-issue. For example, don't say "welfare," "capitalism," "free markets," "religious extremists," "failing schools," "the poor," "tax reform," "voter fraud," "repeal and replace," and much more.

WHAT: Words and phrases to avoid when debating public policy

WHEN: Today, October 4, 2017 - 3:00 p.m. Eastern, 2pm Central, 1pm Mountain, Noon Pacific

HOW: Register at: https://attendee.gotowebinar.com/register/1061376552149932801

As we tackle monumental issues like tax giveaways for the rich on the federal level, and prepare for a thousand smaller battles at the state and local levels, we need to distinguish between good and bad messaging.

Hope you can join the conversation. Bring questions about any proposed messaging on any issue!

Gloria Totten

Carolyn-

PI has posted its 2018 Q1 and Q2 schedule of forums tackling key issues in government management and I wanted to see if you are interested in attending any or sending a representative (see below).

We've selected topics based on feedback from government managers and newly-issued budget, legislative and management mandates that have been issued. If there are topics we are missing that your programs are struggling with, please let me know so we can consider adding them down the line.

Advanced Performance Management for Government (Jan 29-31)
Opioid Epidemic: Data-Driven Strategies for Intervention (Feb 27)
Program Evaluation and Evidence-Based Innovation (Feb 1-2)
Data Analytics in Government (March 26-27)
Enterprise Risk Management (March 27)
Fraud Analytics (March 26)
Performance Budgeting (March 28-29)
Lean Six Sigma Process Improvement (April 16-20)

Each of these forums offer in-person and online attendance options, and we can also do a custom in-house version of the program for your team too.

Would you like to see the full agenda for any of these forums?

Let me know!

Thanks,

Steven Hughes

Verizon Calls For Set-Top Box Compromise At FCC

An apps-based set-top box proposal floated by industry stakeholders is “a promising step forward” in the heated debate over the Federal Communications Commission’s plan to unlock the TV set-top box, Verizon said Tuesday, calling for participants to work together to find a solution.

AT&T, CenturyLink Rip Lifeline Reform At DC Circ.

AT&T, CenturyLink and USTelecom blasted the Federal Communications Commission for allegedly not delivering much-needed reforms to the Lifeline program, telling the D.C. Circuit on Tuesday that high-cost service requirements are still imposed under the agency's new regulations without proper reimbursements.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Will McDonnell Corruption Decision Save Silver And Skelos?

There has been widespread speculation that the U.S. Supreme Court's recent McDonnell decision provides a means to avoid prison for two of the most prominent politicians embroiled in corruption cases — Sheldon Silver and Dean Skelos. James Corsiglia of Cleary Gottlieb Steen & Hamilton LLP takes a look at whether their acts meet the new standard of “official acts” laid down in McDonnell.

A Weak Case For Banning Class Waivers: What CFPB Missed

The Dodd-Frank Act gave the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau the opportunity to think broadly about dispute resolution. Unfortunately, instead it decided to reinstitute a class action regime that its own study indicates poorly serves consumers’ interests, says Eric Mogilnicki, a partner at Covington & Burling LLP and former chief of staff to the late Sen. Ted Kennedy.

NHTSA Autonomous Vehicle Rules Take An Unexpected Turn

In recent discussions about guidelines for autonomous vehicles, National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Administrator Mark Rosekind noted that states will be allowed to develop some of their own rules. However, auto manufacturers and technology companies are understandably concerned about a patchwork quilt of different state laws, which could impact not only how AVs evolve, but also when, says Todd Benoff at Alston & Bird LLP.

Breach Response: New Laws To Know And 5 Questions To Ask

The spring legislative sessions this year brought a now-familiar round of revisions to data breach notification laws, with states broadening their laws in often divergent ways. These changes and two new Seventh Circuit decisions complicate best practices for responding to an incident compromising personal information, say

Amelia Gerlicher and Todd Hinnen of Perkins Coie LLP.

An Unprecedented Expansion Of Calif. Water Board Authority

The California State Water Resources Control Board's draft permitting procedures for discharges of dredge and fill material into state waters seeks to expand its permitting jurisdiction. If adopted, the procedures would impose additional regulatory hurdles and permit requirements on a wide range of industries and activities, including private development, agricultural operations and infrastructure development, say attorneys at Nossaman LLP.

Nixon Peabody Fights Jury's $1M Award Over Denied Bonus

Nixon Peabody LLP has asked a state court to set aside the nearly $1 million verdict leveled against it last month when a jury found the firm was wrong to refuse to pay a former associate a hefty bonus for bringing in a big client.

M&A Attys Face More Malpractice Suits As Deals Get Trickier

Watch yourself, dealmakers: An unfortunate confluence of increasingly creative corporate transactions and legal cost-cutting drove up the number of malpractice claims springing from mergers and acquisitions last year, a trend that should inspire more caution in the practice moving forward, experts say.

Budget Cuts Force In-House Legal Teams To Evolve: Report

More than half of general counsels have had their budgets cut during the past year and nearly 90 percent say they have faced pressure to improve the efficiency of their departments and reduce costs, a new report out Wednesday has found.

NY Ruling Strengthens Shield For In-House Ethics Advice

Professional liability experts are praising a New York appeals court decision backing the right of lawyers to keep ethical guidance from general counsels confidential, saying the privilege will encourage frank discussions that protect clients as well as attorneys and their firms.

Global 20: Dechert

In the past year Dechert LLP represented Celgene Corp. in a record-shattering life sciences licensing deal, guided billons in debt offerings by Egypt and other states and advised 18 of the 20 largest global asset managers, putting it among Law360's Global 20 for the third time.

Subject: [Marketing Mail] Coding and Billing for Assistant Practice Clinicians

Dear Colleague,

Hiring non-physician practitioners (NPPs), such as nurse practitioners, physician assistants, or clinical nurse specialists, can ease physician workload and boost patient satisfaction. But if you don't know the specific rules for billing NPP services, you could lose deserved reimbursement — or worse, face fraud charges and denials.

You need to know the answers to these questions before you start billing NPP services:

- Which services can your NPP perform and what are the options for billing them?
- What are the split/shared E/M visit basic requirements, and when do they not apply?
- How do split shared rules differ between an office setting and a hospital setting?
- What levels of supervision are required for an NPP to provide services?
- What are the NPP and incident-to risk areas and specific audit considerations?
- Can you apply CMS's "incident-to" rules to non-CMS payers?
- What can you do if the non-Medicare payer does not credential or recognize the NPP's NPI?
- How can you determine who has the ability to bill for services and when?

If you don't know the answers, your practice or facility will pay the price.

You need a trusted resource that provides expert answers to these questions and more. Turn to the Non-Physician Practitioner Handbook.

Brought to you by The Coding Institute, this guide includes tips and tricks, expert-answered reader questions, and sample tools to ensure you learn the pros and cons of hiring NPPs, as well as the ins and outs of ethically maximizing reimbursement for NPP encounters.

Take a look at some of the key areas covered in Non-Physician Practitioner Handbook:

- Boost your productivity and income by adding an NPP, but weigh the pros and cons first.
- Follow 3 Easy Steps to keep your NPP coding incident free.
- New MAC tip reminds practices what ancillary staff can — and cannot — document.
- Focus on terminology to navigate the NPP maze.
- Use this incident-to audit checklist to avoid claim missteps.
- PA assisting at surgery? Check these tips to bill properly.
- Quickly determine whether you can bill your NPPs service incident to the physician.
- Avoid these F2F pitfalls.

Please use the link below to purchase this handbook:

CLICK HERE TO ORDER THIS HANDBOOK

Please use discount code "MS20" at checkout to get a $20 discount on the Non-Physician Practitioner Handbook. (Offer valid only until September 03, 2016).

I am looking forward to helping you ensure successful claims and top reimbursement for all the services your NPPs provide this year.

Thanks,
Atticus Payne

Final OT Rule Could Put Employers In Classification Bind

With the U.S. Department of Labor finalizing its long-awaited rule Wednesday that doubles the salary cutoff for overtime exemption under the Fair Labor Standards Act, employers will now be forced to conduct a tricky balancing act to determine whether to increase workers' salaries or convert them to hourly workers.

Labor Department Issues Final OT Expansion Rule

The U.S. Department of Labor issued the final version of a much-anticipated overtime exemption rule Wednesday, raising the minimum salary threshold required to qualify for the Fair Labor Standards Act's "white collar" exemption to $47,476 per year.

CFPB Arbitration Report Takes Center Stage At House Hearing

Republican lawmakers latched onto what they called deficiencies in a controversial study on mandatory arbitration clauses the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau released in March 2015 at a Wednesday hearing over the bureau's proposal that would eliminate class action bans in those clauses.

Trump Releases List Of 11 Potential Supreme Court Nominees

Republican presidential nominee Donald Trump on Wednesday released a list of 11 people he says he would consider naming to the U.S. Supreme Court, if elected to office this November.

Exception To Civil Penalties Doesn't Cover U-1 Migrants

The U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services has adopted an Administrative Appeals Office decision that an exception to civil penalties under federal immigration law for failing to comply with a voluntary departure order does not extend to U-1 nonimmigrant victims of certain crimes.

Senate Judiciary Dems Push Garland's Case In Mock Hearing

Advocates for U.S. Supreme Court nominee Judge Merrick Garland on Wednesday urged lawmakers to cast aside politics and move forward with his nomination, in a faux confirmation hearing convened by Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Sheldon Silver's Sentence On Hold For McDonnell Ruling

Former New York State Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver can stay out of prison over the summer while the U.S. Supreme Court mulls a ruling that could change the anti-corruption laws behind his conviction, a New York federal judge said on Wednesday.

Attorneys React To DOL's Final Overtime Exemption Rule

The U.S. Labor Department on Wednesday issued the final version of the overtime exemption rule raising the minimum salary threshold to qualify for the Fair Labor Standards Act's white collar exemption. Here, attorneys tell Law360 why the new rule is significant.

ANALYSIS

New OT Rules To Hit Retail, Hospitality Cos. Hardest

The U.S. Department of Labor more than doubled the salary threshold for overtime exemptions to over $47,000 on Wednesday, extending protection to millions more American workers. Just who these workers are is unclear, but experts say a handful of industries, including hospitality and retail, will likely shoulder the lion's share of wage increases.

CFTC May Unleash Legal Avalanche On Power Markets

The U.S. Commodity Futures Trading Commission's proposal to allow private lawsuits over alleged fraud in regional electricity markets is a surprising backtrack on an earlier pledge to leave oversight of those markets to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission and could unleash a wave of new litigation, experts say.

Hard Lifeline Budget Cap Could Cut Service To The Poor

Congress' proposal to place a hard budget cap on the newly expanded Lifeline program could jeopardize the goals of the program by preventing eligible, low-income consumers from enrolling, and experts say the flawed plan is based on a lack of understanding about how Lifeline functions.

BANKING & SECURITIES

Watchdogs Pressure Banks On Consumer Deposit Errors

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, the Federal Reserve and three other federal regulators released guidance Wednesday on how banks should tackle discrepancies between the amount they credit a customer’s account and how much was actually deposited, to avoid consumer harm.

EU Workers' Advisory Panel Backs Prospectus Reform Plans

The European Union's advisory body representing workers' and employers' organizations endorsed a proposal Wednesday to streamline requirements for securities prospectuses, saying the measure should reduce costs and improve investor confidence.

EU Securities Markets Regulation Enters Homestretch

The finish line for implementing a vast swath of rules aimed at creating more competitive, integrated securities markets across the European Union is now in sight after EU leaders passed another piece of the massive legislation and agreed to a January 2018 start date.

Small Biz Group Urges SEC To Expand Private Investor Rules

A committee advising the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on emerging companies expressed support Wednesday for expanding the definition of an accredited investor, potentially increasing the pool of those considered qualified to invest in small, non-public companies.

SEC Seeks Comments On NYSE’s Tracking Stock Fee Proposal

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission on Wednesday sought public comments on the New York Stock Exchange’s latest round of amendments to a proposed rule on equity investment tracking stocks, saying the NYSE wants to limit fees on tracking stocks to a maximum of $200,000 compared with the $500,000 maximum for listed companies.

Pa. DEP Chief Defends Gas Regs, Clean Power Plan Steps

Pennsylvania Secretary of Environmental Protection John Quigley defended the state's controversial efforts to update rules governing surface operations at oil and gas wells Wednesday and emphasized the importance of continuing to plan for the implementation of the federal Clean Power Plan, which is currently stayed.

Power Cos. Slam Enviros' Challenge To Coal Ash Rule

A coalition of power companies and industry groups on Wednesday told the D.C. Circuit that it should toss environmentalists' challenge to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's rule regulating coal ash.

Pa. House Panel Votes Down Asbestos Double-Dipping Bill

A Pennsylvania bill designed to prevent asbestos victims from both making claims on asbestos bankruptcy trusts and filing lawsuits against solvent businesses further down the supply chain was narrowly rejected by the state House Judiciary Committee in a vote on Tuesday.

Enviros Urge Prioritization Of Sage-Grouse In Habitat Row

The Wilderness Society, National Wildlife Federation and Earthworks on Wednesday urged a Nevada federal court to dismiss the state's suit alleging the federal government skirted the law by not allowing sufficient public comment when approving a land use plan to preserve the greater sage-grouse habitat.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Regulating Daily Fantasy: Considerations For A Framework

The glare of the spotlight on the daily fantasy sports industry suggests that oversight and regulatory frameworks are necessary to restore the public's confidence. Massachusetts' attorney general illustrated one approach, and other constructive examples can be found in new laws in Indiana and Virginia. As others consider meaningful approaches, we offer some perspective on what a thoughtful regulatory regime should and should not contain, say attorneys with ZwillGen PLLC.

Uncertain Effect Of Modified Like-Kind Exchange Rules

President Obama in his fiscal year 2017 budget has proposed to modify the like-kind exchange rules for all real and personal property, thus dampening the pervasiveness of Section 1031 exchanges, though is unclear whether the government's concerns are well founded or whether Section 1031 exchanges have fueled investment and benefited the economy, say Howard Cohen and Corey Strauss at Buchanan Ingersoll & Rooney PC.

Proposed 'Political Subdivision' Test Presents Challenges

The IRS' proposed three-part test to determine if an entity qualifies as a "political subdivision" for purposes of issuing tax-exempt bonds would inject significant uncertainty into many tax-exempt financing transactions and potentially have a material impact on the structure and operations of many joint action agencies, state and local authorities, and other government entities, say Scott Harty and Peter Floyd of Alston & Bird LLP.

An Important Question For SEC Nominees

Rulemaking by enforcement provides the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission a great deal of room to define reasonable standards through enforcement action, so unfortunately, it may become a tempting shortcut. The two presidential nominees for the vacant positions of SEC commissioners should therefore be asked to discuss their views regarding the practice, says Peter Chan, partner at Morgan Lewis & Bockius LLP and a former SEC assistant regional director.

Transgender Bathroom Debate: What's The Deference?

The issue of whether an individual has a right under federal law to use the bathroom or locker room corresponding to their gender identity has spurred multiple lawsuits throughout the country. However, the legal arguments underpinning the opposing sides of the debate are relatively straightforward and answers to the questions posed may come from an unusual source, say Jim McNeill and Peter Stockburger at Dentons.

5 Ways GCs Can Make Law Firms More Diverse

As paying clients, corporate legal departments have the clout to demand more diversity from their law firms, and many of them are playing a proactive role in changing the profile of the industry. Here are the diversity-driving measures that six current and former general counsels say every law department can adopt.

How Minority Attys Encounter BigLaw Bias

Racially insensitive comments. "Low expectation" assignments. Professional or social isolation. Beyond the challenges of subtle bias, many BigLaw attorneys of color say they have also faced instances of more overt prejudice and racial stereotyping in the course of their legal careers.

BigLaw Still Losing Women Of Color, Researcher Says

Women of color are continuing to leave BigLaw at a high rate despite efforts to change firm culture, a fact reflected in their "unicorn" status at the partnership level, according to a diversity researcher whose work has focused on the legal industry.

3 Skills No Partner Can Do Without

BigLaw partners take pride in their sharp legal skills, but simply analyzing clients' problems and drafting killer motions aren't enough to truly thrive in a partnership role. Here, attorneys with decades of experience share the three skills partners need to stand out within their firms.

Judge Posner Slams Courts' Use Of 'Stale, Opaque' Jargon

The opinionated Seventh Circuit Judge Richard Posner on Tuesday weighed in against the use of legal jargon and convoluted rhetoric, even by the U.S. Supreme Court, using a concurring opinion affirming a Wisconsin man's jury conviction for selling prescription drug ingredients on the internet to slam “stale, opaque” legal writing.

NJ High Court Panel Posts Atty Ad Rules Warning

The New Jersey Supreme Court Committee on Attorney Advertising on Wednesday issued a warning that lawyers can only promote themselves using titles like "Super Lawyers" and "Rising Stars" if those honors stem from their qualifications and not a rating organization's popularity contest.

UK High Court Backs Predictive Coding In Shareholder Suit

The U.K. High Court ruled Tuesday in favor of allowing BCA Trading to use predictive coding in a case brought by minority shareholders, handing a further win to British law firms seeking to partially automate their document review process.

Justice Gorsuch's Trade Secret-Protecting Track Record

Should differences in interpretation of the Defend Trade Secrets Act arise between circuits, the U.S. Supreme Court might be called upon to interpret its reach. In that vein, one might wish to look at the court's newest member, Justice Neil Gorsuch, and his Tenth Circuit opinions in StorageCraft Technology v. Kirby and Russo v. Ballard Medical Products, says James Flynn of Epstein Becker & Green PC. Read more »

An Alternative Legal Argument Against Trump's Travel Ban

The litigation filed against President Donald Trump's travel ban at this point has focused on constitutional issues, particularly religious bias in violation of the establishment clause. There is, however, another legal argument against the travel ban that does not require looking at evidence outside of the judicial record, says Jeffrey Gorsky of Berry Appleman & Leiden LLP. How Eliminating Agency Deference Might Affect PTAB And ITC

Newly sworn-in U.S. Supreme Court Justice Neil Gorsuch penned a now-famous Tenth Circuit concurrence last year questioning whether deference doctrines are consistent with constitutional separation of powers. More recently, the U.S. House passed legislation to eliminate many applications of Chevron and Auer deference. This would have profound effects on patent-related administrative proceedings, say Matthew Berkowitz and Patrick Colsher of Shearman & Sterling LLP. Read more »

FAR Confidentiality Rule Doesn't Authorize Employee Theft

The argument that Federal Acquisition Regulation prohibitions on contractor confidentiality agreements sanction employee theft is potentially dangerous. Subject: Apr 19, How to Increase the Revenue of an Out-of-Network Practice

Ted Burton

Dear colleague,

Out-of-network (OON) Healthcare Providers are facing a growing number of challenges and hurdlés when it comes to receiving timely reimbursement. Out-of-network revenue is down 25 to 50 percent across the board in the United States – as plans transform from Usual, Customary, and Reasonable (UCR) to Medícare-based, and audits by insurers intensify. More than ever, the amount of revenue you recover is directly related to your practices' or partners' ability to collect balances from your patients in an effective manner. In order to recover more revenue, billing vendors and in-house teams will need to be more efficient and effective at every step of the collectíons cyclé: (1) commercial payors (2) patient collectíons.

If you are the out-of-network provider who wants to survive in these difficult times, join this must-attend session, "The Medical Billing Assessment: How to Increase the Revenue of an Out-of-Network Practice" by industry veteran Thomas J. Force on Thursday, April 19, 2018 at 1 pm ET. With this session, you will have an opportunity to evaluate your out-of-network revenue recovery workflow. Force will take you through a proper and effective workflow beginning at patient contact with the practice, through eligibility, bill submission, payment or denial, effective appeal techniques, collectíon of patient cost share, and exhaustion of administration remedies.

You will get concrete examples and steps to strengthen your workflow, and additional remedies to recover enhanced revenue. You will learn the winning strategies to help your out-of-network practice establish proper and effective workflow to enhance revenue – all while remaining compliant and safe. You will also be able to perform proper eligibility and effectively appeal low reimbursed claims, ultimately increasing revenue for your out-of-network practice.

You'll get 1 AAPC CEU per registration.

Session Highlights

This session will cover:

- State of the industry, especially for out-of-network practices
- Cost share and patient responsibility
- Reimbursement models
- Collectíon hurdlés
- Compliance and fraud
- Billing results and revenue keys
- Compliance and risk management
- Effective appeal strategies
- Low reimbursements of out-of-network claims
- Balance billing issues

Session Agenda

- Evaluating performance
- Eight dimensions to evaluate your revenue cyclé with
    - Pre-service
    - Billing clean claims
    - Post-service (0-30 Days)

    - Payment vs denial (30-60 days)
    - Appeals process (30-60 days)
    - External appeals and regulatory complaints (90-120 days)
    - Reporting
    - Litigation
- Reminders and best practices
- And more!

Oakland County clerks receive large, detailed FOIA request for November 2016 ballots, other material

Clerks at municipalities in Oakland County and across the state are sorting through the largest Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) request they've ever received.

The requests were received by mail and email last week across the county seeking paper copies of all ballots cast and counted in the 2016 general election. Copies of all absentee and provisional ballots were also requested along with any related materials containing the names of individuals that cast ballots, such as voter rolls or absentee ballot envelopes. Some clerks in other parts of the state received requests earlier this summer.

City manager [of Sarasota, FL] pledges compliance with records search

On Monday, in the wake of public and media scrutiny regarding his use of a private email account to discuss some city business, City Manager Tom Barwin read from a prepared statement and pledged to comply with an ongoing search for any messages that might be subject to the state's Sunshine Law.

"Both the city of Sarasota and I are strong believers in the importance of Florida's public records laws," Barwin said.

The scrutiny has come after a resident's public records request revealed Barwin had received and sent messages regarding city issues from a personal Gmail address from 2015 to 2017. Barwin said he has forwarded most messages from that account to the city's email servers, ensuring they were accessible in records searches, though not all emails provided were previously available.

Open government group sues CalPERS over data on pension types

An open government group is suing the California Public Employees' Retirement, saying it has failed to disclose records that should be public about benefit recipients.

The Nevada Policy Research Institute, which operates the website Transparent California, filed suit Friday in California Superior Court, accusing the pension system of violating state law by withholding information about the type of benefits retirees receive.

Such data, the suit alleges, is necessary to safeguard pension systems from waste, fraud and abuse.

SEC Enforcement Hammer Protects Whistleblowers

The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission's recent settlements with Health Net and BlueLinx confirm not only its aggressive approach to encouraging whistleblowers, even in the absence of an actual Rule 21F-17 violation, but also the inherent risks companies face when navigating through the current SEC "broken windows" enforcement climate, say attorneys at Paul Hastings LLP.

Practitioner's Playbook: The Appellate Brief

You've just wrapped up a hard-fought trial court battle, and now you and your opponent are gearing up to fight it out all over again on appeal. Here, experts share their advice on marshaling the facts, framing the legal issues and constructing the single-most important weapon you have in Round 2 — the appellate brief.

Litigation Powerhouse: Morrison & Foerster

Morrison & Foerster LLP's litigators have helped drugmaker Sandoz bring a generic multiple sclerosis treatment to market, forced a $2.5 billion rate reduction in the Trans-Alaska Pipeline System and staved off a potentially disastrous class action against LinkedIn, earning it a spot on Law360's list of Litigation Powerhouses.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

In a show of legal prowess, lawyers at Morrison & Foerster LLP won a favorable decision Tuesday from the Federal Circuit affirming a win for Apple in a lawsuit over a data recovery-related patent, while disgraced Pennsylvania Attorney General Kathleen Kane secured a spot as this week's top legal lamb following her conviction Monday on perjury charges.

3 GCs Who Blew The Whistle On Their Companies

Whistleblower and anti-retaliation rules have empowered several employees to call out corporate wrongdoing, and for the in-house counsel with deep insight into both the company's actions and the bounds of the law, it's a right and a responsibility. But it isn't always easy. Here are three in-house attorneys who say they paid the price for coming forward.

Oscar: I hope you remember me from the unveiling of the Anastasia barber chair and from our friends in common at La Bella Ferrara. The museum dropped my Collection in April, hired an 'expert' with no experience, and is now displaying fake memorabilia that Jonathan was previously advised was fake. I fail to understand how cancelling my small contract and hiring someone with no experience is helping the museum, but I sent the following letter to Jonathan this a.m. Please call [redacted] Artie

Jonathan,

You are displaying fakes, and you are well aware of the fact. During your portion of my 9+ year consulting, curatorial and expository role with the Museum, you were carefully informed that the alleged "St. Valentine's Day Massacre evidence" being peddled by Neal Trickel in Wisconsin were absolute fabrications. You have evidently chosen to ignore this information in favor of the 'expertise' of your colleague Mr. Schumacher. This is precisely why museums hire those with actual experience in what they are hired to do. Those who know the marketplace well enough to recognize what they are looking at when they see it.

These so-called "evidence" pieces are unsupported and undocumented. They are 'fabulous fakes', exactly like the ones Jay Bloom knowingly purchased for display at the "Mob Experience", and now you have taken the City's museum down that same road of fraud and fakery.

I am not going to merely sit by and allow you to display fakes to the public, as I have recently pointed out. You must remove the Trickel material from display and not attempt to use it to defraud patrons into believing that you actually possess evidence which -- had it been authentic -- would be the property of the Cook County Sheriff's Department pending the resolution of seven open homicides. Of course, someone with actual experience dealing with authentic historical evidence would be well aware of this. Furthermore, if authentic, it would not have been lingering on the collector marketplace for the past 6-7 years with positively no knowledgeable collectors willing to acquire it. Further, Mr. Trickel relied largely upon third parties like gangster groupie Mario Gomes to 'spread the word' of his miraculous find -- yet another hallmark of an attempt to defraud -- instead of going public himself with what would have been a national news story had it been true. Instead, he conned the Mob Museum into going public for him and lending 'credibility' to his fraud.

Please advise what you intend to do. Again, you will not be permitted to pull a 'Jay Bloom' after I spent years in collaboration with Kathy and Dennis Barrie to ensure that the Mob Museum wasn't displaying artifacts which are not what they purport to be. You and Schumacher cannot simply run roughshod over history, whether out of ignorance or otherwise. Of course, recent press reveals how your authentication expert feels that artifacts rank quite low in importance to museum guests. His comments shed light on a troubling perspective: which is that it's not so important whether what you are displaying is actually genuine and not merely old envelopes containing shrapnel collected by Mr. Trickel from the shooting range he himself owns and operates. Which is exactly what it is.

Subject: Rescinding Dianetics Day or Month

Dear Mayor,

I believe that you in the past your city inadvertently made a horrible mistake by issuing a proclamation for Dianetics Day. I am sure your Mayor at the time did not know that by doing so you were condoning the actions of the author L.Ron Hubbard, who has proven to be a liar and fraud and who's organization actively destroys families and has infiltrated many government agencies to spy on them which resulted in nine of their members going to jail including L Ron Hubbard's wife!

Currently The Church's uses the proclamation your city has given them as evidence of your support for what they do and how. Mayor Roy of Calera, Alabama rescinded theirs and I am asking you to do the same. I have included some different information here to substantiate what I am asking for and why so you have facts that your city may not have been provided with before agreeing to having your city be supportive of this organization. Mayor Roy rescinded their proclamation based on only the following:

Dianetics and Scientology are inseparable; the former is used as a technique in the practice of the latter, and the doctrines of the former are incorporated in the latter."
– The Lee Report on Dianetics and Scientology by Professor John Lee

"(a) The claim is made for dianetics, which is part of scientology, and inferentially for the whole of scientology, that between them they can positively cure all psychosomatic ailments, which it is claimed represent 70 per cent. of man's illnesses.

(c) On the contrary, scientology techniques, beyond the elementary stages, are potentially and, in some instances, positively harmful to mental health.
(d) Scientology is practised by "auditors" who have no medical training; they use dangerous techniques; they are unable to recognize symptoms and diagnose particular mental and physical conditions of ill health; they indiscriminately apply dangerous techniques irrespective of the circumstances; they not only administer the wrong treatment, but also poison their patients' minds against orthodox medicine and thus prevent them from obtaining proper medical treatment which they may require."
– Conclusions The Anderson Report, Chapter 30, point 8
Kevin Victor Anderson, Q.C. Published the State of Victoria, Australia

Despite Hubbard's claim his poor eyesight, ulcers and arthritis were never resolved and he petitioned for and received disability payments from the Navy reserve which he continued to receive while making millions of dollars from the Dianetics book that claimed to cure all of these for himself and others.

In a California Judge Breckenridge ruled;
"In addition to violating and abusing its own members civil rights, the organization… has harassed and abused those person not in the church whom it perceives as enemies .The organization clearly schizophrenic and paranoid, and this bizarre combination seems to be a reflection of its founder L Ron Hubbard. The evidence portrays a man who's been virtually a pathological liar when it comes to his history, background and achievements.

In another court case Justice Latey wrote " when comparing the truth about Hubbard with the churches published claims and said to promote himself in the cult he made these amongst other false claims:

1- Hubbard's claim was: That he was a much decorated war hero.
The truth is: He was not.

2- Hubbard's claim :That he was awarded the Purple Heart a gallantry decoration for those wounded in action
The truth is: He was not.

3-Hubbard's claim: That he was crippled and blinded in the war and cured himself with Dianetic technique.

The truth is: He was not crippled and he was not blinded.

Hubbard claims " That he was a graduate of George Washington University an atomic physicist.

The truth is: He completed only one year of college and failed the one course on nuclear physics he enrolled in.

Mr. Hubbard is a charlatan or worse. Scientology is both immoral and socially obnoxious…In my judgment it is corrupt sinister and dangerous. It is corrupt because it is based on lies and deceit and has as its real objective money and power."

Kenneth Robinson a past British Minister of Health has stated that: "The government is satisified…that Scientology is socially harmful. It alienates members of families from each other and attributes squalid and disgraceful motives to all who oppose it; it's authoritarian principles and practice. Are a potential menace to the personality and well-being of those so deluded as to become its followers: above all,its methods can be a serious danger to the health of those who submit to them.

I think you have more than enough information here to rescind your city's proclamation. I am more than happy to discuss this further with you should you have any questions.I have LOTS more disturbing information that I am sure will help you make this decision to rescind

I have also sent this to the editors of your cities your main newspapers as they to might want to rescind any positive story they had run when you gave Dianetics this original proclamation .

Thank you for your consideration of this matter,

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Making America Manufacture Drugs Again

While there may be economic or regulatory barriers that continue to favor manufacturing abroad, there is at least one legal barrier the new administration can address that currently places U.S. generic pharmaceutical manufacturing at a disadvantage, according to Frederick Rein and Aviv Zalcenstein of Goodwin Procter LLP.

Re-Evaluating The Clean Water Rule: A Long Road Ahead

Notwithstanding President Donald Trump's announcement Tuesday directing the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to issue a proposed rulemaking to rescind or revise their joint 2015 Clean Water Rule, the current uncertainty over the Clean Water Act's scope is likely to remain for the foreseeable future, say Joel Beauvais and Claudia O'Brien of Latham & Watkins LLP.

Consider Political Risk Insurance Coverage In 2017

While many risk managers and other insurance professionals may associate political risk insurance with third-world despots and banana republics, for many companies political risk insurance may become increasingly necessary to navigate risk in the current domestic political climate, says Micah Skidmore of Haynes and Boone LLP.

FDA Guidance On Medical Device Reporting: Key Takeaways

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration recently issued a final guidance on medical device reporting for manufacturers. The guidance answers many key questions, and should ease the reporting burden on some entities, particularly contract production facilities, say attorneys from Haynes and Boone LLP.

Addressing V2V Data Privacy Concerns In New NHTSA Rules

If adopted, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's proposed rules concerning vehicle-to-vehicle communications would enable cars to generate and receive an enormous amount of data from and about every new car on the road.

Attorneys with Eversheds Sutherland LLP survey some of the proposed measures and discuss a major unresolved privacy question introduced by V2V communications.

Returning Balance To The NLRB

Labor practitioners have come to expect changes when control of the National Labor Relations Board changes hands. As long as the pendulum swings within the limitations established in the National Labor Relations Act, the system remains workable. By any objective measure, following the Obama administration's drastic and one-sided policy changes, it is clear the pendulum needs to swing back, says Kurt Larkin of Hunton & Williams LLP.

Dear Mayor,

In this update we have many reason to celebrate. This week has brought two decisive victories in the Courts and a key legislative win in the state of New Hampshire. While we are still monitoring 75 hostile bills, including a dangerous adoption discrimination bill in Georgia and a newly introduced discriminatory federal bill in the U.S. Congress, we are pleased by the positive progress over the last several weeks.

In the update below please notice our inclusion of an offer to support mayors in the consideration or drafting of executive orders related to LGBT discrimination by our colleagues at the National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR). As always, if there are any ways that we, or our partners, can support you in advancing equality please let us know.

Thank you,
The Mayors Against LGBT Discrimination Team

VICTORY: 2ND CIRCUIT RULES ANTI-GAY EMPLOYMENT DISCRIMINATION VIOLATES FEDERAL LAW

The Second Circuit Court of Appeals issued a historic en banc ruling February 26 in Zarda v. Altitude Express, finding that employment discrimination based on sexual orientation is illegal under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The landmark ruling came in the case of Don Zarda, a man who was fired from his job as a skydiving instructor because of his sexual orientation. Zarda passed away in 2015, but his sister Melissa and his loved one Bill Moore continued the lawsuit on his behalf.

The Second Circuit ruling adds to a circuit-split on the issue and increases the likelihood that this matter could land before the U.S. Supreme Court: Last April, the en banc Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals issued a groundbreaking decision in a case brought forth by Lambda Legal in favor of Kimberly Hively, who was fired from her job as a teacher because she is a lesbian and held that employment discrimination based on sexual orientation is illegal under Title VII, the first time a federal appellate court had ever reached that conclusion. Meanwhile, the Eleventh Circuit ruled the opposite way in a 2-1 decision in Evans v. Georgia Regional Hospital, which concerned a Savannah security guard who was harassed at work and forced from her job because of her sexual orientation.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: MAJOR VICTORY: HOUSE ADVANCES BILL TO PROTECT TRANSGENDER PEOPLE FROM DISCRIMINATION

In a huge victory for transgender Granite Staters, the New Hampshire House of Representatives voted on Wednesday, March 7 to advance legislation that would ensure transgender people are explicitly protected from discrimination in housing, employment and public accommodations. HB 1319, also known as #TransBillNH, would update the current non-discrimination law to include transgender people. The vote was 192-129 in favor of the bill, with strong bipartisan support.

The bill now moves to the Senate for consideration. Republican Governor Chris Sununu has indicated that he would sign this legislation, as this year he said he is ready to "move forward" on the bill, joining several other Republican governors who have vocally supported transgender-inclusive non-discrimination. If the Senate passes the bill and Governor Chris Sununu signs, New Hampshire would become the 19th state in the country with an explicit, comprehensive law protecting LGBTQ people from discrimination. New Hampshire is the last state in New England without these critical protections.

VICTORY: 6th CIRCUIT RULES AGAINST ANTI-TRANSGENDER EMPLOYMENT DISCRIMINATION

March 7 marked a big win against discrimination based on gender identity or expression – and a refutation of anti-LGBTQ opponents' attempts to use religion as a license to discrimination. A 3-judge panel from the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit, which covers Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee, voted to reverse a terrible lower court ruling, remanding the case, EEOC and Aimee Stephens v. R.G. & G.R. Harris Funeral Homes. The case centers on Aimee Stephens, a transgender woman fired just because she transitioned from male to female. The panel ruled that the federal Religious Freedom Restoration Act (RFRA) does not grant employers an exemption from Title VII, which prohibits discrimination based on sex. Read more.

ANTI-LGBTQ "FIRST AMENDMENT DEFENSE ACT" REINTRODUCED IN CONGRESS

On March 8 a group of United States Senators reintroduced the so-called "First Amendment Defense Act," a deceptively titled bill that does nothing to protect the First Amendment and instead is designed to discriminate against LGBTQ Americans. FADA would pave the way for government contractors receiving federal funding, including hundreds of social service providers, to turn away people or deny them benefits simply because they object to the composition of their family. This includes same-sex couples, unmarried couples, and single parents. This new federal legislation is just the latest attempt to turn back the clock and enshrine discrimination against LGBTQ people and many others. We'll keep you posted on developments on this legislation.

OTHER STATE UPDATES

For further updates on Non-Discrimination legislative developments in other states, including Virginia, Georgia, and West Virginia, please read Freedom for All Americans' weekly update.

RESOURCES FOR MAYORAL EXECUTIVE ORDERS

Despite the decisive trend of federal court holdings that discrimination against LGBTQ people is a form of sex discrimination, thirty-two states still fail to include sexual orientation and gender identity as expressly protected categories in state nondiscrimination laws. However, Mayors often have the authority to take a stance on these issues and improve the lives of your LGBTQ constituents. You can issue an executive order that, for example, prohibits discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity and expression in city employment, contracting, and distribution of city services or that interprets sex discrimination prohibitions to include discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity and expression (in accordance with most federal courts and the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission).

A number of mayors across the country have already successfully extended these protections to their LGBTQ constituents, including in Jacksonville, Indianapolis, New Orleans, Houston, Richmond, Goshen (IN), Berea (KY), and Jackson (WY). Mayoral action is an essential step in the fight for equality for all LGBTQ people and is entirely consistent with current legal trends and public opinion.

If you are interesting in an executive order to provide protections in your city, or If you or your staff have questions or would like assistance in drafting language, you may reach out to Ben Panico, the Equality Project Manager at the National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR) at bpanico@nclrights.org. We work with NCLR as a community partner, and Ben's project focuses on these exact issues and his team is eager to be of assistance.

SAVE THE DATE: MASTERPIECE CAKESHOP BRIEFING CALL APRIL 4 at 4pm ET

Masterpiece Cakeshop v. Colorado Civil Rights Commission, which is awaiting a decision from the U.S. Supreme Court, could dramatically undermine non-discrimination protections if the Court decides to grant businesses that do not want to serve LGBTQ people an exemption from LGBTQ-inclusive non-discrimination laws. As we await a decision in this case, expected this Spring or early Summer, we invite you and your staff to join us for a briefing call to to discuss possible outcomes and ways mayors can take action.

Jason,

I am about at my witts end here with your office. Circumstances that find your office smack dab in the middle of get more ridiculous by the day. I have stood by idle for year after year for to many years while your office forced their way into my life, walked all over me, blamed me for negligent record keeping procedures and grossly overcharged me and under reported, ignored every statement I attempted to communicate wrong doings, disrespected me, unjustly jailed me, treated me and talked to me like i'm a criminal, caused me loss of wages, loss of income and employment and violated my constitutional and civil rights many times over.

That's one thing, but now today my ex-wife called your office today to attempt to get some answers and was connected to a women in which offered up a lot of grief and very little answers. Not only did this woman give out information she had no right to discuss; but she had the audacity to tell my ex-wife that I am not sending enough money in to the enforcement offices. This women also goes on to tell my ex-wife that Ashley Deiana has priority over Rebecca's and that Ashley gets funded first and Rebecca just gets whatever is left over. So your office is giving priority and actively funding (with somebody else's rightfully deserving money) a case that has been court ordered to be stopped due to the continuous wrong doing of that individual. And you are admitting to doing just that. So you all are so stuck in the past in regards to good guy bad guy of the sexes that you see a judge taking away child support from a custodial parent as so far out of the "norm"; you are convinced it must be an error or fraudulent or wrongfully portrayed?? Am I close? I bet I am. Well guess what? Your wrong and your ignoring court orders and hurting me and my children by continuing to attempt to enforce an order that should not even exist. The Judge took away child support from Ashley Deiana because she absolutely refused to cooperate with court orders dictating how visitation was to take place and who was financially responsible for that cost. Robbing me of my rights to custody and visitation. The money you are attempting to wrongfully take from me for an order that is not valid is meant for me to use to be able to transport my children at the many different visitation times throughout the years so I can evoke my parental rights and have visitation and a relationship with my children after they were intentionally concealed from me and kept from any physical contact with their father for over 3 years!! What or who gives your office the right to oppose that? That is not just an open question or statement; I actually would appreciate an answer to that question.

1st of all, this women at your office has no right to speak to anybody about other cases I may or may not have. (active or not active)

2nd, this women from your office is telling my ex-wife information that I haven't even been advised fully of yet and I requested to be advised of the present situation a week ago.

3rd, this women representing your office is admitting that your office is operating fraudulently and illegally and makes it pretty clear that this is standard operating procedure as well as showing a complete lack of concern in regards to the matter. Not giving a second thought to; that maybe there might be something wrong here. Instead its clear that she operates on the assumption that "it is what it is" attitude is ok. The exact feeling I get from your offices actions and or lack of actions.

None of what is going on here is OK sir. Your office is ignoring court orders and rewarding a women that; in the span of 4 years time; has committed so many felonies and so much fraud that if somebody would actually do their job and hold this women accountable for her horrendous actions, she would be in prison for over 3 life terms. But once again, what she has done is considered out of the "norm" so we cannot openly acknowledge and hold her accountable for the devastation and abuse she has caused. That would put the Attorneys and the Judges up in arms against their own peers they work with on a daily basis. It's a much better outcome to just let these crimes go unpunished and tell the other party to look past the irreversible damages, the loss occurred, the ruining of lives, careers, relationships, children and so much worse and just move on and get past it. Well that B.S. needs to change.

I want this entire mess figured out, fixed, moneys recovered and distributed and credited properly and the Ashley Deiana case stopped as ordered by the court, the Henkel case handled with the priority it deserves and I want accountability for the negligence and harm that your office is guilty of. And I want immediate results of such. I also would like your office to get completely out of my life as I am more capable of handling my responsibilities then you are capable of handling them for me. Please keep me informed of any progress as it is made.

Best Regards,
Pete Deiana

Dear:

A brand-new better connected rail era is around the corner. Information and Communications Technology (ICT) is promoting connectivity in the rail industry and bringing our great business opportunities. To embrace the opportunities, rail transport companies are building safer and more efficient rail transport systems to implement intelligent scheduling and service innovation.

The 20th Asia Pacific Rail 2018, is one of the most exclusive and influential gatherings in the rail industry in the region, is going to be held on March 20 to 21, 2018 in the Hong Kong Convention & Exhibition Centre. With over 70 exhibitors, 4 premium conference tracks and 4 on-floor seminar sessions with over 120+ speakers and 2,500+ attendees, this is one of the most awaiting rail industrial conferences addressing key challenges and opportunities in both mainline and metro that are key to building a smart, efficient and sustainable railway system in Asia Pacific.

As one of the leading global rail ICT solutions providers, Huawei supports the conference as the Title Sponsor with a keynote speech on the Opening Keynote Session in the morning of March 20; a technical presentation on the Signaling & Communication session track in the afternoon of March 20; a presentation in Latest Technologies Onfloor Seminar Theatre in the morning of March 21, and a booth (E01) to showcase a series of Huawei innovative rail solutions.

Please save your date and reserve your seat at the earliest.

Calif. Proposed Border Wall Law: Questions For Contractors

The purpose of California Senate Bill 30 is to preclude contractors from doing business with the state of California if such contractors do business with the federal government on a border wall. Whether SB-30 is successful in discouraging those contracts, many fear the practical effect will be to inadvertently create some sort of "blacklist," say Michael Baker and Jamie Furst of Snell & Wilmer LLP. Judging A Book: Kopf Reviews Posner's 'Federal Judiciary'

There is a wonderful sketch of Seventh Circuit Judge Richard Posner dressed in a black robe with arms outstretched as if they were the billowing wings of a lean vulture. He is kicking a human brain down a hallway and wearing a half-smile that looks for all the world like a sneer. That sketch is the perfect metaphor for both Judge Posner and his new book, "The Federal Judiciary: Strengths and Weaknesses," says U.S. District Judge Richard Kopf of the District of Nebraska. Trade groups endorse act to impose commission on CFPB structure

One of the ways many in banking would like to see CFPB—subject of our cover story, above—would be creation of a board or commission to replace the single director oversight of the bureau. ICBA, ABA, the Financial Services Roundtable, and other groups all signed the following statement this week:

"A bipartisan commission would provide a balanced, fair, deliberative approach to supervision, regulation, and enforcement. Like we see at the SEC and other independent federal agencies, consumers will gain access to robust debate, giving them an opportunity to better inform themselves and strengthen consumer choice. And it will offer a stable form of leadership that would preserve the bureau's role regardless of which political party is in the White House. We strongly support the bipartisan effort to advance the Financial Product Safety Commission Act of 2015 and look forward to working with members on both sides of the aisle to see it reaches President Obama's desk." Robert & Alice, I'm Mandi.

I'm the Finance Director for Steve Sisolak for Governor. I'm reaching out today because, frankly, we're falling behind. And we need your help, Robert & Alice.

Election Day is less than 90 days away, so it's a sprint from here on out and we need all hands on deck.

We still need to raise $10,000 more online by midnight on Wednesday to reach our mid-month fundraising goal. And without your help we'll never meet it. Can you chip in now?

If you've saved your payment information with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

New polls show that this race is a statistical tie. We can't afford to let Adam Laxalt move ahead, but that's exactly what he'll do if we don't match the special interest money pouring into his campaign from out of state groups like the Koch Network.

That's why we need your help to make sure that Team Sisolak keeps up.

Send in $5 or whatever you can to help us get back on track before our mid-month deadline on Wednesday.

Thanks,

Mandi

Insights on using data for a better banking experience

Using data for customer marketing has been around for a very long time. But being able to track consumer behaviors in real time and understand where consumers are within the "purchase journey"—to see into each and every one of those events—is a much more recent phenomenon. A panel of experts probes the issue of digital tracking. Sponsored by Deluxe Read more

Free E-Book: Cash In The Evolving Branch

Today's bankers are increasingly under pressure to cut costs and grow revenue, all from a shrinking base of in-branch customers. This is forcing financial institutions to explore ways to make the retail channel more efficient. The 124-page book Cash in the Evolving Branch: The Definitive Guide to Cash Recyclers not only reveals the benefits of embracing technological change, but also poses—and answers–critical questions anyone working in retail bank operations needs to ask. Sponsored by ARCA. Read more

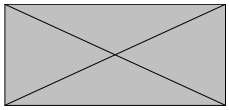
Bill to raise Nevada's minimum wage moves to Senate



Sean Whaley
Las Vegas Review-Journal
May 15, 2017

CARSON CITY — A bill that would raise Nevada's minimum wage moved forward on a 4-3 party-line vote Monday.

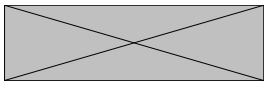
The Senate Commerce, Labor and Energy Committee passed Senate Bill 106 to the full Senate. If it wins approval there, it must still be heard in the Assembly.

Nevada's current minimum wage is $7.25 an hour for employees who are offered qualified health benefits from their employers. The minimum wage for employees who are not offered health benefits is $8.25 per hour.

The bill would increase the minimum by 75 cents each year until it reaches $12 if employers do not offer health insurance and $11 if insurance is provided.

Supporters of raising the wage testified at a committee hearing in February that paying low-wage earners more would help lift them out of poverty and benefit the overall economy by giving them more

Quote: "One of the reasons the framers of Nevada's Constitution included a separation-of-powers clause was to avoid the creation of a super-class of elite rulers, passing laws that applied to the masses but not to them."- Steve Sebelius, Las Vegas Review-Journal, May 6, 2017



Lots of reasons to kill Nevada legislation that keeps retired public employee names secret

Steve Sebelius
Las Vegas Review-Journal
May 6, 2017

One of the reasons the framers of Nevada's Constitution included a separation-of-powers clause was to avoid the creation of a super-class of elite rulers, passing laws that applied to the masses but not to them.

Thank God we don't have elites who shield their retirement pay, their home buying power.

But opponents countered it would mean increased burdens for small businesses and lead to higher prices, job losses and fewer opportunities for young workers to gain work experience.

Nevada's existing wage, if insurance is provided, is on par with Idaho and Utah, but lags behind California, Arizona and Oregon.

Another measure being considered seeks to amend the constitution to raise the minimum wage.

Senate Joint Resolution 6 would require the minimum wage to be increased by 75 cents an hour each year beginning on Jan. 1, 2022 until it reaches $12. It would also require the state minimum wage to be set at the federal rate if that rate is higher than what is proposed in the resolution.

The measure would have to be approved by the Legislature twice, this session and again in 2019, and then be approved by voters in 2020, before it could take effect.

Current minimum wage:

6 states have a wage of $10 or more, including California and Arizona.

12 states have a wage of $8.75 to $9.99

11 states have a wage of $7.50 to $8.74

19 states have a wage of $7.25 or they defer to the rate set by the federal government

2 states are below the federal minimum wage.

Keystone's Mission:

To recruit, support and advocate for candidates for public office who support private sector job creation, low taxation, a responsible regulatory environment, and effective delivery of essential state services.

Keystone's Mission:

- To focus on candidate support on state legislative races and the governor's office.
- To oppose any form of corporate income taxes or other business taxes that discourage capital investment and therefore job creation.

- Support limiting Nevada state government spending to the rate of population growth.

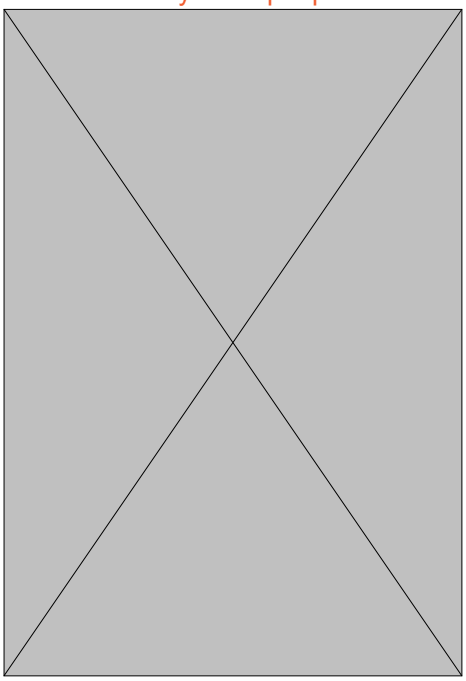
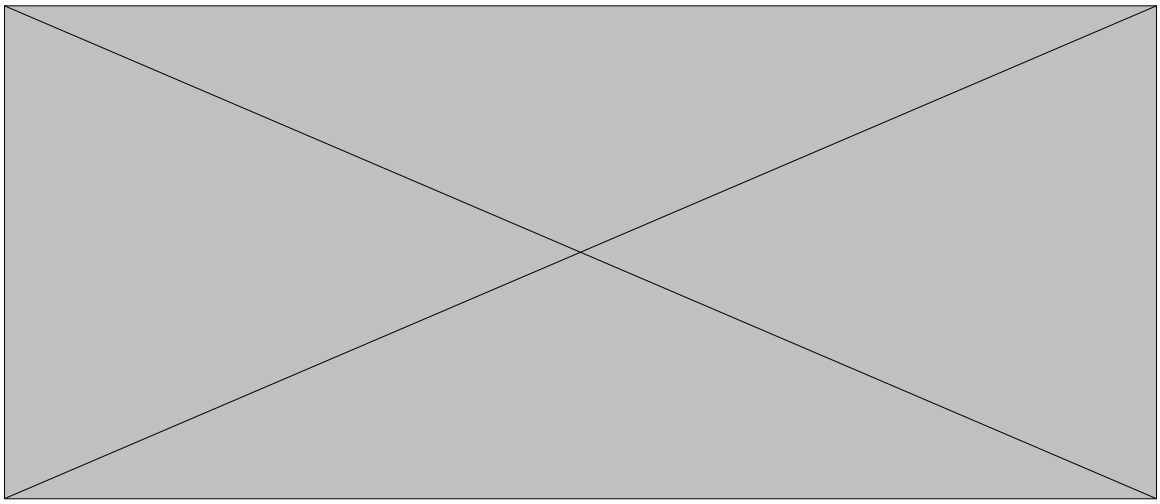
From the Desk of the President

"Every hair on my body stood up and I decided to do something this time", said Katherine Duncan.

One of the saddest moments that I have ever felt drove me to anger.
A man and woman came to Harrison House. She was in a wheelchair
And he was pushing her. They came to me because they believed I could do something.
She had been hit by a car on Washington and "F" Street. People expect me to be able to help them. I believe it is because of two women, Ruby Duncan and Faye Duncan Daniel. I resemble my oldest sister Faye and people believe that Mrs. Ruby Duncan is my mother.

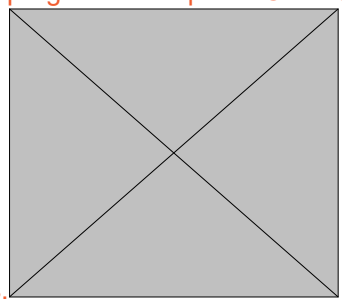


These are two women are tough acts to follow.



Ruby Duncan is well known in Nevada as one of the most prolific civil rights advocates and pioneers for women's rights. She is published and is best known for "Storming Caesars Palace".

My sister, Faye Daniel (nee Johnnie Mae Duncan) is a very tall beautiful black woman known for her Afrocentricity long before it was popular to leave home with "nappy" hair. She made a name for herself by producing the "Rose" Awards and by becoming the first black female police officer in North Las Vegas. She developed many programs to improve Clark County, such as PayBac and the burnt toast chapter of Toastmasters.



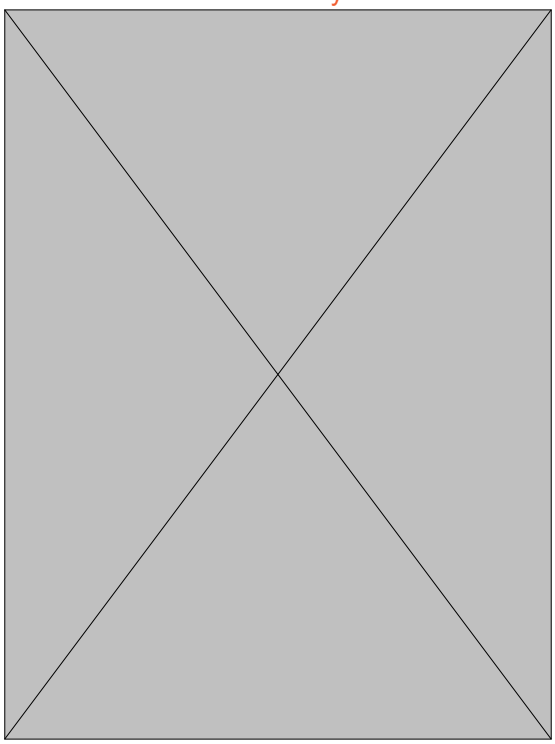
Faye Duncan Daniel at the Union Plaza Hotel

I have lived in the shadows of Ruby & Faye for 40 years but, never did I ever expect to or even try to fill either of their shoes. I never considered myself a fighter for other people. Honestly, I was pretty devoted to myself and to my immediate family. I was pretty busy getting married, remarried, divorced, married and widowed. I was raising my two sons, Derek and Jalil and traveling the world. I worked in business and kept quietly to myself until a group of people asked me to represent them and run for Las Vegas City Council Ward 5 in 2007. Prior to that moment, I have never been to City Hall! I agreed to run and upon my defeat, I was delighted to create a Chamber of Commerce. The idea was to unite all of the candidates who ran for the office to support the winner- Ricky Barlow.

Eleven years ago in 2007, we produced the Uptown View and we were so very proud to announce that we would be honoring the new Councilman Ricky Barlow in the Crystal Ballroom, Plaza Hotel Las Vegas. Things didn't go as we had hoped over the past 11 years.

Now, eleven years later, Councilman Barlow is being sentenced for Federal Fraud charges. The President of the NAACP was named in the probe which left two very powerful African American held seats stagnant all this while the Mayor of the City proclaimed that Barack Obama was not Welcomed in Las Vegas. The challenges facing the Historic Westside and F Street appear to be worse than before the "F" enclosure. This street was closed without giving any notice to the residents.

The couple who came to Harrison House reported that the woman had been struck by a hit-and-run driver on Washington and F Street. Had it been any other intersection, I probably would not have been frozen in my tracts. Every hair on my body stood up and I decided to do something this time. No longer could I take the route of least resistance. My soul was shaken.



What the hell is going on is the City of Las Vegas?

Everyone knows all too well that Oscar Goodman was responsible for the "F" enclosure. Even his dear wife, our current Mayor Carolyn, expressed her disdain for this actions even though she was powerless to stop him.

This 20 year mayoral dynasty has continued to desecrate the Historic Westside from the shutting down of every entertainment venue including the most recent closure of the Paran (The oldest organization known to man), the total destruction of the Moulin Rouge Hotel to the continuous burning of residential properties, the Goodman syndicate in hell bent on gentrification. It was Goodman who decided that the Moulin Rouge was an "eyesore" despite the historical significance of the property. Goodman never spent one dime or used any breath to save it. The cruel part about the F Street underpass was the politics behind its re-opening. It appears that Las Vegas Paving got paid twice-nearly $20 million to close it. They were the biggest proponents for its re-opening thereby gaining nearly an additional $20 million for their company's profit. $40 million dollars later, we still have the same problem that caused the street to be closed in the first place- no crosswalks at "F" Street and Washington.

One property owner, Mrs. Hatcher, recently installed iron pylons in front of her house to try to prevent another vehicle from barrelling through her property. She is hoping to be able to open an office for real estate office and mortgages. She can't advertise her services from her location because it is still zoned residential.

My sadness turned to anger because we tried to warn the City about the danger of re-opening the street without a traffic plan. "F" Street was reopened without crosswalks, speed bumps or anything to control the traffic. There didn't seem to be any thought given into who or how we would use the reopened street in light of the Project Neon, the I-11, Lossee Road or the Owens offramp.

Beautiful historical photos in tiles were installed but no one dares to go there to enjoy because of the disastrous condition of the people living under the bridge. There are people from all over the world facing misfortune living under the bridge. They are waiting for the Rescue Mission. These people have lost their money on the gambling tables, lost their minds on drugs and promiscuity, and lost their souls facing serious mental illness. There are also career thugs under that bridge enjoying the free meals brought by people who have a heartfelt compassion to help the less fortunate. They pour in with food adding to the already nightmarish environmental condition. There is an abundance of wasted food and debris under the bridge which ends up on the ground and in the sewer system.

My being sadness and angry didn't change anything. Our waiting for Councilman Barlow to finish his college degrees so that he could devote some time to the neighborhood didn't change anything. Our waiting for F Street to reopen didn't change anything- Oscar Goodman gets what Oscar Goodman wants and if he wanted the conditions to be different, then it would have been so. What is it going to take bring about a change?

We have high hopes for Councilman Cedric Crear. He didn't come the same path through City Hall's Human Resources department as his predecessors in the Goodman dynasty. Even though he just took his seat, we already have spoken to him and neighborhood meeting are being scheduled. Hallelujah! This is a new start. Barlow avoided neighborhood meetings, instead choosing to hold those infamous and well advertised throughout the valley "Community Meetings" where African Americans from around the valley would attend and voice their needs effectively continuing to silence the challenges in the Ward 5 neighborhoods he represented.

The Ward 5 Chamber of Commerce has long advocated for a world class elevated fixed route transit system since transportation continues to be the single largest threat to the City's economics. Our transportation infrastructure needs to be valley wide and integrated into the future neighborhood plans. Are there any transit plans out there? Comprehensive transportation plans (except an extended bus route) that includes the Historic West Side?

Our plan is to promote and advocate for a People's Mobility Initiative that will create a comprehensive, integrated elevated fixed route light rail transit system that will reconnect the Historic Westside to the rest of the world. Placing such a depot/station in the vicinity near the Moulin Rouge site will be the economic engine that the entire valley could enjoy. A state of the arts futuristic system that connects the Westside to the Raiders Stadium, to Hoover Dam and to the California High Speed Rail would cinch us as a "World Class City" for years to come..

Let's build a "Dam" train!

Faster payments solutions on Fed's do list

The Federal Reserve has selected McKinsey & Company to support Faster Payments Task Force efforts this year to assess faster payments solution proposals from various providers across the U.S. payments industry.

The Federal Reserve established the 331-member Faster Payments Task Force in 2015 to support a broader effort to improve the speed, safety and efficiency of payments. The task force is specifically charged with identifying effective approaches for implementing faster payment capabilities in this country. In April, interested task force members will submit comprehensive faster payment solution proposals to be analyzed using 36 effectiveness criteria identified by the task force.

"The task force members wanted a firm with broad payments expertise to assess proposals against the comprehensive effectiveness criteria they published in February," said Gordon Werkema, the Federal Reserve's payments strategy director.

Both the proposals and assessments will be provided to the full task force later this year for review and comment, prior to their publication in early 2017. Read more

Indy Fact Check: Araujo misses the mark claiming Cegavske gave 'private' info to Trump voter fraud panel

Riley Snyder
The Nevada Independent
January 6, 2018

Donald Trump's decision to shutter a contentious voter fraud panel has turned into campaign fodder for the Democratic lawmaker hoping to replace Republican Secretary of State Barbara Cegavske.

Democratic Assemblyman Nelson Araujo, running to take on Cegavske in the 2018 election, aimed a broadside at the Republican earlier this week after President Donald Trump announced he would dissolve the Presidential Advisory Commission on Election Integrity formed earlier in 2017.

In a statement issued Wednesday, Araujo took aim at Cegavske and said she should "never have agreed to participate in this sham commission."

"Even the Republican secretary of state of Mississippi opposed this obvious attempt at voter disenfranchisement and told the Trump administration to 'go jump in the Gulf,' yet Secretary Cegavske willingly agreed to give away voters' private, personal data for the sake of partisan political gain," he said in the statement.

Trump announced that he would dissolve the commission on Wednesday, saying that despite "substantial evidence" of voter fraud, many states had refused to provide the requested voter information.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

Trump's Enviro Law Impact May Not Be What Many Anticipate

Many posit a material decline in environmental enforcement and a retrenchment or reversal of environmental regulatory initiatives in the new Trump administration. Reconsidering CFPB V. PHH

If the D.C. Circuit had declined to act in Consumer Financial Protection Bureau v. PHH, President Donald Trump would have had a clear path to firing CFPB Director Richard Cordray. Anti-Money Laundering Expectations Under Trump

We do not anticipate the new administration will ease anti-money laundering enforcement. In fact, it is more likely that enforcement of the Bank Secrecy Act is an area of supervision that will increase in the coming years, say attorneys with Arnold & Porter Kaye Scholer LLP.

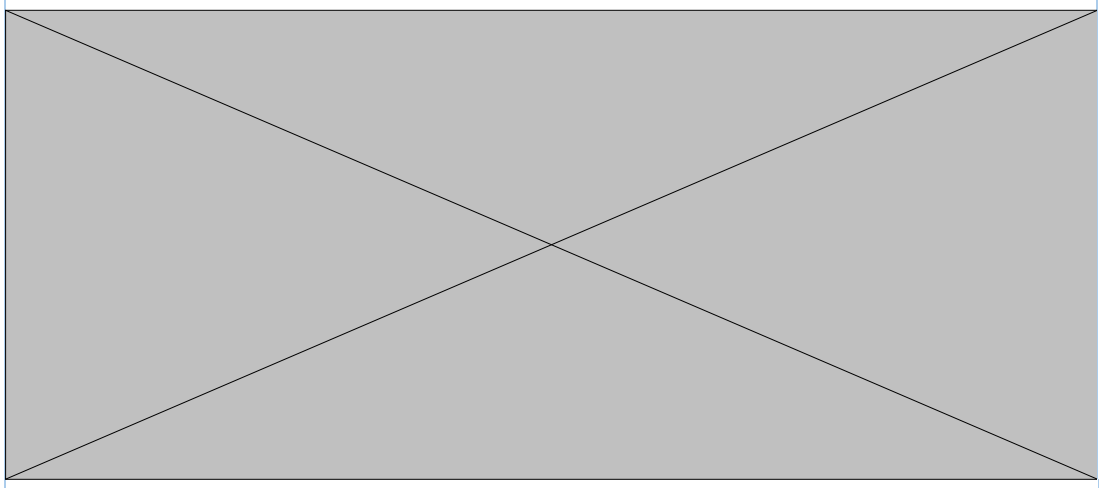
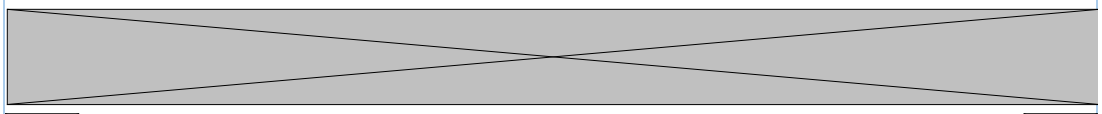
Download Now to Learn 6 Best Practices for Reducing Manual Reviews – Download eBook





More and more merchants are relying on manual reviews as one of their last lines of defense against fraud. Yet even as the use of manual reviews increases, data confirms that the "average" manual review process is taking longer and costing more... with no visible impact on decline or approval rates. What's more, accelerating e-commerce volumes, innovations like mobile wallets, and special requirements like in-game purchasing seem likely to aggravate the problem even further.

Discover six best practices to reduce or eliminate manual reviews from the industry average of 27% of orders to 5% or less — while actually improving fraud prevention and order approval rates. Download this eBook to learn:

- How automated screening reduces the number of manual reviews
- How to best capitalize on artificial intelligence and human insight
- How to reduce time per review from minutes or hours to seconds
- How to optimize your "review zone" using transaction data

FEATURED EVENT

How Political Operatives Transformed American Democracy

On October 6, at NYU School of Law, the Brennan Center will host David Daley to discuss his new book Rat Fked: The True Story Behind the Secret Plan to Steal America's Democracy. The book highlights an explosive account of how political operatives undermined American democracy and fundamentally altered the electoral map through redistricting. Joined by the Brennan Center's Michael Li, Daley will discuss how a tradition of dirty tricks — known to political insiders as "ratfking" — was taken to an unprecedented level, and why this matters for the 2016 election.

Subject: 2X match for democracy on #GivingTuesday

Double the power of your gift & stand up for equal justice under law

[redacted]

Dear Friend,

Amid all the tumult and tweets one thing has become clear. What's happening to our country is not normal — and it is pushing our democracy toward crisis.

That's why — on #GivingTuesday, a one-day celebration of charitable giving— I'm asking you to join with the Brennan Center and stand up for the sacred ideals that define us as Americans:

Democracy. The rule of law. Freedom. And equality.

Make your gift to the Brennan Center today, when it will be matched up to $5,000 until we reach $150,000.* You have my promise that your generosity will safeguard the integrity of American democracy.

Donate Now

With your support, we will:

- Fight for solutions that will strengthen our election infrastructure and protect us from threats like Russia's attack on our elections
- Defend the right to vote and shut down the Trump administration's sham "voter fraud" commission
- Support criminal justice reforms that will reverse mass incarceration while helping to keep communities safer
- Continue to block the administration's unconstitutional travel ban in court

Our democracy is resilient, but it needs the strongest defense to withstand attack. Please make your gift right now, when it will have twice the power to protect the values we cherish.

Sincerely,

Michael Waldman
President

Match My Gift

* Gifts of up to $5,000 qualify for matching if they are made before December 31, up to a total of $150,000 for the campaign. Gifts received after that date or in excess of those limits will still be used for our general fund to help protect democracy.

The Brennan Center for Justice at NYU School of Law is a nonpartisan law and policy institute that seeks to improve our systems of democracy and justice.

Part think tank, part advocacy group, part cutting-edge communications hub, we work to hold our political institutions and laws accountable to the twin American ideals of democracy and equal justice for all.

Quote of the Day

“The Supreme Court already determined that ‘secular humanism’ is a ‘religion’ for constitutional purposes even though humanism need not be a ‘religion’ at all for entitlement to group meetings. The District Court brazenly defied such binding precedent when it held that Espinosa was required to plead that his ‘belief system’ includes a supernatural creator.”

— Lawyer Monica Miller of the American Humanist Association

Family Court Litigants Corner

Another Letter to the Governor:

Dear Brian Sandoval,

I was retaliated against by a Judge, because I was a whistle blower about unethical behavior. I had been writing to you, Governor Sandoval about the unethical behavior of a Judge and you told me I could make a Judicial complaint against this Judge and you also gave me the information for the Judicial discipline board. I made the complaint, shortly after I found out the Judge is a member of the judicial discipline board.

The complaint was dismissed without any consideration and then the Judge ordered me to pay all of my ex-wife's attorney's fees financially destroying me.

For many years now, the case I am involved in is so ethically compromised it is beyond belief. I made a complaint to the Nevada Board of social workers, recently Joe Hart News4, did a report and it aired on 6/26. My wife went to see a Therapist and he started having an affair with her, they have been together ever since. This State appears to have done nothing about my complaint after 6 years! This has resulted in my ex-wife and the therapist ganging up on me after I made this complaint, and it has caused me custody problems, huge obstruction and contact denial, and they have used his professionalism through court in order to do this. They retaliated against me and were able to convince the judge in my case that I was all the problem, resulting in me being alienated from my kids. Not only me but my entire family is alienated.

How can Nevada be so lawless? So unaccountable from protecting the public from therapists that are sexual predators? My family lives in different states across the country and are bewildered at what is going on. How can the judicial system in Lyon County fail a loving Father and children and help a very unethical Therapist who preys sexually on his patients like this to do this unethical crime?

I have been cut off from my children by Lyon County's failure to even enforce basic custody laws and have been deprived of my rights and the children have been deprived of their rights also. The financial barriers put on me by this Lyon county judge is unbearable. I have not been able to fulfill the orders given and it financially destroyed me. Is this what the State of Nevada wants to do? Destroy and run off Loving Fathers because unethical Therapists are free to break state laws and face no consequences? And then easily manipulate small county courts that are inadequate to even handle applying the law? I have not seen my 2 boys for over 2 1/2 years because of this unethical comedy of errors.

My children are being raised in such a toxic relationship of my ex-wife and her sexual predator Therapist. While a loving father and entire side of the children's family are blown away by this horrible judge in Lyon County who had some personal vendetta, bias and prejudice against us.

I am asking you to please call for an audit on this case or at least ask for the judge to recuse himself or rehear the case. I am financially destroyed by this judge, I do not believe this is the way the system is supposed to work. I do not know what to do anymore. Something needs to happen.

Lisa M Brown	$243,850.37
Thomas A Ritchie	$251,714.40
Charles J Hoskin	$235,078.72

Judge Mathew Harter where are YOU?

Each Judge has a Law Clerk, Marshal and (JEA) Judicial Executive Assistant:

Law Clerk ranges from $36,000 to $150,000 per year.

Marshal with overtime ranges from $36,000 to $180,000 per year.

Judicial Executive Assistant ranges from $52,000 to $140,000 per year.

Now let's take a look at the Family Court Hearing Masters pay with Benefits in 2016:

One Hearing Master makes more than some of her employers, that's because she is the wife of one of the elected Judge:

Fraud on the Tax Payers

TEUTON SYLVIA	$241,401.40
HENRY JENNIFER	$219,287.77
NORHEIM JON	$200,298.80
BEECROFT CHRIS	$199,550.51
FEMIANO JANE	$191,282.71

YAMASHITA, WESLEY	$179,558.68
MASTIN, AMY	$179,219.43
ROYS, HOLLY	$165,016.26
BAILEY, SOONHEE	$164,063.47
PICKARD, MARGARET	$153,566.69
CROFT, WILLIAM	$145,031.65
KURTZ, THOMAS	$53,328.09
BROWN, DAVID	$49,202.62

Each Haring Master is appointed by the Family Court Judges and works under the supervision of the Family Court Judges.

Each Haring Master is equipped with a Law Clerk, JEA and Marshal.

This is the reason why the Family Court Judges have three day weekends, half days or don't bother to show up at all.

Because we have overloaded them with Hearing Masters, so they don't have to work.

People look at all the tax dollars we waste in salaries alone.

Most of these Judges would NEVER make this type of money and have this mush time off in the private sector.

We are looking for more Court Observers, if you are willing and able to witness the courts in action for yourself by educating yourself on the judges, court staff and attorneys. Please contact Steve Sanson at 702 283 8088.

What Act 170 Means For Shareholder Litigation In Pa.

Pennsylvania corporations should not overlook Act 170's provisions concerning shareholder litigation, which differ from Delaware's standards and procedures in several important respects. The newly effective law is more demanding of shareholders and deferential to the properly considered determinations of a corporation, say Michael Kichline and Stuart Steinberg of Dechert LLP. Honestly, What Is The Best Science?

No doubt, there will be a vigorous debate over which interpretation of "best science" the new administration should (or must) apply in developing chemical regulations. It is therefore timely to review briefly these science policy issues and speculate over whether there is any hope that there are opportunities to reach consensus on this issue, says William Walsh of Clark Hill PLC. Garland's High Court Nomination Battle Likely To Drag On U.S. Supreme Court nominee Judge Merrick B. Garland may be the most palatable nominee for the vacancy opened by Justice Antonin Scalia's death, but he still faces an uphill, slow Senate battle as Republicans stand firm on their refusal to consider any nominee until after the presidential election.

Obama Picks Garland To Fill High Court Seat

President Barack Obama on Wednesday nominated D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland to fill the U.S. Supreme Court seat left vacant by the unexpected death of Justice Antonin Scalia, plunging Garland into the middle of a bitter political battle over the vacancy.

Judge Garland Could Bring New Consensus To High Court

Should D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland manage to get through the highly contentious U.S. Supreme Court nomination process before him, the "judges' judge" would bring a calming voice and a penchant for inquisitive questioning that could build new consensus among the high court, despite his slightly left-of-center bent on some issues, several experts contend.

In His Own Words: 4 Key Garland Opinions

Chief Judge Merrick Garland has presided over some of the most contentious issues in American law during his 19 years on the D.C. Circuit, establishing a reputation more for his judicial thoroughness than a clear political philosophy, according to court observers. Here, Law360 highlights four of Judge Garland's noteworthy opinions and dissents that may shed light on his jurisprudence.

Attorneys Weigh In On Obama's Supreme Court Pick

President Barack Obama nominated D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland on Wednesday to become the next associate justice on the U.S. Supreme Court, aiming to fill the vacancy left by Justice Antonin Scalia's death. Here, attorneys tell Law360 what kind of justice they believe Judge Garland could be and the challenges he faces from Senate Republicans.

GOP Leaders Grill Labor Secretary On Joint-Employer Moves

U.S. Labor Secretary Thomas Perez fended off congressional concerns at a hearing Wednesday that a requested increase in the Wage and Hour Division's budget will be used to designate companies joint employers of their franchisees' workers.

Chicago Voters Oust State's Attorney In Primary Race

After months of protests, anger and incredulity over the way Cook County State's Attorney Anita Alvarez has handled the issue of police brutality in Chicago, voters took action Tuesday by giving the Democratic nomination to a new candidate who has vowed to upend the county's judicial system.

Garland Could Be Agency Ally In Energy, Enviro Rule Fights

The willingness of D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick B. Garland, President Barack Obama's nominee for the U.S. Supreme Court, to defer to the judgment of federal regulators will likely aid the government in its defense of controversial energy-related regulations such as the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Clean Power Plan, experts say.

CDC's Opioid Stance Hurts Drug Cos. In Marketing Suits

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention's latest push to decrease the prevalence of opioid painkillers primarily targets the prescribing habits of physicians, but opioid manufacturers will also feel its sting when plaintiffs brandish the high-profile agency's guidelines emphasizing the drugs' addictiveness to argue that their marketing was negligent or deceitful, attorneys say.

Fla. Lawmakers' Inaction Leaves Muddy Road For Uber

With the Florida Legislature completing its annual session last week without passing regulations for ride-hailing services such as Uber and Lyft, controversies over insurance, background checks and other requirements will return to local government agendas and courtrooms, according to attorneys.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

OPINION: Missed Opportunity In Supreme Court Nomination

Not a single Asian-American has ever been nominated to the U.S. Supreme Court. Given the plethora of highly qualified Asian-American candidates, President Obama had a chance to show that he and the Democratic Party view Asian-Americans as truly having a seat at the table. He also could have added to the substantive expertise of the court in two important areas — IP rights and privacy, says Lee Cheng, chief legal officer of Newegg.com Inc.

Changing Climate: What The Paris Accord Means For Russia

My participation in the Paris climate conference showed that over 99 percent of the negotiators, experts and stakeholders have a very unclear vision of what the 2 degree Celcius limit to average global temperature rise means for economic changes. For the many countries with very pragmatic policymaking, including Russia, the current incentives arising from the Paris deal are not sufficient at all, says environmental economist George Safonov, who served on Russia's delegation to the Paris climate summit.

DOL Fiduciary Rule Has Financial Service Cos. In A Flurry

Even before its likely implementation, the U.S. Department of Labor's proposed fiduciary rule is having a significant impact. As the financial services industry awaits the final language, some firms are already taking concrete steps to prepare, such as emphasizing fee-based product offerings at the expense of commission-based products or even exiting the broker-dealer space altogether, say attorneys at Norton Rose Fulbright.

Surprise! 'Soft' Insurance Fraud Is Punishable By Prison

The New Jersey high court's decision in State of New Jersey v. Robert Goodwin has received attention for the seemingly harsh penalties imposed on a convicted perpetrator of soft insurance fraud. But as severe as a prison sentence might seem, such punishment for "fraud of opportunity" is not unique to New Jersey, say Christian Cavallo and Silje Roalsvik at Golberg Segalla LLP.

The Grandfathering Clock: Zoning And Nonconforming Uses

In New York, when a zoning designation is changed from commercial to residential, existing commercial uses are considered grandfathered and may continue to operate even though no longer permitted by the new residential zoning — but in order to keep this status, property owners must keep their eye on the continuous use clock, says Frank Chaney at Rosenberg & Estis PC.

Chief DC District Judge Sued For Rape, Abruptly Retires

Chief D.C. federal district Judge Richard W. Roberts abruptly retired Wednesday, the same day a Utah woman lodged a lawsuit alleging he raped her when she was a 16-year-old murder witness during his time as a federal prosecutor.

Bond Behind Trial Firm Wilkinson Walsh Forged By Garland

Trial lawyers Beth Wilkinson and Alexandra Walsh were introduced by a mutual friend of unusual eminence, D.C. Circuit Chief Judge Merrick Garland, whom President Obama nominated Wednesday to fill the vacant seat on the U.S. Supreme Court. In January, the pair left Paul Weiss to launch the boutique firm Wilkinson Walsh, which has already doubled its head count and has five trials scheduled this year.

Slights Easily Confirmed As Newest Del. Vice Chancellor

Delaware assured continued full strength for its influential Court of Chancery on Wednesday, with the state Senate easily confirming veteran attorney and former state Superior Court Judge Joseph R. Slights III to fill a seat opened by Vice Chancellor John W. Noble’s looming retirement.

Greenberg Traurig Halts Plans For BLP Merger

Greenberg Traurig LLP has ended merger talks with U.K.-based global law firm Berwin Leighton Paisner LLP, Greenberg announced Wednesday, dashing plans to create one of the world’s biggest real estate practices out of a desire to focus on its business.

Cadwalader Reverts To Hour-Based Bonuses For Associates

Cadwalader Wickersham & Taft LLP associates can forget about relying solely on work quality over quantity if they’d like to see a hefty bonus next year, with the firm announcing it will again be linking bonus payments directly with an associate's billable hours.

Squire Patton Boggs, Kaye Scholer Revenue Figures Revealed

Squire Patton Boggs LLP boosted its gross revenue last year by 6.7 percent, reaching $929 million, and revenue at Kaye Scholer LLP dipped 1.3 percent to $370 million, representatives for the firms confirmed on Wednesday.

Caucus Information You Need to Know

The Nevada caucuses start this weekend, and to help members navigate the process, the Metro Chamber has assembled a quick guide on what you'll need to know as you caucus.

Please note that Democrats can register to vote as a Democrat on caucus day; Republicans must register to vote in advance.

Get the Guide

Nevada Minimum Wage Ballot Initiative

Withdrawn

As previously stated, the Metro Chamber, along with several partners, filed a lawsuit to challenge the filing of a minimum wage initiative petition in December 2015 because of the negative impact it would have on Nevada's employers and legal climate. The Metro Chamber continued its efforts to challenge the recent district court ruling by filing an appeal to the State Supreme Court regarding the initiative petition. Earlier this week, legal counsel filed the notice of appeal with the courts. On February 18, supporters of the Minimum Wage Ballot Initiative formally withdrew its petition with the Secretary of State's office. The initiative petition will not proceed and will not appear on the November Ballot.

Homeland Security Funding Secured

This week, the U.S. Homeland Security Department announced that Las Vegas will receive $2.9 million in funding from the Urban Area Security Initiative (UASI) program in FY 2016. Orginally, our region had projected Las Vegas would not be granted funding. The Metro Chamber of Commerce submitted a letter to U.S. Secretary of Homeland Security Jeh Johnson regarding the potential loss of funds and the impact it would have on Las Vegas. These federal dollars help protect the community from potential terrorist attacks. Funds were in jeopardy because of how the funding formula is calculated by the Department of Homeland Security. U.S. Senator Harry Reid, Nevada's Congressional Delegation and Governor Sandoval led efforts to secure these dollars along with support from groups including the Metro Chamber, the American Gaming Association, the City of Las Vegas and the Las Vegas Convention and Visitors Authority.

Las Vegas Valley Water District Rate Committee Formed

The Las Vegas Valley Water District has formed a new committee to review rates and structures for commercial and residential users consisting of nine community representatives. The Metro Chamber has one of the nine committee seats. The introductory meeting was held on February 17. The process will last approximately 9-10 months.

The Chamber and Small Business Phishing Scams

Recent phishing scams are targeting chambers of commerce and local businesses. It seems there's been an uptick in this kind of activity, so please beware and read the tips below on how you can avoid being the victim of one of these scams.

Business owners and employees should be wary of directory scams. Own a small business or work for one? Watch out for this con that's targeting businesses by posing as the "American Chamber of Commerce."

How the Scam Works

Your business gets a call from someone claiming to represent the American Chamber of Commerce. The caller asks for an employee (current or former) by name and claims to be updating your company's listing in its directory. They ask to verify basic business information, such as address, business name, main contacts, and phone numbers.

This may seem harmless, but it's a phishing con. There is no American Chamber of Commerce. Con artists hope that business owners confuse the "American Chamber" with the real "U.S. Chamber of Commerce" and share information.

Scammers can use this information to commit ID theft or target the business with other scams, such as phony invoices.

Tips to avoid a directory scam:

- Hang up. Don't confirm information from unknown callers. This just gives the scammers something to use against you.
- Call again. If you want to confirm that the call was a fraud, reach out to the real organization through a phone number you find on their website or another reliable source.
- Don't believe what you see. Scammers are great at mimicking phone numbers, official seals, fonts, and other details. Just because it looks like it's from a legitimate company, does not mean it is.
- Train staff. Make sure that the people processing invoices or answering phone calls are aware of these scams.

- Create a process for inspecting invoices. Always check that goods or services were both ordered and delivered before paying an invoice. Designate a small group of employees with authority to approve purchases and pay bills.

City of Henderson Proposes New Type of Development Application

The City of Henderson is proposing to create a new type of development application called Waiver of Standards, which is similar to applications both the County and City of Las Vegas already use. The purpose of the application is to request waivers from Development/Zoning Code requirements. This ability already exists, but through other applications. With such amendments to Code and with the establishment of a fee for this new application type, the City of Henderson is soliciting input from local businesses that would be impacted by the proposed changes.

Language for the proposed ordinance can be found here.

All comments must be received by the City of Henderson on or before March 10, 2016.

All comments must be submitted to:

Are You Interested In Serving?

In a press release issued last week, Governor Sandoval encouraged Nevadans with an interest in volunteering to check out the list of vacancies for various state boards and commissions, including the Nevada State Board of Education District 3 seat, Nevada Capital Investment Corporation, Cultural Centers and Historic Preservation Commission, the Nevada Tax Commission, and The Nevada Ethics Commission, to list a few.

The full list of current vacancies can be found here.

In addition to the state boards and commissions, there are a number of committees appointed by legislators. The following link will take you to "Legislatively Appointed Committees". Go to www.leg.state.nv.us and click on "Apply to Serve", located on the home page. While there may be no openings at this time, applications are held for two years.

Make a Difference through the Southern Nevada Forum!

The Metro Chamber, along with Southern Nevada legislators, local government officials, business leaders and other community stakeholders, are continuing to meet as committees to establish regional priorities for the 2017 legislative session.

The Southern Nevada Forum's six priority committees are: K-12 education, higher education, transportation infrastructure, economic development, health care and good governance.

The Metro Chamber is proud to help facilitate the Southern Nevada Forum committee meetings on behalf of Southern Nevada lawmakers to help bring our community together for these important discussions. Participants and community members are encouraged to stay engaged in the process by attending these committee meetings.

A joint meeting of the K-12 and Higher Education Committees will be held Wednesday, February 24, from 3:00 - 5:00 p.m. at Las Vegas City Hall.

The Good Governance Committee meeting will be held Thursday, March 3, from 9:30 - 11:00 a.m. at the Las Vegas Metro Chamber of Commerce.

Nevada Department of Taxation Commerce Tax Workshop

The Nevada Department of Taxation is conducting a workshop to gather comments from Nevada businesses about possible regulations associated with the implementation of the Nevada Commerce Tax. The Nevada Commerce Tax, which was approved by the 2015 Legislature and signed into law by Governor Sandoval, took effect on July 1, and affects businesses with $4 million or more in annual gross revenue. The Nevada Department of Taxation will be responsible for the implementation and collection of the Nevada Commerce Tax.

The workshop will be held at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday, February 23, in Carson City and video conferenced to the Grant Sawyer State Office Building, 555 E. Washington Ave. Room 4412, Las Vegas, Nevada.

Proposed Regulation R123-15

Members who are not able to attend the workshop, but have feedback about the possible regulations relating to the Nevada Commerce Tax, may send their comments to the Metro Chamber Government Affairs Department for submission. Please submit comments to pmoradkhan@lvchamber.com.

Chamber Provides Nevada Revenue Plan Resources

To help Nevada business owners understand the Nevada Revenue Plan and how it may affect their businesses, the Metro Chamber has assembled a few publications, alerts and resources. Please note that these resources are for informational purposes only and should not replace the advice, counsel or information imparted by your tax or financial expert.

Proposed regulation language from the Department of Taxation regarding the Commerce Tax has been added to the Chamber's resource page, accessible below.

In addition, to avoid duplicate registrations of businesses, you are required to update your account with your unique Nevada Business ID number obtained from the Nevada Secretary of State. If you do not know this number, you can find it by visiting the Nevada Secretary of State website at http://nvsos.gov/sosentitysearch/.

You can access the Nevada Business ID Update Form by visitinghttp://tax.nv.gov/update/

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

How Obama's Immigration Actions Are Benefiting Employers

Since President Barack Obama's 2014 executive actions on immigration, the U.S.

Department of Homeland Security has created useful additional vehicles for foreign skilled immigrants and entrepreneurs to obtain employment authorization. While no panacea, these measures have improved certain key immigration benefits widely used by employers and entrepreneurs, says Daniel Berner of Berner Law PLLC.

Tackling The Regulation Of Global Airplane GHG Emissions

After years of discussions, the body that sets international standards for the commercial aviation industry reached a landmark deal to cap and regulate the industry's greenhouse gas emissions, opening the door to rulemaking by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and Federal Aviation Administration, say Eric Rothenberg and Remi Moncel of O'Melveny & Myers LLP.

6 Traps To Avoid During Your First Few Years Of Law

First-year BigLaw associates leave law school brimming with confidence and a shiny new degree, but many are unaware of the pitfalls that lurk ahead as they navigate their fledgling career paths. Here are six tips for young lawyers on making it through the first few years of practice without creating careerlong regrets.

Pushing Diversity Doesn't Ensure Success For Women Attys

Female attorneys continue to struggle to make strides in BigLaw, especially once they move beyond the junior associate level. But leading supporters of diversity in the industry said at a Thursday panel discussion that there are steps women can take to help them move up the legal ladder.

Law360's Weekly Verdict: Legal Lions & Lambs

Sidley Austin LLP and Proskauer Rose LLP topped this week's list of legal lions when a state appeals court refused to revive a $52 million legal malpractice suit against the firms while BakerHostetler became a legal lamb after the Second Circuit disqualified it from representing a defendant in a $230 million suit over an alleged Russian tax fraud scheme.

Rainmaker Q&A: Sheppard Mullin's Eric Klein

If you only get 1 percent of your contacts referring you business, that at first may sound daunting — until you realize that 1 percent of a 2,000-person network means that 20 people will be sending you business. At that point, you're a rainmaker, says Eric Klein chairman of the health care practice at Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton LLP.

Rainmaker Q&A: Maynard Cooper's Stephen Stallcup

Cody Willard of Fox Business Network advises clients that it's often the hardest stock trade to make that is the right trade, and that often applies to doing what it takes to develop a rewarding legal career. Despite all of that, we're still having a ton of fun in what we do, says Stephen Stallcup, shareholder at Maynard Cooper & Gale.

EXPERT ANALYSIS

High Noon In America: Executive Orders After Justice Scalia

Whatever a person's view on DAPA, the dispute over President Obama's executive order affects the fundamental relationship between the powers of the executive and the legislative branches, and the consequences of the ruling will stretch years into the future. Thus, whoever replaces Justice Scalia could be far more important than who is to become our next president, says Francis Drelling, general counsel for Specialty Restaurants Corp.

In Congress: Opioids, EPA, Medicaid

The House and Senate have full agendas this week, with Senate floor activity focused on bipartisan legislation aimed at tackling drug addiction and the House activity centered on delaying a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency rule and addressing issues with health care providers terminated from Medicaid programs, say Richard Hertling and Kaitlyn McClure of Covington & Burling LLP.

High Court Should Look At Texas House Bill 2 In Context

On March 2, the U.S. Supreme Court will hear argument in Whole Woman's Health v. Hellerstedt to determine whether Texas House Bill 2 places an "undue burden" on a woman's right to obtain an abortion. The court should consider Texas' sustained failure to help women when evaluating whether the stated purpose of H.B. 2 withstands constitutional scrutiny, say Jenner & Block LLP attorneys who represented parties filing an amicus brief in the case.

Sovereign Immunity For Tribal Officials At Risk

Tribal officials have long relied on the doctrine of official sovereign immunity to shield them from liability for official acts within the scope of their authority. In at least two circuit courts, the doctrine is imperiled and its future use to defend litigation has been dramatically curtailed, say Rob Roy Smith and Claire Newman of Kilpatrick Townsed & Stockton LLP.

Good morning, everyone. So Bob Corker really unloaded to the NYT. Check this out:

"All but inviting his colleagues to join him in speaking out about the president, Mr. Corker said his concerns about Mr. Trump were shared by nearly every Senate Republican.

"'Look, except for a few people, the vast majority of our caucus understands what we're dealing with here,' he said, adding that 'of course they understand the volatility that we're dealing with and the tremendous amount of work that it takes by people around him to keep him in the middle of the road.'"

Normalcy? What does that look like?

LAXALT'S TAXING GAMBIT
Our exclusive on Attorney General Adam Laxalt's plan to erase a new business tax proposed by Brian Sandoval and pushed through by his Sancho Panza, Michael Roberson, raises many questions:

----How will he replace the money? It ain't peanuts. Let me guess: Eliminate waste, fraud and abuse?

----How do the gaming industry leaders feel about possibly losing a business tax they fought for since the early '90s? Sheldon?

----Why is it a good idea to protect businesses grossing more than $4 million? How are average folks feeling the impact of this tax?

This will be fun, even though there is no chance it will happen.

PREMIUM WRAP

Some thoughtful stuff on the only story that matters right now:

“Why did people seem so surprised that the people of the Las Vegas community came together and were so generous and supportive? I wasn’t. Why were people so amazed at our first responders? I wasn’t. This has always been a close community, a generous community, a kind community filled with creative and talented people. Our first responders has always been professional, well-trained, and prepared. I expected nothing less from our town. It was heartening and inspiring and I am grateful and proud to be member of the Las Vegas family. I hope all this new found recognition of our first responders translates into policy. For example, we have seen our first responders have to fight like crazy to get the heart and lung (and cancer) benefits they deserve in workman’s compensation. SEIU (UMC) employees are forced to constantly fight for wages, working conditions, and reasonable staffing ratios. Or fighting for “More Cops.” They are all constantly fighting for pension benefits for “first responders.” I am sure they love your tweets expressing your gratitude, but next time there is a policy consideration for our “first responders,” remember that what we saw Sunday and Monday doesn’t just happen by accident. It takes people and resources; people and resources we hope and pray we never have to use, but when we do, we are glad they are there. “

And:

“The questions for Sandoval, Heller, Amodei, Cortez-Masto, Frierson, Ford, Roberson, Anderson, Wheeler, and the entire Nevada elected leadership: What vote have you taken; what protections have you put in place; and what actions have you taken to protect Nevadans since IHOP in fall 2011? The answer across the board is NOTHING. As of 2008, you can no longer hide behind the 2nd Amendment and Constitutional rights as the reason for your inaction. You all can specifically and affirmatively state that you believe Scalia was incorrect and the 2nd Amendment protections are much more comprehensive than Scalia said they were. None of you have done that. There have been multiple mass shootings in Nevada since 2011 and thousands of incidents of gun violence. What have you done about it? The question is not what legislation should be passed to address any one specific situation. The gun violence is omnipresent. It is causes more deaths and injuries than any other subject matter you have legislated or addressed in the past decade. Every single one of you has voted for more new license plates in Nevada than bills protecting Nevadans from senseless gun violence. Shame on all of you. You are not responsible for what happened in Las Vegas, but you have no moral high ground to claim anything other than shame that more Nevadans have died from gun violence since 2011 because you have done nothing.”

TRIVIA QUESTION OF THE DAY

A million people in Los Angeles attended a parade this day in history because they were affected by something that happened in Nevada. What was it?

Friday’s winner: Zach Conine (again)

The question: On this day in history, a national TV network aired a story that would later cause its subject to sue as well as utter a classic statement: “I'm an XXXX boy from Virginia, What do I know about the XXXX?" Who was it, and fill in the blanks

The answer: Wayne Newton, Indian and Mafia

A Plan to Raise the Caps Without Breaking the Bank

June 20, 2019

Read the paper.

Due to the large temporary increase in discretionary spending levels for Fiscal Years 2018 and 2019 in the Bi Act of 2018, spending is projected to fall by 10 percent ($126 billion) next year, returning to the sequester-leve the 2011 Budget Control Act. Unfortunately, existing proposals to avoid these cuts would cost roughly $350 b years – twice as much as simply repealing the sequester – and add about $2 trillion to projected debt levels decade.

Debt is already on an unsustainable path, and policymakers should not worsen the situation by lifting discreti to record levels without offsets. Instead, policymakers should chart a reasonable and responsible path fo spending through a new multi-year cap regime that is fully offset with mandatory spending reductio revenue.

There are many options available to offset these costs, including numerous policies put forward by Presid President Obama, or both (see appendices). In this paper, we present an illustrative plan based on policies v appeal.

Our illustrative plan would:

1. Increase the caps through a two-year spending freeze at FY 2019 levels, at a cost of roughly $2 ten years.
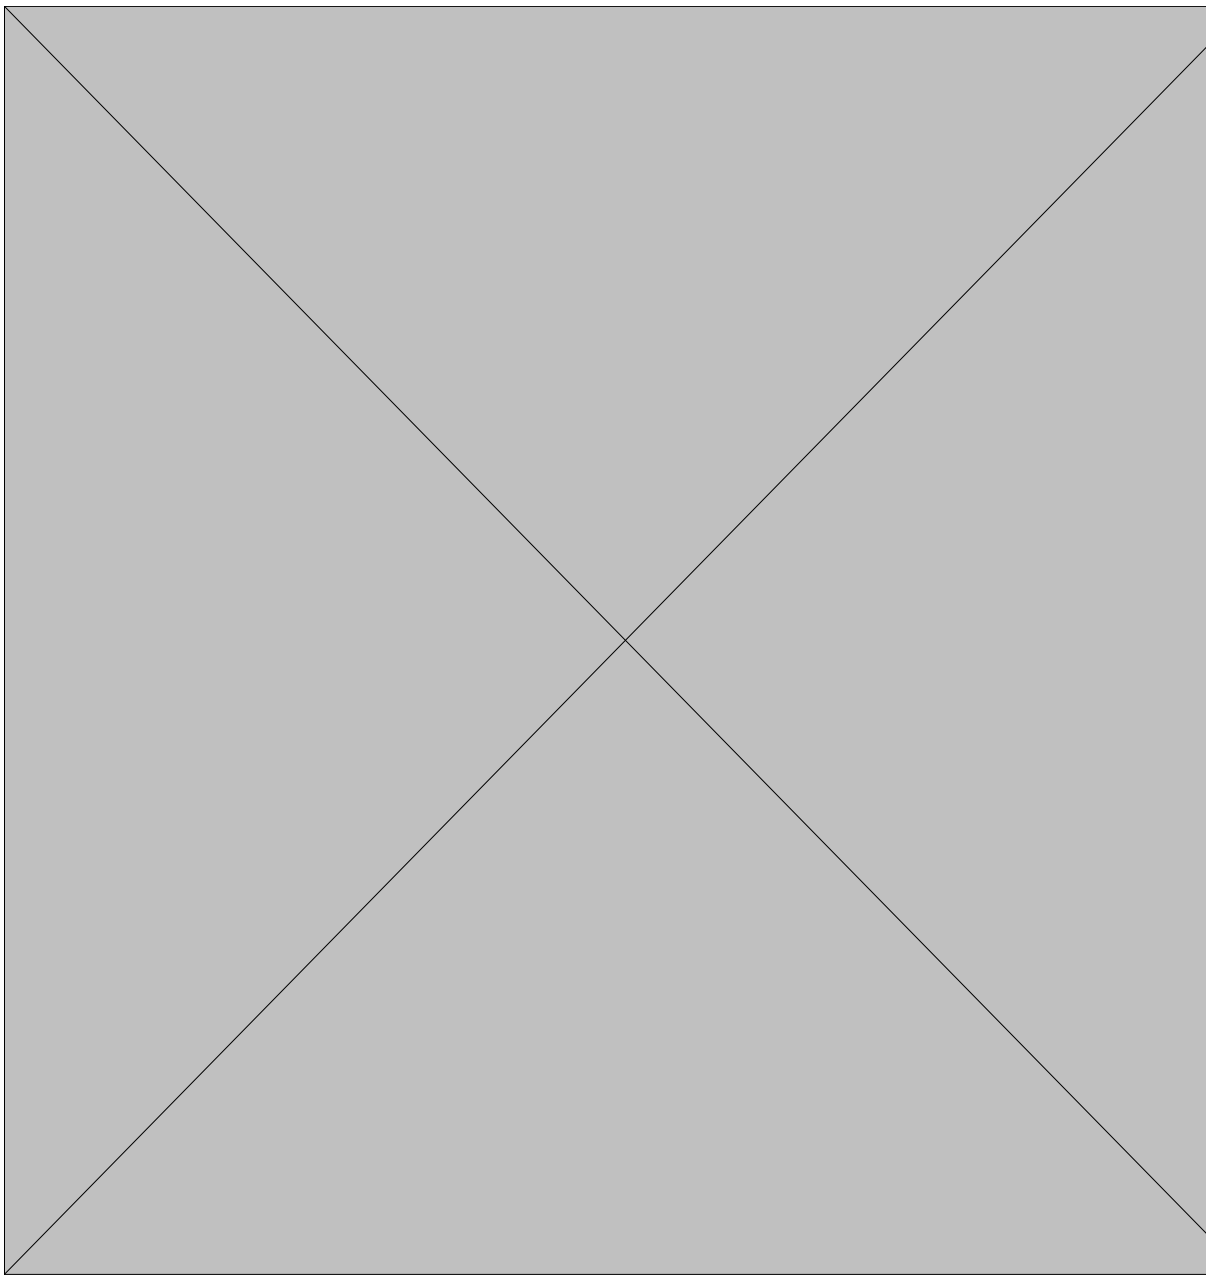
2. Offset the cap deal with bipartisan deficit reduction, including $75 billion each in spending cuts, t offsetting receipts.
3. Extend the caps through 2029 and offset the cost. We suggest freezing spending through 2023, inflation thereafter, and enacting $350 billion in bipartisan health reforms and fixes to the 2017 t
4. Improve the integrity of the caps and facilitate future budget deals by placing limits on tactics to above the spending caps and formalize a process to offset future cap increases with alternative s

In addition to setting discretionary spending levels for at least FY 2020, policymakers must raise or suspend t avoid the threat of a potentially catastrophic default. Rather than simply enacting a one-time increase, we pro the debt limit with a new process to limit debt through a series of fiscal targets.

Importantly, this plan is an illustrative example of responsible action and does not provide the definitive roadr spending levels policymakers choose, they must offset the cost to prevent a bad fiscal situation from beco



The Cost of Current Policy

The Bipartisan Budget Act (BBA) of 2018 increased spending by 16 percent between 2017 and 2019 but al percent spending drop in 2020. Avoiding this cliff by continuing current spending levels in real terms would trillion in debt over the decade. Neither outcome is acceptable.

Since 2012, discretionary spending levels have been set through the Budget Control Act (BCA) of 2011, whi defense and non-defense discretionary spending caps that both parties saw as reasonable. Those caps we roughly $90 billion per year to 'sequester levels' after a broader debt reduction plan failed to materialize. Betw 2017, policymakers increased caps to between these two levels, offsetting the cost above sequester

Unfortunately, lawmakers broke this trend in the BBA 2018, increasing the discretionary caps by $153 billion i $62 billion more than simply reversing the sequester – and bringing discretionary spending to near-record troubling, they failed to offset the cost, making future generations pay for it by adding it to the nationa

Some lawmakers want to continue this practice by increasing spending levels in 2020 and 2021 to above
Because the current caps end after 2021, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) will assume discretionary s with inflation from 2021 levels, and that assumption will effectively become the new baseline for future discreti

As a result, growing 2019 levels with inflation through 2021 would ultimately add about $2 trillion in projected next decade, twice as much as simply repealing the sequester and comparable to the cost of the 2017 tax cu would increase projected debt from 92 percent of Gross Domestic Product (GDP) at the end of 2029 to 9

A Realistic and Responsible Path Forward

Rather than enacting a massive spending increase without offsets or allowing an abrupt reduction in military domestic government services, policymakers should aim to strike a balance that ensures adequate spending add to the debt. The best approach would be to establish a new set of caps over the next decade to smooth from current levels of spending to levels policymakers could more easily pay for.

Policymakers could select several paths to achieve this goal. For example, growing current spending levels would add about $2 trillion in projected debt, while enacting a two-year spending freeze at current levels or r BCA pre-sequester caps would cost about $1 trillion. Extending that freeze for four years would cost $575 extending it for six years would cost $275 billion – saving money in the second half of the decad

In each case, the first two years represent the direct cost (over a decade) whereas the next eight years repres cost imposed by CBO's baseline assumption. The direct cost of growing the caps with inflation over the nex about $350 billion, whereas the cost of freezing spending for the next two to six years is about $225

While policymakers should set caps for the next decade, they could focus their efforts on setting achievable le two years and then set placeholder caps that could be adjusted in future budget agreements.

In any case, lawmakers must put forward sufficient offsets to cover the full ten-year cost of their proposed in these offsets do not need to cover all costs in the first year, they should pay for the new spending within a dec deficits over time by tackling the long-term growth of mandatory spending and lack of sufficient reve

The appendices of this paper include two tables of offsets with potential for bipartisan support.

An Illustrative Plan To Raise the Caps Without Breaking the Bank

While there is not one single correct way to responsibly raise discretionary spending caps, we suggest an illus would do the following:

1. Increase current law caps through a two-year spending freeze at current levels
2. Offset the cap deal with bipartisan deficit reduction
3. Extend the caps through 2029 and offset the cost
4. Improve the integrity of the caps and facilitate future budget deals

Increase the caps through a two-year spending freeze

To prevent the 10 percent funding cliff called for under current law, we recommend freezing spending at 201 least the next two years. This increase would have a direct cost of about $225 billion, compared to $350 billi grows with inflation.

Importantly, a two-year freeze would still leave 2021 appropriations 16 percent above 2017 levels in nominal t higher in real terms, and about the same size as a share of GDP. Spending would be about 9 percent higher t caps and 1 percent above the pre-sequester caps agreed to on a bipartisan basis in the BCA.

At the same time, a two-year freeze would erode the extremely high real levels of defense and non-defens appropriated over the past two years, reducing them from near their record to levels more consistent with re would also force appropriators to identify efficiencies and targeted spending cuts rather than continue to spe each year.

Offset the cap deal with bipartisan deficit reduction

The $225 billion cost of a two-year spending freeze could be offset with policies that have bipartisan support, appear in budget proposals put forward both by President Trump and former President Obama. While lawmak any combination of mandatory spending and revenue adjustments they choose, our illustrative plan suggests $ revenue, $75 billion in spending reductions, and $75 billion in offsetting receipts, such as premiums and

On the revenue side, we suggest policies proposed by Presidents Trump and Obama to reduce the tax gap – between taxes owed and taxes paid – mainly by increasing tax enforcement funding for the Internal Revenue We also suggest policies both have supported to extend excise taxes for oil spill liability and nuclear waste cl we suggest closing loopholes that allow earned income to be classified as lower-taxed capital gains or busi

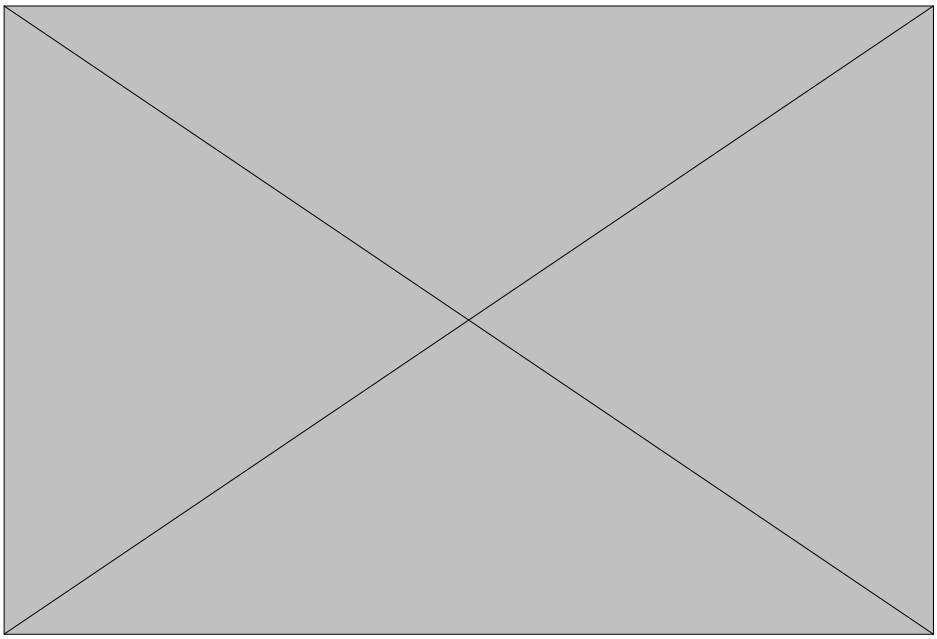
On the spending side, we propose a number of bipartisan policies to reduce health care spending, including increase the availability of low-cost generic prescription drugs, limit out-of-network surprise billing, and close allows hospital-owned physician clinics to receive higher Medicare payments than physician-owned clinics. I suggest extending the mandatory spending sequester, which reduces Medicare and other spending through expires. Lastly, we suggest adopting some modest proposals from President Trump's latest budget to reduce and overpayments throughout government and limiting farm subsidies, mainly for higher earners

The largest offsetting receipts in our illustrative proposal come from extending the current freeze on the incom Medicare means-tested premiums, which expires after this year, for two years, slightly increasing the number beneficiaries who pay higher premiums. We also suggest extending and increasing customs fees and Transpo Administration (TSA) fees; increasing premiums for the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC), Fan Freddie Mac; increasing food safety user fees; selling and charging user fees for spectrum; and enacting a n small proposals.

Extend the caps through 2029 and offset the cost

Our unsustainable fiscal outlook requires long-term discipline throughout the budget. The discretionary spendi be extended at least through 2029 at a level that is both responsible and achievable, and any increases rela current law projections should be offset with changes to mandatory spending and/or revenue.

Our illustrative plan assumes the suggested spending freeze will continue through 2023, bringing discretion levels about halfway between pre-sequester and post-sequester levels, which is where they were every year and 2017. Doing so would cost an additional $350 billion through 2029 ($575 billion in total spending increas $45 billion in 2029. Lawmakers could further increase spending so long as they offset the increase with othe revenue adjustments.



We suggest three sources to cover the $350 billion cost. First, our illustrative plan would reduce Medicare sp acute care and bad debts as proposed by both President Trump and President Obama.

Second, our illustrative plan would reverse a recent rule that requires drug rebates in Medicare Part D and Me care to be passed directly to consumers; in its place, the plan would enact alternative reforms to reduce Part D individuals and the government. These reforms include a hard cap on out-of-pocket spending – proposed by P – and changes to the program's low-income subsidy (LIS) program – proposed by President Obama – to enc of low-cost generic drugs.

Finally, our illustrative plan would improve the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act (TCJA) by replacing a scheduled am research costs that could slow economic growth (and is unlikely to be allowed to occur) with a limit on the deductibility of state and local taxes (SALT). The TCJA already caps the SALT deduction for individuals at $1 change would promote parity and reduce possible gaming under current law.

Improve the integrity of the caps and facilitate future budget deals

In addition to increasing and extending the caps, policymakers should strengthen them. That means estab guidelines and requirements for discretionary spending not subject to the caps, such as Overseas Contingen (OCO), disaster relief, or emergency spending. Cap exceptions should be limited and clearly defined in orde fiscal discipline and transparency.

Lawmakers should explicitly cap OCO spending for future years, phase out the ability of appropriations to r changes in mandatory spending programs (CHIMPs) that allow discretionary spending to increase without ac mandatory spending, and create new offset rules to require disaster costs be paid for over some perioc

Lastly, lawmakers should consider designing an explicit process – either through pay-as-you-go rules (PAY

An Illustrative Framework to Replace the Debt Limit

Estimates from CBO and the Bipartisan Policy Center (BPC) find that Congress will need to increase or suspe debt limit by October or early November of 2019 or else default on some of the country's obligations. Such a result in economic catastrophe, and even coming close to default could shake markets. Policymakers must th the debt limit sooner rather than later; they are likely to do so in combination with a budget cap de

Rather than simply increasing or suspending the debt limit, we suggest reforming it. Today's statutory debt lir numerous well-known defects that become clearer each year. In addition, the debt limit actually does little to c debt from growing unsustainably relative to the economy – except by serving as a reminder for policymakers

We therefore suggest replacing the debt limit with a series of new fiscal targets. Unlike the current debt limit, w nominal gross debt, these fiscal targets should be economically meaningful and based on fiscal goals that bot to. These could be debt-to-GDP targets focused on stabilizing the debt ratio, or they could be deficit targets transition to structural primary balance (current spending less than current revenue, excluding net interest) w put debt on a downward path so long as interest rates remain below the growth rate.

In addition to annual targets, lawmakers could consider long-term targets designed to limit future debt growth they could target reductions in projected debt at some point in the future, narrowing the long-term fiscal gap, country's net liabilities.

Policymakers should include a process to facilitate deficit reduction in order to achieve these targets, whic process similar to budget reconciliation, a requirement to vote on presidential recommendations, a commissio something else.

They should also include enforcement. For example, failure to achieve fiscal targets could result in a freeze o discretionary cap levels as well as mandatory spending and revenue provisions. The more these adjustment modifications to current policy rather than across-the-board cuts, the more likely they are to wor

Fiscal targets could also be encouraged and enforced by making debt limit repeal conditional on achieving th the event targets are missed, lawmakers would have to vote explicitly in support of increasing the deb

Conclusion

It would be highly disruptive to allow defense and non-defense discretionary spending to fall by 10 percent levels, and it would be disastrous to breach the debt limit. However, the need to avoid a spending cliff and rais should not be an excuse to add trillions of dollars to the national debt.

Current discretionary spending levels are already at near record-highs, and continuing to grow them at their would be the equivalent of lifting the sequester twice over. Lawmakers should instead transition to more rea affordable levels of spending and more importantly should fully offset the cost by addressing the growth of spending and raising more revenue.

Lawmakers should also reform or replace the debt ceiling with a mechanism that will better control rising deb the economy without threatening the full faith and credit of the U.S. government.

Our illustrative plan would responsibly address the pending funding cliff by freezing spending at 2019 levels extending caps through 2029, and paying for the cost of these proposals through mix of spending and revenu enjoy bipartisan support. In the appendix to this paper, we also put forward alternative options to offset a new Additionally, we propose to improve the integrity of the caps and facilitate future budget deals through a variet budget rules.

This paper also puts forward an illustrative framework to replace the debt limit with a new process that would a more meaningfully limit debt through a series of fiscal targets and a process to achieve those targ

While these plans are illustrative, they show a responsible path forward. Whatever discretionary spending leve agree to, their cost must be offset to prevent our unsustainable fiscal outlook from becoming wor

I am writing every news channel in town asking, pleading and begging each and every station to please check into airing and investigate the unfair and corrupt going on at Las Vegas' family courts... especially my current case which is completely riddled with lies, multiple counts of fraud and at different levels,' Ashley Deiana represented by Gary Zernich attorney and fraudulently as it gets Susie Lewis victim Advocate vs Peter Deiana, judge assigned Denise L. Gentile case D-15-509839-D
Child abduction and parental alienation. My wife has concealed my kids from me for going on 7 months now. In order to try to cover up her wrong doings she has hired an attorney who I know knows of her true intentions and illegal actions, which makes him in the wrong by every means. There are regulations he has to follow that would hold him himself liable for charges along side of his clients if not followed and he still continues to aid her in her illegal actions. Once in family court the women's word is gold. For about 7 months instead of concentrating on a divorce and custody case I've had to put all my attention toward fighting false allegations, false police reports, keep from being wrongfully imprisoned, restraining and protective orders obtained under false pretensions, false reports or domestic violence on my behalf (there was but was her that attacked and assaulted me with closed fists in the presence of our children), and her fraudulently playing the role of a battered women's victim and receiving and openly accepting benefits set aside to aid actual battered women along with placing my kids into this role as well. I have no money to fight this but am doing my best studying every waking hr not at work and filing what i can. I have put in 2 applications to continue without paying filing fees and both have been ignored and the courts so far have overdrawn my account for $300.00 that i don have extra to replenish that account. My wife has endless funds available; the main reason all this happened is because her mother cut her off financially and rewrote wills cutting her from any and all family money's and inheritances unless she left me. They have millions of dollar's. This all has caused great damage to me professionally, mentally, physically, sociably, and has greatly threatened and damaged my relationship with my children along with my character. And being in family courts I have no avenues to take, every authority I try to file charges with says no it is family courts problem. We'll family courts are letting her get away with practically murder!! Most illegally actions along with the previously forgotten to mention criminal conspiracy involving at least 5 others all hold a charge yield a felony D count. And my hands are tied, it would seem that because she's a women in the family court system, she is granted immunity from her illegal activity. These going on are very wrong in every-way; moral, constitutionally, violates civil and constitutional rights, father's rights and ethically with 2 innocent children caught in the middle. The main objective her and her conspirators are trying to achieve is 1: cover up the fact that she is and always has been the aggressor not the victim, she committed a violent assault on her husband in the presence of our children while the husband/father was trying to remove himself and retreat from the confrontation that she so willingly turned combative. noted that husband did not even defend himself physically causing no harm to anyone just retreated again. 2: the fact that herself and 4-5 others are following a elaborate drawn out plan i uncovered evidence of being roughly a year or more in the making and included the assault that was supposed to entice me to strike her to be used against me, for her to ultimately gain sole custody with out any restrictions, cut me out of their lives completely and gain back the luxury of having access to the families money and inheritance money due to inherent in which her mother threatened and carried out taking away from her unless she left me 100% and for good. She even changed their wills as a message of her seriousness

For more info or questions please email me back. Any and all help even if it just shines a light on what goes on in the family court system will be greatly appreciated.

Thank you in advance,

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

Ohio's Data Security Law To Test Incentive-Driven Strategy

Ohio's new data security law takes the novel approach of rewarding companies for steps they take to protect personal information rather than punishing them in the wake of lapses, but whether this will catch on is likely to hinge on if the measure's limited liability shield is enough to spur businesses into action, attorneys say. Carolyn-

Are you planning on participating in any of the sessions on the Government Data Analytics Initiative? (See below for times)

These sessions are being convened because of a slew of federal, state and local government mandates that now require the use of data analytics. We're no longer talking just performance measurement, but linking your data up with other government and private data sources to glean insight for making program changes and improvements.

Customer Service and Citizen Engagement Analytics (September 12)
Police and Law Enforcement Data Analytics (September 18-19)
Gov Workforce Analytics (October 19)
Fraud and Enterprise Risk Analytics (October 23)
Transparency and Open Government (October 24)
Data Analytics for Mission Results (October 25)

Would you like to see the full agenda for any of these sessions? Can I put you down to RSVP?

Thanks,

Steven Hughes

Balance Billing for Out-of-Network Providers

Most out-of-network (OON) health care providers make critical mistakes that jeopardize their compliance with state and federal laws. Many providers tell patients they will accept any payment received from the patient's health plan as payment in full. This practice is risky and may invite accusations of ínsurance fraud – however, it is prevalent throughout the U.S.

A few of the cases where billing-related errors (overpayments, negligent misrepresentation, OON write-offs, and balance billing) ended in real legal nightmares are:

- Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. and Cigna v. Health Diagnostic Laboratory, Inc. - $84 Million dollars recovered
- Aetna v Health Diagnostics Laboratory - Sued for "tens of millions" of dollars
- Aetna v Bay Area Surgical Management (BASM) - Amount sought: $23 Million

What makes it worse is that HHS is actively waiting and watching to càtch you in case you backslide. However, all is not lost! Join expert speaker Thomas Force, Esq., to learn how OON providers and their revenue recovery staff can maintain compliance while collecting a fair amount of money from the patient's health plan. Thomas will also cover state laws related to balance billing requirements for OON providers.

Conference: The Balance Billing Requirement - Why Out-of-Network Providers Must Balance Bill Their Patients
Date: Wednesday, May 30, 2018 (Available for all day)
Time: 60 minutes
CEU: 1 AAPC CEU

Failure to balance bill patients can lead to large recoupment, audits, and litigation for ínsurance fraud. This training session will help you avoid common pitfalls and get answers to questions such as:

- Why is balance billing required in most jurisdictions?
- What are the exceptions to balance billing requirements?
- How to properly balance bill patients without offending or alienating them?
- How can your practice use ERISA to appeal denied and under-reimbursed claims for employer-sponsored plans?
- What is a recoupment and what to do when faced with one?
- What are the penalties for non-compliance with balance billing?

Session Highlights

This session will cover:

- Why OONs are required to balance bill and why it is ínsurance fraud if you don't
- The case of Ingenix's conflict of interest and how FAIR Health is reforming out-of-network reimbursement
- ERISA Pre-emption: What it means for providers located in states that restrict or prohibit balance billing
- Case studies of problematic billing and how they are noncompliant
- Patient protections under PPACA: Coverage for emergency services
- Industry insights on Medícare, TRICARE/CHAMPUS and balance billing
- The impact of New York's Emergency Medical Services and Surprise Bills Law
- How to write a patient-friendly balance bill letter, and consider the timing of the same
- The importance of a Charity Care Program/Financial Hardship policy
- The best practices: Transparency and disclosure
- The case laws: Cigna vs. Health Diagnostics, Aetna vs. Health Diagnostics Laboratory, and more

Subject: fraud issues in your programs

Carolyn —

Has your program completed the required risk assessment for fraud yet?

OMB is requiring risk assessments and fraud detection/reduction targets from each agency, while Congress has created a Commission to deal with legislative changes to target specific programs. With billions in potential fraud happening across government, these initiatives will receive a ton of oversight.

On October 23, 2017, the Performance Institute is convening the Government Fraud Analytics Summit to cover the latest mandates and present the best practices in fraud assessment, detection, mitigation and reporting.

Would you like to see the agenda and consider attending? If not, who in your agency would be the best person to follow-up with?

Thanks,

Austin Fageol

Does nuclear waste explode?
Does nuclear waste explode?
It would not explode; nuclear waste really can't explode like an atomic bomb. It would melt because of the heat of the lava, not a nuclear meltdown. It would not change the radioactivity at all. Heat and temperature have no effect on radioactivity.

Toshiba Company history. What's interesting is the "storage solutions." Could that be storage as in large cargo containers such as the business at LinkedIn by Ozgur Aktas? He was a military contractor either at an American military base in Turkey or was it in Germany? I always thought it had to do with global drug trafficking of heroin and cocaine. Is it possible these large storage containers contained nuclear waste moving it via these large cargo containers? Large storage containers Toshiba or data storage - Toshiba - Samsung? Or both? It's my undestanding that the FBI can go back 10 years on a website to track information.

Toshiba Corporation (, Kabushiki-gaisha Tōshiba, English: /təˈʃiːbə, tɒ-, toʊ-/[2]) is a Japanese multinational conglomerate headquartered in Tokyo, Japan. Its diversified products and services include information technology and communications equipment and systems, electronic components and materials, power systems, industrial and social infrastructure systems, consumer electronics, household appliances, medical equipment, office equipment, as well as lighting and logistics.

Toshiba was founded in 1939 as Tokyo Shibaura Denki K.K. through the merger of Shibaura Seisaku-sho (founded in 1875) and Tokyo Denki (founded in 1890). The company name was officially changed to Toshiba Corporation in 1978.

It is listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange, where it is a constituent of the Nikkei 225 and TOPIX indices, the Osaka Securities Exchange and the Nagoya Stock Exchange. Toshiba is the ninth largest semiconductor manufacturer in the world.[citation needed] In 2017, Toshiba filed unaudited quarterly results because of uncertainties at Westinghouse, which had filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection. Toshiba stated that "substantial doubt about the company's ability to continue as a going concern exists".[3]

Toshiba is organized into four groupings: the Digital Products Group, the Electronic Devices Group, the Home Appliances Group and the Social Infrastructure Group. Midea Group, a Chinese company, bought a controlling 80.1% stake in the Toshiba Home Appliances Group in 2016.[4][5]

History

Tanaka SeisakushoTanaka Seisakusho (, Tanaka Engineering Works) was the first company established by Tanaka Hisashige, one of the most original and productive inventor-engineers during the Tokugawa / Edo period. Established in July 1875, it was the first Japanese company to manufacture telegraph equipment. It also manufactured switches, and miscellaneous electrical and communications equipment. The company was inherited by Tanaka's adopted son, and later became half of the present Toshiba company. Several people who worked at Tanaka Seisakusho or who received Tanaka's guidance at a Kubusho (Ministry of Industries) factory later became pioneers themselves. These included Miyoshi Shōichi who helped Fujioka make the first power generator in Japan and to establish a company, Hakunetsusha to make bulbs; Oki Kibatarō, the founder of the present Oki Denki (Oki Electric Industry); and Ishiguro Keizaburō, a co-founder of the present Anritsu.[6]

After the demise of the founder in 1881 Tanaka Seisakusho became partly owned by General Electric and expanded into the production of torpedoes and mines at the request of the Imperial Japanese Navy, to become on the largest manufacturing companies of the time. However, as the Navy started to use competitive bids and then build its own works, the demand decreased substantially and the company started to lose money. The main creditor to the company, Mitsui Bank, took over the insolvent company in 1893 and renamed it Shibaura Seisakusho (Shibaura Engineering Works).[6]

Shibaura Seisakusho

Shibaura Seisakusho (, Shibaura Engineering Works) was the new name given to the company Tanaka Seisakusho (Tanaka Engineering Works), after it was declared insolvent in 1893 and taken over by Mitsui Bank.

In 1910, it formed a tie-up with GE USA, which, in exchange for technology acquired about a quarter of the shares of Shibaura. With this investment GE now had a stake in both Tokyo Denki and Shibaura Seisakusho - two companies that had a complementary line of products in light as well as heavy electrical equipment. Both companies were merged in 1939 to create Tokyo Shibaura Denki (Tokyo Shibaura Electric Company, now Toshiba). The relation with GE continued until the beginning of the war and, after the war, resumed in 1953 with GE's 24 percent shareholding. This percentage has, however, decreased substantially since then.[6]

Hakunetsusha (Tokyo Denki)

Hakunetsusha ( ) was a company established by Shōichi Miyoshi and Fujioka Ichisuke, two of Japan's industrial pioneers during the Tokugawa / Edo period. It specialized in the manufacture of light bulbs.

The company was established in 1890, and started out by selling bulbs using bamboo filaments. However, following the opening up of trade with the West through the Unequal treaty, Hakunetsusha met with fierce competition from imports. Its bulb cost about 60 per cent more than the imports and the quality was poorer. The company managed to survive with the booms after the First Sino-Japanese War of 1894–95 and the Russo-Japanese War of 1904–05, but afterward its financial position was precarious.

In 1905 the company was renamed Tokyo Denki (Tokyo Electric) and entered into a financial and technological collaboration with General Electric of USA. General Electric acquired 51 percent share of ownership, sent a vice president, and provided the technology for bulb-making. Production equipment was bought from GE and Tokyo Denki soon started selling its products with GE's trademark.

In 1939, Tokyo Denki and Shibaura Seisakusho were merged to form Tokyo Shibaura Denki (Tokyo Shibaura Electric Company, now Toshiba).

1939 to 2000

Toshiba was founded in 1939 by the merger of Shibaura Seisakusho (Shibaura Engineering Works)[7] and Tokyo Denki (Tokyo Electric). Shibaura Seisakusho had been founded as Tanaka Seisakusho by Tanaka Hisashige in July 1875 as Japan's first manufacturer of telegraph equipment.[6] In 1904, it was renamed Shibaura Seisakusho. Through the first decades of the 20th century, Shibaura Seisakusho had become a major manufacturer of heavy electrical machinery as Japan modernized during the Meiji Era and became a world industrial power. Tokyo Denki was founded as Hakunetsusha in 1890 and had been Japan's first producer of incandescent electric lamps. It later diversified into the manufacture of other consumer products and in 1899 had been renamed Tokyo Denki. The merger of Shibaura and Tokyo Denki created a new company called Tokyo Shibaura Denki (Tokyo Shibaura Electric) (東　芝　　). It was soon nicknamed Toshiba, but it was not until 1978 that the company was officially renamed Toshiba Corporation.

The group expanded rapidly, driven by a combination of organic growth and by acquisitions, buying heavy engineering and primary industry firms in the 1940s and 1950s. Groups created include Toshiba Music Industries/Toshiba EMI (1960), Toshiba International Corporation (1970s) Toshiba Electrical Equipment (1974), Toshiba Chemical (1974), Toshiba Lighting and Technology (1989), Toshiba America Information Systems (1989) and Toshiba Carrier Corporation (1999).

Toshiba is responsible for a number of Japanese firsts, including radar (1912), the TAC digital computer (1954), transistor television and microwave oven (1959), color video phone (1971), Japanese word processor (1978), MRI system (1982), laptop personal computer (1986), NAND EEPROM (1991), DVD (1995), the Libretto sub-notebook personal computer (1996) and HD DVD (2005).

In 1977, Toshiba acquired the Brazilian company Semp (Sociedade Eletromercantil Paulista), subsequently forming Semp Toshiba through the combination of the two companies' South American operations.

In 1950, Tokyo Shibaura Denki was renamed Toshiba. This logo was used from 1950-1969. It was also used later on for hard drives .[8]

In 1987, Tocibai Machine, a subsidiary of Toshiba, was accused of illegally selling CNC milling machines used to produce very quiet submarine propellers to the Soviet Union in violation of the CoCom agreement, an international embargo on certain countries to COMECON countries. The Toshiba-Kongsberg scandal involved a subsidiary of Toshiba and the Norwegian company Kongsberg Vaapenfabrikk. The incident strained relations between the United States and Japan, and resulted in the arrest and prosecution of two senior executives, as well as the imposition of sanctions on the company by both countries.[10] Senator John Heinz of Pennsylvania said "What Toshiba and Kongsberg did was ransom the security of the United States for $517 million."

2000 to 2010

In 2001, Toshiba signed a contract with Orion Electric, one of the world's largest OEM consumer video electronic makers and suppliers, to manufacture and supply finished consumer TV and video products for Toshiba to meet the increasing demand for the North American market. The contract ended in 2008, ending seven years of OEM production with Orion.

In December 2004, Toshiba quietly announced it would discontinue manufacturing traditional in-house cathode-ray tube (CRT) televisions. In 2006, Toshiba terminated production of in-house plasma TVs. To ensure its future competitiveness in the flat-panel digital television and display market, Toshiba has made a considerable investment in a new kind of display technology called SED. Before World War II, Toshiba was a member of the Mitsui Group zaibatsu (family-controlled vertical monopoly). Today Toshiba is a member of the Mitsui keiretsu (a set of companies with interlocking business relationships and shareholdings), and still has preferential arrangements with Mitsui Bank and the other members of the keiretsu. Membership in a keiretsu has traditionally meant loyalty, both corporate and private, to other members of the keiretsu or allied keiretsu. This loyalty can extend as far as the beer the employees consume, which in Toshiba's case is Asahi.

In July 2005, BNFL confirmed it planned to sell Westinghouse Electric Company, then estimated to be worth $1.8 billion (£1 billion).[11] The bid attracted interest from several companies including Toshiba, General Electric and Mitsubishi Heavy Industries and when the Financial Times reported on 23 January 2006 that Toshiba had won the bid, it valued the company's offer at $5 billion (£2.8 billion). The sale of Westinghouse by the Government of the United Kingdom surprised many industry experts, who questioned the wisdom of selling one of the world's largest producers of nuclear reactors shortly before the market for nuclear power was expected to grow substantially; China, the United States and the United Kingdom are all expected to invest heavily in nuclear power.[12] The acquisition of Westinghouse for $5.4 billion was completed on 17 October 2006, with Toshiba obtaining a 77 percent share, and partners The Shaw Group a 20 percent share and Ishikawajima-Harima Heavy Industries Co. Ltd. a 3 percent share.

In late 2007, Toshiba took over from Discover Card as the sponsor of the top-most screen of One Times Square in New York City.[13] It displays the iconic 60-second New Year's countdown on its screen, as well as messages, greetings, and advertisements for the company. It was taken over by Capital One in late 2018.

In January 2009, Toshiba acquired the HDD business of Fujitsu.[14][15]

2010 to 2013

Toshiba announced on 16 May 2011, that it had agreed to acquire all of the shares of the Swiss-based advanced-power-meter maker Landis+Gyr for $2.3 billion.[16] In 2010 the company released a series of television models including the WL768, YL863, VL963 designed in collaboration with Danish designer Timothy Jacob Jensen.[17] In April 2012, Toshiba agreed to acquire IBM's point-of-sale business for $850 million, making it the world's largest vendor of point-of-sale systems.[18][19]

In July 2012, Toshiba was accused of fixing the prices of LCD panels in the United States at a high level. While such claims were denied by Toshiba,[20] they have agreed to settle alongside several other manufacturers for a total of $571 million.[21]

In December 2013, Toshiba completed its acquisition of Vijai Electricals Limited plant at Hyderabad and set up its own base for manufacturing of transmission and distribution products (transformers and switchgears) under the Social Infrastructure Group in India as Toshiba Transmission & Distribution Systems (India) Private Limited.

2014 OCZ Storage Solutions Acquisition

In January 2014, Toshiba completed its acquisition of OCZ Storage Solutions.[22] OCZ Technology stock was halted on 27 November 2013. OCZ then stated they expected to file a petition for bankruptcy and that Toshiba Corporation had expressed interest in purchasing its assets in a bankruptcy proceeding.[23][24] On 2 December 2013, OCZ announced Toshiba had agreed to purchase nearly all of OCZ's assets for $35 million.[25] The deal was completed on 21 January 2014 when the assets of OCZ Technology Group became a new independently-operated subsidiary of Toshiba named OCZ Storage Solutions.[26] OCZ Technology Group then changed its name to ZCO Liquidating Corporation;[27] on 18 August 2014, ZCO Liquidating Corporation and its subsidiaries were liquidated.[28] OCZ Storage Solutions was dissolved on 1 April 2016 and absorbed into Toshiba America Electronic Components, Inc.,[29][30] with OCZ becoming a brand of Toshiba.

In March 2014, Toshiba sued SK Hynix accusing the company for stealing technology of their NAND flash memory.[31]

In October 2014, Toshiba and United Technologies agreed a deal to expand their joint venture outside Japan.[32]

Toshiba announced in early 2015 that they would stop making televisions in its own factories. From 2015 onward, Toshiba televisions will be made by Compal for the U.S., or by Vestel and other manufacturers for the European market.

In January 2016, Toshiba's security division unveiled a new bundle of services for schools that use its surveillance equipment. The program, which is intended for both K-12 and higher education, includes education discounts, alerts and post-warranty support, among other features, on its IP-based security gear.[33]

As of March 2016, Toshiba is preparing to start construction on a cutting-edge new semiconductor plant in Japan that will mass-produce chips based on the ultra-dense flash variant. Toshiba expects to spend approximately 360 billion yen, or $3.2 billion, on the project through May 2019.[34]

In April 2016, Toshiba recalled 100,000 faulty laptop lithium-ion batteries, which are made by Panasonic, that can overheat, posing burn and fire hazards to consumers, according to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission. Toshiba first announced the recall in January, and said it was recalling the batteries in certain Toshiba Notebook computers sold since June 2011.[35]

In September 2016, Toshiba announced the first wireless power receiver IC using the Qi 1.2.2 specification, developed in association with the Wireless Power Consortium.[36]

In late December 2016 Toshiba announced losses in the Westinghouse subsidiary from nuclear plant construction would lead to a write-down of several billion dollars.[37]

In January 2017, a person with direct knowledge of the matter reported that the company plans on making its chip division a separate business.[38]

2015 accounting scandal

Toshiba first announced in May 2015 that it was investigating an accounting scandal and it might have to revise its profits for the previous three years.[39][40] On 21 July 2015, CEO Hisao Tanaka announced his resignation amid an accounting scandal that he called "the most damaging event for our brand in the company's 140-year history". Profits had been inflated by $1.2 billion over the previous seven years.[41] Eight other senior officials also resigned, including the two previous CEOs.[42] Chairman Masashi Muromachi was appointed acting CEO.[43] Following the scandal, Toshiba Corp. was removed from a stock index showcasing Japan's best companies. That was the second reshuffle of the index, which picks companies with the best operating income, return on equity and market value.[44]

In September 2015, Toshiba shares fell to their lowest point in two and a half years. The firm said in a statement that its net losses for the quarterly period were 12.3 billion yen ($102m; £66m). The company noted poor performances in its televisions, home appliances and personal computer businesses.[45]

In December 2015, Muromachi said the episode had wiped about $8 billion off Toshiba's market value. He forecast a record 550 billion yen (about US $4.6 billion) annual loss and warned the company would have to overhaul its TV and computer businesses. Toshiba would not be raising funds for two years, he said. The next week, a company spokesperson announced Toshiba would in early 2016 seek 300 billion yen ($2.5 billion), taking the company's indebtedness to more than 1 trillion yen (about $8.3 billion).[46]

In May 2016, it was announced that Satoshi Tsunakawa, the former head of Toshiba's medical equipment division, was named CEO. This appointment came after the accounting scandal that occurred.[47][48]

2017 US nuclear construction liabilities

In February 2017, Toshiba revealed unaudited details of a 390 billion yen ($3.4 billion) corporate wide loss, mainly arising from its majority owned US based Westinghouse nuclear construction subsidiary which was written down by 712 billion yen ($6.3 billion). On 14 February 2017, Toshiba delayed filing financial results, and chairman Shigenori Shiga, formerly chairman of Westinghouse, resigned.[49][50][51]

Construction delays, regulatory changes and cost overruns at Westinghouse built nuclear facilities Vogtle units 3 and 4 in Waynesboro, Georgia and VC Summer units 2 and 3 in South Carolina, are cited as the main causes of the dramatic fall in Toshiba's financial performance and collapse in share price. Fixed priced construction contracts negotiated by Westinghouse with Georgia Power have left Toshiba with uncharted liabilities that will likely result in the sale of key Toshiba operating subsidiaries to secure the company's future.[52]

Westinghouse filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection on 29 March 2017.[53][54] It was estimated this would cost 9 billion dollar annual net loss.[55]

On 11 April 2017, Toshiba filed unaudited quarterly results. Auditors PricewaterhouseCoopers had not signed of the accounts because of uncertainties at Westinghouse. Toshiba stated that "substantial doubt about the company's ability to continue as a going concern exists".[3][56] On 25 April 2017, Toshiba announced its decision to replace its auditor after less than a year. Earlier in April, the company filed twice-delayed business results without an endorsement from auditor PricewaterhouseCoopers (PwC).[55][57]

On 20 September 2017, Toshiba's board approved a deal to sell its memory chip business to a group led by Bain Capital for US$18 billion, with financial backing by companies such as Apple, Dell Technologies, Hoya Corporation, Kingston Technology, Seagate Technology, and SK Hynix.[58][59] The newly-independent company was named Toshiba Memory Corporation.

On 15 November 2017, Hisense reached a deal to acquire 95% of Toshiba Visual Solutions for US$113.6 million.[60]

Later that month, the company announced that it would pull out of its long-standing sponsorships of the Japanese television programs Sazae-san, Nichiyō Gekijo, and the video screens topping out One Times Square in New York City. The company cited that the value of these placements were reduced by its exit from consumer-oriented lines of business.[61]

On 6 April 2018 Toshiba announced the completion of the sale of Westinghouse's holding company to Brookfield Business Partners and some partners.[62]

Toshiba is headquartered in Minato-ku, Tokyo, Japan and has operations worldwide. It had around 141,256 employees as of 31 March 2018.[63]

Toshiba is organised into four main business groupings: the Digital Products Group, the Electronic Devices Group, the Home Appliances Group and the Social Infrastructure Group.[64] In the year ended 31 March 2012, Toshiba had total revenues of ¥6,100.3 billion, of which 25.2 percent was generated by the Digital Products Group, 24.5 percent by the Electronic Devices Group, 8.7 percent by the Home Appliances Group, 36.6 percent by the Social Infrastructure Group and 5 percent by other activities. In the same year, 45 percent of Toshiba's sales were generated in Japan and 55 percent in the rest of the world.[64]

Toshiba has 39 R&D facilities worldwide, which employ around 4,180 people.[64] Toshiba invested a total of ¥319.9 billion in R&D in the year ended 31 March 2012, equivalent to 5.2 percent of sales.[64] Toshiba registered a total of 2,483 patents in the United States in 2011, the fifth-largest number of any company (after IBM, Samsung Electronics, Canon and Panasonic).[64]

3D television

In October 2010, Toshiba unveiled the Toshiba Regza GL1 21" LED backlit LCD TV glasses-free 3D prototype at CEATEC 2010. This system supports 3D capability without glasses (utilising an integral imaging system of 9 parallax images with vertical lenticular sheet). The retail product was released in December 2010.[84]

4K Ultra HD televisions

4K Ultra HD (3840×2160p) televisions provides four times the resolution of 1080p Full HD televisions. Toshiba's 4K HD LED televisions are powered by a CEVO 4K Quad + dual-core processor.[85]

HD DVD

Further information: HD DVD

On 19 February 2008, Toshiba announced that it would be discontinuing its HD DVD storage format following defeat in a format "war" against Blu-ray.[86] The HD DVD format had failed after most of the major US film studios backed the Blu-ray format, which was developed by Sony, Panasonic, Philips and Pioneer Corporation. Conceding the abandonment of HD DVD, Toshiba's President, Atsutoshi Nishida said "We concluded that a swift decision would be best [and] if we had continued, that would have created problems for consumers, and we simply had no chance to win".[87]

Toshiba continued to supply retailers with machines until the end of March 2008, and continued to provide technical support to the estimated one million people worldwide who owned HD DVD players and recorders. Toshiba announced a new line of stand-alone Blu-ray players as well as drives for PCs and laptops, and subsequently joined the BDA, the industry body which oversees development of the Blu-ray format.[88]

REGZA

REGZA (Real Expression Guaranteed by Amazing Architecture) is a unified television brand owned and manufactured by Toshiba. In 2010 REGZA name disappeared from the North American market, and from March 2015[89] new TVs carrying the Toshiba name are designed and produced by Compal Electronics, a Taiwanese company, which Toshiba has licensed its name to. REGZA is also used in Android-based smartphones that were developed by Fujitsu Toshiba Mobile Communications.

Chromebook

In October 2014, Toshiba released the Chromebook 2, a new version with a thinner profile and a much-improved display. The Chromebook runs exclusively on Chrome OS and gives users free Google Drive storage and access to a collection of apps and extensions at the Chrome Web Store.[90]

3D flash memory

In March 2015, Toshiba announced the development of the first 48-layer, three-dimensional flash memory. The new flash memory is based on a vertical stacking technology that Toshiba calls BiCS (Bit Cost Scaling), stores two bits of data per transistor and can store 128Gbits (16GB) per chip.[91] Toshiba's memory division was spun off as Toshiba Memory Corporation.

Environmental record

Toshiba has been judged as making "low" efforts to lessen their impact on the environment. In November 2012, they came second from the bottom in Greenpeace's 18th edition of the Guide to Greener Electronics that ranks electronics companies according to their policies on products, energy and sustainable operations.[92] Toshiba received 2.3 of a possible 10 points, with the top company (WIPRO) receiving 7.1 points. "Zero" scores were received in the categories "Clean energy policy advocacy", "Use of recycled plastics in products" and "Policy and practice on sustainable sourcing of fibres for paper".

In 2010, Toshiba reported that all of its new LCD TVs comply with the Energy Star standards and 34 models exceed the requirements by 30% or more.[93]

Toshiba also partnered with China's Tsinghua University in 2008 in order to form a research facility to focus on energy conservation and the environment.[94] The new Toshiba Energy and Environment Research Center is located in Beijing where forty students from the university will work to research electric power equipment and new technologies that will help stop the global warming process.[94] Through this partnership, Toshiba hopes to develop products that will better protect the environment and save China.[94] This contract between Tsinghua University and Toshiba originally began in October 2007 when they signed an agreement on joint energy and environment research.[94] The projects that they conduct work to reduce car pollution and to create power systems that don't negatively affect the environment.[94]

On 28 December 1970 Toshiba began the construction of unit 3 of the Fukushima Daiichi Nuclear Power Plant[95] which was damaged in the Fukushima I nuclear accidents on 14 March 2011. In April 2011, CEO Norio Sasaki declared nuclear energy would "remain as a strong option" even after the Fukushima I nuclear accidents.[96]

In late 2013, Toshiba (Japan) entered the solar power business in Germany, installing PV systems on apartment buildings.[97]

Now let's go to my notes: Congress Trade Act - China.

1. In the last year of his presidency, Bill Clinton called on Congress to help him change China's normal trade relations status with the U.S. to permanent. This would amend the Trade Act of 1974 which had the trade status of China annually reviewed to determine the best course of action.

Permanent normal trade relations

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia
Jump to navigationJump to search

The status of permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) is a legal designation in the United States for free trade with a foreign nation. In the United States, the name was changed from most favored nation (MFN) to PNTR in 1998.

In international trade, MFN status (or treatment) is awarded by one nation to another. It means that the receiving nation will be granted all trade advantages, such as low tariffs, that any other nation also receives. Thus, a nation with MFN status will not be discriminated against and will not be treated worse than any other nation with MFN status.[1]

Applicability

Granting of permanent normal trade relations status is automatic, except where specifically denied by law.[2]

Embargoes also apply to additional parties; see United States embargoes.

History

In 1948 the United States joined the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the predecessor organization of the World Trade Organization. In accordance with GATT provisions the United States agreed to extend what was then called Most Favored-Nation status (MFN) to all GATT member countries. This status was also applied to some countries that were not GATT members. However, a member may opt out of its obligations by invoking the non-application provision (Article XIII of the WTO or Article XXXV of the GATT) if it determines it cannot extend GATT/WTO principles to newly acceding members for political reasons.[3]

In 1951, the U.S. Congress directed President Harry Truman to revoke MFN status to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries except for Yugoslavia.[3]:2 During the Cold War, most Communist countries were denied MFN status if they did not meet certain conditions.[1]

In December 1960, Poland was granted MFN status by President Eisenhower.[1] In 1962, Congress enacted a directive that jeopardized the MFN status of Poland and Yugoslavia; however, the directive was delayed until a new one was passed that allowed any countries with MFN to keep the status if the President determined it to be in the national interest of the United States.[1]

Title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 superseded these provision. Section 401 of Title IV requires the President to withhold MFN status from countries that had not acquired that status by the time of the law's enactment on January 3, 1975. In effect, this meant all communist countries, except Poland and Yugoslavia. Section 402, the Jackson-Vanik amendment, withholds MFN status from countries with strict restriction on freedom of emigration.[3] Countries that wish to have PNTR must fulfill two basic requirements:[citation needed] (1) comply with the Jackson-Vanik provisions of the Trade Act of 1974 that states that the President of the United States determines that a country neither denies or impedes the right or opportunity of its citizens to emigrate; and (2) reach a bilateral commercial agreement with the United States. Jackson-Vanik allows for the President to issue a yearly waiver to allow the granting of PNTR.

For many years, People's Republic of China was the most important country in this group which required an annual waiver to maintain free trade status. The waiver for the PRC had been in effect since 1980. Every year between 1989 and 1999, legislation was introduced in Congress to disapprove the President's waiver. The legislation had sought to tie free trade with China to meeting certain human rights conditions that go beyond freedom of emigration. All such attempted legislation failed to pass. The requirement of an annual waiver was inconsistent with the rules of the World Trade Organization, and for the PRC to join the WTO, Congressional action was needed to grant PNTR to the PRC. This was accomplished in late 1999, allowing the PRC to join WTO in the following year.[4]

By Act of Congress, the United States granted permanent normal trade relations (PNTR) status to Czechoslovakia (later the Czech Republic and Slovakia), Hungary, and Romania after the fall of the communist governments in those countries. The United States granted PNTR to Albania, Bulgaria, Cambodia, Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania before their countries acceded to the WTO.[3] Before it granted PNTR, the United States invoked the non-application provision against Mongolia for more than two years after it joined the WTO on January 29, 1997. It also invoked the provision against Armenia from its WTO accession on February 5, 2003, until it was granted PNTR on January 7, 2005, and with Kyrgyzstan from when it joined the WTO on December 20, 1998, until receiving PNTR on June 29, 2000.[3]

According to a 2005 Congressional Research Service report, as of 2005, only Cuba (see United States embargo against Cuba) and North Korea (see North Korea–United States relations), were specifically denied NTR status.[5] The same report said that in accordance with the Jackson–Vanik amendment, Belarus and Turkmenistan had been temporarily afforded NTR treatment by presidential waiver and that Azerbaijan, Kazakhstan, Tajikistan, and Uzbekistan were temporarily afforded NTR treatment by a presidential compliance determination.[5]

In December 2006, the U. S. granted Permanent Normal Trade Relations status to Vietnam.[3]:3[6] Vietnam had a temporary free trade status on a year-to-year waiver basis as a prerequisite for accession to the WTO since 2001.[6]

In the same year Ukraine was granted PNTR. In December 2012, President Barack Obama signed the Russia and Moldova Jackson-Vanik Repeal and Sergei Magnitsky Rule of Law Accountability Act of 2012 (Magnitsky Act) granting PNTR to Russia and Moldova.[3]

U.S. and China

In the last year of his presidency, Bill Clinton called on Congress to help him change China's normal trade relations status with the U.S. to permanent. This would amend the Trade Act of 1974 which had the trade status of China annually reviewed to determine the best course of action. The piece of legislation was introduced to the house as H.R. number 4444 on May 15, 2000 by William Reynolds Archer, a Republican Representative from Texas (he had three cosponsors). Introduce to the house the legislation referred to the Ways and Means committee in the House of Representatives to be amended and written up.[7] The legislation was introduced by saying that the bill was a top priority for the rest of the year and it was vital to the U.S. agriculture market to have access to a market that accounts for one-fifth of the world's population.[8]

The other crucial point made was the involvement the U.S. needed to help the workers of the People's Republic of China to lead better lives.[9] Congress added some important points into the legislation to make sure that when China entered the World Trade Organization it could be reprimanded for crimes against the workers of the country, and certain markets would be mutually exclusive between the two countries. The People's Republic of China's businesses had to abide by human rights for their workers as stated in the internationally recognized worker rights. To monitor the workers' rights Congress established the Congressional–Executive Commission on the People's Republic of China. The commission was to monitor acts of China which reflect compliance or violation, compile lists of persons believed to be imprisoned, detained, or tortured due to pursuit of their human rights, monitor the development of the rule of law in China, and encourage the development of programs and activities of the U.S. government and private organizations with a goal of increasing the interchange of people and ideas. The committee formed, along with the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR), and the International Trade Commission (ITC) was to give an annual report to the President.[7]

Congress believed that they needed to pass a bill that would help the economy stay stimulated if not have a higher growth than at the time.[10] The most productive and trouble-free way to keep the economy growing strong was to outsource and trade more with China. China was to help provide America with superior markets in industry, agriculture, and technology. Congress as whole thought that without these things America would fall behind economically and technologically to some enemies of America.[citation needed] If China did not get support from America they could go to another country that would not be so strict on their treatment of people, and they could use that country to gain access to the WTO. The down side to this was that no markets could provide and receive China's goods like the United States markets could.[8]

The International Trade Commission's report was the determination of China's impacts on United States market, and how those certain disruptions can be remedied or expanded. The ITC was to find what domestic industries were being hurt by the trade and to present how the repair could be made. This was the most important part of the bill for most of the country. The bill breaks down to depending on how the different markets in the U.S. economy are doing it can use China's markets as a catalyst to help stabilize when need be.[clarification needed]

The bill created a stir among Congress and the American people when presented because people did not believe that America could actually do anything to help regulate China's treatment of workers.[11] Aside from people's rights activists many business men believed in the bill to help flourish the different areas of industry. The legislation was passed by the House of Representatives on May 24, 2000 and by the Senate on September 19, 2000. Members of the senate wanted to add in amendments on treating their workers even better than stated in previous legislation, and to make the punishment for breaking the rules greater. Congress was up for re-election that year so due to time constraints all twenty four amendments were rejected. The President signed on Oct 10, 2000 and that day it became Public Law No: 106-286.[7]

US imports from China more than quadrupled between 2000 and 2015, increasing the decline of US manufacturing jobs.[12] Since the passing of the bill there have been three attempts to repeal the PNTR with China. The strongest attempt was in 2005 when House Rep. Bernie Sanders and 61 co-sponsors introduced a legislation that would repeal the Permanent Normal Trade Relations with China. Rep. Sanders said to the house, "anyone who takes an objective look at our trade policy with China must conclude that is an absolute failure and needs to be fundamentally overhauled". The Representative goes into numbers of the trade deficit increased and the number of American jobs being lost to our overseas competitors. One point that Sanders did not make due to time constraints and the legislation being passed so quickly was that nothing in the way China treats its workers has changed.[13]

Transform Your Health and Social Program Paradigm

The Live Well San Diego vision is to improve the health, safety and well-being of all county residents. And a key step to help realize that vision involves building a better service delivery system that improves the quality and efficiency of service delivery the county and its partners provide to residents. So the County of San Diego teamed with IBM to develop and deploy the technology required to successfully execute that strategy. The goal was a cost-effective system that broke down existing silos between various social service agencies, and gave providers a more comprehensive view of their clients and those clients' challenges.

Subject: 2018 OIG Work Plan: Trends, Reports and Issues

Ted Burton

Dear colleague,

Do you know how to get prepared for compliance with OIG work plan issues and the associated audit issues?

The OIG work plan is the most important compliance blueprints for healthcare providers and organizations. It lays out the audits, evaluations and other projects for the Centers for Medícare & Medicaíd Services (CMS) and others that the HHS Office of Inspector General plans to conduct in the year ahead. If you understand the OIG's work plan, you will know where to focus your attention when it comes to fraud and investigative activities of the federal government, and you can níp problems in the bud and avoid expensive and time-consuming audits.

Join us for this 90-minute On-Demand Webinar (play it anytime of the day)—"OIG Work Plan: Trends, Reports and Issues for 2018" with expert speaker Duane C. Abbey, Ph.D., on Tuesday, December 19, 2017, for a review of the current and 2018 OIG work plan issues for hospitals, clinics and other health care providers with particular emphasis on codíng, billing and reimbursement. Dr. Duane will address upcoming work plan issues in the context of those from FY2013 through FY2017, taking into account that the work plan is now updated monthly. The session will discuss pertinent reports issued by OIG, particularly in relation to established issues that the OIG is interested in.

Dr. Duane will also address associated RAC issues relative to current and anticipated trends and focus on identifying key issues in the context of internal and external auditing to make certain that providers can properly address any OIG and RAC issues. The session concentrates mainly on issues that involve hospitals and facilities but will also address physícian concerns involving hospitals.

You'll get 1.5 AAPC CEU per registration.

Session Highlights

- What are OIG work plans?
- What kind of reports are issued relative to these work plan issues
- How the OIG studies are connected to the RACs and other federal auditing entities
- Why hospitals and other healthcare providers need to be concerned
- OIG reports and recommendations
- Why these work plans get longer and more involved each year
- Whether CMS always follows the OIG recommendations
- Why there is such as emphasis on codíng, billing and the False Claims Act
- Emerging trends, over the years, in the issues that OIG work plans address
- Trends in issuance of the work plans over the past several years
- Where work plans and reports issued relative to the identified issues are accessed
- What kinds of resources the OIG has
- When the OIG work plan is issued each year
- Does the OIG issue rule changes through the Federal Register

Session Agenda

- Review the OIG publications
    - Issuance of work plans
    - Issuance of reports relative to the work plans

    - Specíal reports
    - Corporate integrity agreements (CIAs)
- Review the RAC process
    - Development and identification of issues
    - Gaining approval for issues
- FY2018 OIG issues
    - Hospitals
    - Physicians/clinics
    - Other types of healthcare facilities
    - Overlapping issues with physicians and hospitals
- Review FY2013 through FY2017 work plans
    - Trends in the development of work plan issues
    - Issues repeatedly appearing in the work plans
- Review specíal reports issued by the OIG
    - Relationship to published OIG work plan issues
- Associated RAC audit issues
    - Current categories of issues
    - OIG issues relative to RAC audit issues
    - Anticipated issues for the future
- Identification of action steps for healthcare providers
    - Hospital concerns
    - Utilizing the OIG work plan as a guíde for compliance
    - Other related health care provider concerns
- Review of reports and compliance guidance issued by the OIG
    - Hospitals
    - Clinics and physicians
    - Other health care providers

The Fight to Vote in 2016

The integrity of our democracy is at stake this November. In states across the country, legislators have enacted discriminatory photo ID laws, early voting cutbacks, and other measures to make it harder to vote. How did it come to that, today, in 2016? Find out by watching this Facebook video the Brennan Center just co-produced with CREDO on the fight to vote in 2016. Read more in Michael Waldman's recent book. (P.S. FEATURED EVENT

How Political Operatives Transformed American Democracy

On October 6, at NYU School of Law, the Brennan Center will host David Daley to discuss his new book Rat Fked: The True Story Behind the Secret Plan to Steal America's Democracy. The book highlights an explosive account of how political operatives undermined American democracy and fundamentally altered the electoral map through redistricting. Joined by the Brennan Center's Michael Li, Daley will discuss how a tradition of dirty tricks — known to political insiders as "ratfking" — was taken to an unprecedented level, and why this matters for the 2016 election. RSVP here.

Hi Mayor! Two years ago (yes he kept the email!) Jon Ralston asked us about this whether you were considering returning the money he gave your campaign, and after talking with you we responded you were aware of the issue and would wait and see what the outcome of the investigation is, Now that he has been indicted Jon wants to know whether you are planning to return the money he donated to your campaign.
Feel free to call me if you want to chat, I wanted to email you this so you had the PDF.

INVESTMENT COMPANY EXECUTIVES INDICTED FOR $1.5 BILLION PONZI SCHEME

WASHINGTON – The president and chief executive officer and two former Asia-based executives of a Las Vegas investment company were indicted today for their roles in an alleged $1.5 billion Ponzi scheme.

Assistant Attorney General Leslie R. Caldwell of the Justice Department's Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney Daniel G. Bogden of the District of Nevada and Special Agent in Charge Laura A. Bucheit of the FBI's Las Vegas Division made the announcement.

"The defendants allegedly preyed on thousands of unsuspecting Japanese victims to enrich themselves by operating a billion-plus dollar Ponzi scheme," said Assistant Attorney General Caldwell. "This prosecution shows that the Criminal Division will pursue not only those who victimize American citizens, but also those who use the U.S. as a home base to defraud victims abroad."

"Investment fraud and other financial fraud cases are a high priority for the U.S. Attorney's Office in Nevada," said U.S. Attorney Bogden. "These defendants are accused of using a Nevada corporation to conduct their $1.5 billion fraud scheme and falsely telling thousands of overseas victims that their investments would be safely held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada. Fraudulent ruses and schemes perpetrated by Nevadans using Nevada corporations and entities will continue to be addressed by this office."

"These indictments are a reminder of the FBI's determination to identify, investigate and bring to justice those who are committing financial crimes against innocent consumers," said Special Agent in Charge Bucheit. "We are appreciative of the continued support we receive from our international, federal, state and local law enforcement partners."

Edwin Fujinaga, 68, of Las Vegas; Junzo Suzuki, 66, of Tokyo; and Paul Suzuki, 36, of Tokyo, were charged in an indictment with eight counts of mail fraud and nine counts of wire fraud. Fujinaga also is charged with three counts of money laundering. The indictment seeks from all three defendants forfeiture of the proceeds from the alleged crimes.

Fujinaga was the president and CEO of Las Vegas-based MRI International Inc. (MRI). Junzo Suzuki previously was MRI's executive vice president for Asia Pacific, and Paul Suzuki previously was the company's general manager for Japan operations. MRI purportedly specialized in "factoring," whereby the company purchased accounts receivable from medical providers at a discount, and then attempted to recover the entire amount, or at least more than the discounted amount, from the debtor.

According to allegations in the indictment, from at least 2009 to 2013, Fujinaga and the Suzukis fraudulently solicited investments from thousands of Japanese residents, and MRI currently owes investors over $1.5 billion. Specifically, the indictment alleges that Fujinaga and the Suzukis promised investors a series of interest payments that would accrue over the life of the investment and that would be paid out along with the face value of the investment at the conclusion of the investments' duration. The defendants allegedly solicited investments by, among other things, promising investors that their investments would be used only for the purchase of medical accounts receivable (MARS) and by representing that investors funds would be managed and safeguarded by an independent third-party escrow company.

The indictment further alleges that MRI operated as a Ponzi scheme, wherein the defendants used new investors' money to pay prior investors' maturing investments. According to the indictment, the defendants also allegedly used investors' funds for purposes other than the purchase of MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, funding personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

The charges contained in an indictment are merely accusations. A defendant is presumed innocent until and unless proven guilty.

This case is being investigated by the FBI's Las Vegas Division. Significant assistance was provided by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission, the Criminal Division's Office of International Affairs and Japanese authorities. This case is being prosecuted by Assistant Chief Albert B. Stieglitz Jr. and Trial Attorney Melissa Aoyagi of the Criminal Division's Fraud Section and First Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven W. Myhre of the District of Nevada.

CRIMINAL INDICTMENT

2:15-cr-198

VIOLATIONS:

Title 18, United States Code, Section 1341—Mail Fraud (Counts One through Eight) (as to all defendants);

Title 18, United States Code, Section 1343—Wire Fraud (Counts Nine through Seventeen) (as to all defendants);

Title 18, United States Code, Section 1957—Engaging in Money Transactions in Property Derived from Specified Unlawful Activity (Counts Eighteen through Twenty) (as to defendant FUJINAGA); Title 18, United States Code, Section 2—Aiding and Abetting (Counts One through Twenty as to defendant FUJINAGA, Counts One through Seventeen as to defendants JUNZO SUZUKI and PAUL SUZUKI).

CLV004634

The Grand Jury Charges that at all times relevant to the Indictment:

BACKGROUND

1. Defendant Edwin FUJINAGA was a United States citizen, residing in Las Vegas, Nevada.

2. Defendant Junzo SUZUKI ("J. SUZUKI") was a Japanese citizen, residing in Tokyo, Japan.

3. Defendant Paul SUZUKI ("P. SUZUKI") was a Japanese and United States citizen, residing in Tokyo, Japan.

4. MRI International Inc. ("MRI") was a Nevada Limited Liability Corporation located and operated in Las Vegas, Nevada. Defendant FUJINAGA owned and controlled MRI as its President and CEO. MRI operated a Service Center located in Tokyo, Japan. Defendant J. SUZUKI was at various times MRI's Executive Vice President (Asia Pacific), and Defendant P. SUZUKI was at various times General Manager of MRI's Japan operations.

THE SCHEME AND ARTIFICE TO DEFRAUD

5. From at least 2009 and continuing until at least in or about April 2013, FUJINAGA, J. SUZUKI and P. SUZUKI, and others known and unknown to the Grand Jury, aided and abetted by each other, made, and caused to be made, numerous material misrepresentations and omissions designed to fraudulently induce investors to transmit money to MRI.

6. As part of the scheme and artifice, the defendants represented, among other things, that MRI was engaged in the business of purchasing medical accounts receivable

CLV004635

("MARS"), that is, debts owed by recipients of medical services or products to the individuals or entities that provided those services. MRI purported to purchase the accounts from providers at a discounted rate and then collect on the accounts from the patients owing money. MRI's profit from this activity, according to the defendants, was generated from the difference between the price at which MRI purchased the MARS and the amount MRI collected on them due to MRI's purportedly superior collections capability.

7. As a further part of the scheme and artifice, the defendants, and others working with them, solicited investments in MRI by offering Certificates of Investment (hereinafter "Certificates"), claiming to provide investors with consistent, predictable returns resulting from its superior collections ability. The defendants marketed and sold the Certificates primarily, if not exclusively, to Japanese citizens through MRI's Service Center in Tokyo. Bearing a face value equal to the amount of the initial investment, the Certificates promised a series of interest payments which would accrue and be paid, along with the principal, when the Certificates reached a specified maturity date. When the Certificates reached maturity, investors were given the option to reinvest the total amount due and owing into a new Certificate instead of receiving a "liquidation," or cash payment of the amount they were due.

8. As a further part of the scheme and artifice, the defendants fraudulently induced investments by knowingly publishing, mailing, distributing, and transmitting promotional materials that falsely represented that MRI would use any money invested in the Certificates exclusively to purchase MARS, the purported profitable business of MRI. The defendants also falsely represented to investors that investment money would be held and managed by an independent, third-party escrow agent in Nevada using a "lock box" method that prevented MRI, or anyone else, from expending investment money for any purpose other than the purchase of MARS. Based on these and other false and fraudulent representations and promises, the defendants induced thousands of investors to invest a total of over $1.5 billion in MRI Certificates.

9. As a further part of the scheme and artifice, and contrary to all representations the defendants made to investors, MRI functioned almost entirely as a Ponzi scheme, that is, money solicited from new investors was used to pay prior investors' maturing investments.

10. As a further part of the scheme and artifice, and contrary to all representations the defendants made to investors, the defendants regularly expended investor money for things other than purchasing MARS, including paying themselves sales commissions, subsidizing gambling habits, paying for personal travel by private jet, and other personal expenses.

11. As a further part of the scheme and artifice, the defendants made such other false, fraudulent, deceptive, and deceitful representations as necessary to advance their fraudulent scheme, conceal their fraudulent activities from others, avoid detection, enrich themselves, and cause devastating losses to their victims.

Balance Billing for Out-of-Network Providers

Most out of network health care providers make critical mistakes that jeopardize their compliance with state and federal laws. Many providers tell patients they will accept any payment received from the patient's health plan as payment in full. This practice is risky and may invite accusations of ínsurance fraud – it is however, prevalent throughout the U.S.

Here are just a few of the cases where billing related errors (Overpayments, Negligent misrepresentation, Out-of-network write-offs, and Balance billing) ended in very real legal nightmares:

- Connecticut General Life Ins. Co. and Cigna v. Health Diagnostic Laboratory, Inc.—$84 Million dollars recovered
- Aetna v Health Diagnostics Laboratory—Sued for "tens of millions" of dollars
- Aetna v Bay Area Surgical Management (BASM)—Amount sought: $23 Million

What makes it worse is that HHS is actively watching and lying in wait to catch you in case you backslide. However, all is not lost! Join expert speaker Thomas Force, Esq., to learn how OON providers and their revenue recovery staff can maintain compliance while collecting a fair amount of money from the patient's health plan. He will also shed light on state laws relating to balance billing requirements for OON providers.

Conference: The Balance Billing Requirement - Why Out-of-Network Providers Must Balance Bill Their Patients
Date: Apr 21 (Available for all day)
Time: 60 minutes

Failure to balance bill patients can lead to large recoupment, audits, and litigation for ìnsurance fraud. This training session will help you avoid common pitfalls and get answers to questions like the following:

- Why is balance billing required in most jurisdictions?
- What are the exceptions to balance billing requirements?
- How do I properly balance bill patients without offending or alienating them?
- How can my practice use ERISA to appeal denìed and under-reimbursed claims for employer-sponsored plans?
- What is a recoupment and what to do when faced with one?
- What are the penalties for non-compliance with balance billing?

Session Highlights:

- Learn why OONs are required to balance bill—and why it's ìnsurance fraud if you don't.
- Consider the case of Ingenix's conflict of interest—and how FAIR Health is reforming Out-of-Network reimbursement.
- Review ERISA Preemption—what it means for providers located in states that restrict or prohibit balance billing.
- View case studies of problematic billing—and how they are noncompliant.
- Understand patient protections under PPACA: Coverage for Emergency Services.
- Dìscover industry insights on Medìcare, TRICARE/CHAMPUS and balance billing.
- Learn about the impact of New York's Emergency Medical Services and Surprise Bills Law.
- Write a patient friendly balance bill letter, and consider the timing of the same.
- Review the importance of a Charity Care Program/ Financial Hardship Policy.
- Learn best practices: Transparency and Disclosure
- Discuss Case Laws—Cigna vs. Health Diagnostics, Aetna vs. Health Diagnostics Laboratory, and more.

Discount offer: Apply code "SAVE20" at check-out and get $20 off. Plus, you will get 1 AAPC CEU per registration.

Subject: MOB Museum displaying Fraudulent 'Artifacts'

Jonathan,

You are displaying fakes, and you are well aware of the fact. During your portion of my 9+ year consulting, curatorial and expository role with the Museum, you were carefully informed that the alleged "St. Valentine's Day Massacre evidence" being peddled by Neal Trickel in Wisconsin were absolute fabrications. You have evidently chosen to ignore this information in favor of the 'expertise' of your colleague Mr. Schumacher. This is precisely museums hire those with actual experience in what they are hired to do. Those who know the marketplace well enough to recognize what they are looking at when they see it.

These so-called "evidence" pieces are unsupported and undocumented. They are 'fabulous fakes', exactly like the ones Jay Bloom knowingly purchased for display at the "Mob Experience", and now you have taken the City's museum down that same road of fraud and fakery.

I am not going to merely sit by and allow you to display fakes to the public, as I have recently pointed out. You must remove the Trickel material from display and not attempt to use it to defraud patrons into believing that you actually possess evidence which -- had it been authentic -- would be the property of the Cook County Sheriff's Department pending the resolution of seven open homicides. Of course, someone with actual experience dealing with authentic historical evidence would be well aware of this. Furthermore, if authentic, it would not have been lingering on the collector marketplace for the past 6-7 years with positively no knowledgeable collectors willing to acquire it. Further, Mr. Trickel relied largely upon third parties like gangster groupie Mario Gomes to 'spread the word' of his miraculous find -- yet another hallmark of an attempt to defraud -- instead of going public himself with what would have been a national news story had it been true. Instead, he conned the Mob Museum into going public for him and lending 'credibility' to his fraud.

Please advise what you intend to do. Again, you will not be permitted to pull a 'Jay Bloom' after I spent years in collaboration with Kathy and Dennis Barrie to ensure that the Mob Museum wasn't displaying artifacts which are not what they purport to be. You and Schumacher cannot simply run roughshod over history, whether out of ignorance or otherwise. Of course, recent press reveals how your authentication expert feels that artifacts rank quite low in importance to museum guests. His comments shed light on a troubling perspective: which is that it's not so important whether what you are displaying is actually genuine and not merely old envelopes containing shrapnel collected by Mr. Trickel from the shooting range he himself owns and operates. Which is exactly what it is.
